Title: Understanding Boundaries

Publisher: A Lesson Plan from Rights, Respect, Responsibility: A K-12 Curriculum

NSES Alignment:

- HR.8.IC.2 – Demonstrate effective ways to communicate personal boundaries and show respect for the boundaries of others.
- PS.8.CC.3 – Explain that no one has the right to touch anyone else in a sexual manner if they do not want to be touched.
- PS.8.CC.4 – Explain why a person who has been raped or sexually assaulted is not at fault.

Advance Preparation: Print out a copy of the National Sexual Assault and Prevention Hotline/Website sheet, and cut into individual squares. Place these in an envelope.

Learning Objective: By the end of this lesson, students will be able to:

1. Define what a boundary is, with an emphasis on personal boundaries. [Knowledge]
2. Demonstrate how to be clear about one's own and show respect for others' boundaries. [Knowledge]
3. Demonstrate an understanding that no one has the right to violate someone else's boundaries, and that doing so may be against the law. [Knowledge]
4. Name at least one resource to whom they can report sexual assault or rape. [Knowledge]

Procedure:

Step 1: Ask the class whether they've ever heard the term "boundary" before. After they have responded, explain that a boundary is a limit placed on something. It can be an actual physical boundary – like if one were to come upon a sign that read, "Do Not Enter" – or a rule about how society works – like the law that says people can't drive cars or vote until they're a particular age.

Explain that today's lesson is going to focus on personal boundaries. These are the boundaries we set for ourselves relating to what we are and aren't comfortable with. Ask whether any students can provide examples of personal boundaries? Probe for: physical contact (hugging, kissing); keeping your personal space around you/not being crowded; language (when people use language that others find offensive, that also violates a boundary); when someone uses or borrows your stuff without asking, etc.

The Morton School District does not discriminate in any programs or activities on the basis of sex, race, creed, religion, color, national origin, age, veteran or military status, sexual orientation, gender expression or identity, disability, or the use of a trained dog guide or service animal and provides equal access to the Boy Scouts and other designated youth groups. The following employees have been designated to handle questions and complaints of alleged discrimination: John Hannah, P.O. Box 1219, Morton, WA 98356; (360) 496-5300 (Title IX); Tami Muth, P.O. Box 1219, Morton, WA 98356; (360) 496-5143 (ADA Coordinator/Compliance Coordinator for 28A.640 and 28A.642); Becky Brooks, P.O. Box 1219, Morton, WA 98356; (360) 496-5137 (Section 504); Jenna Haselwood, P.O. Box 1219, Morton, WA 98356; (360) 496-5300 (Harassment, Intimidation and Bullying Compliance Officer)

Ask the students to provide an example of a physical boundary they have. Then ask whether anyone has ever had someone not respect their physical boundaries, and how that felt. Finally, ask whether anyone is willing to share a time when they didn't respect someone else's boundary. If they give an example, ask them to describe why, if they can recall, they did that, how they knew they'd gone over that boundary and what the other person did in response. If no one has or is willing to provide an example, talk about when an adult family member expects a hug or a kiss and you don't feel like hugging or kissing that person yet are expected to. Another example is a younger person being told they need to share their stuff with a younger sibling when they don't want to.

Say, "One of the biggest differences between a person who has gone through puberty and somebody who has not is that an adult body is the ability to reproduce, or make a baby. That is an important change that happens during puberty. The main changes that happen during puberty are the result of hormones: testosterone and estrogen mainly. Hormones are the natural chemicals our bodies make."

Step 2: Explain, from the examples given, that clearly people don't like it when they have a boundary and someone else doesn't respect that boundary. Tell the students that as they get older and end up having a boyfriend or girlfriend, the issue of boundaries is going to have to do with sexuality, which can make them more sensitive to discuss.

Break the class into groups of 3. Tell them you are going to give them a worksheet with some scenarios on them. Ask them to complete the sheets in their groups. Distribute one sheet per triad, telling them they will have about 10 minutes in which to complete them.

Step 3: After about ten minutes of working, ask for the class' attention and ask a volunteer to read the first example. Ask different groups to share what they thought about how each person in the scenario responded, as well as what they could have done differently. As students respond, write key words on the board or flipchart paper to reinforce effective communication about boundaries. Examples of these might include: "be clear," "stop when someone says no," "be direct but try not to be mean about it," etc.

Have a different student read the second example aloud and again ask for volunteers from different groups to share their responses to the two questions. If they refer to something already written on the board, write a check mark next to that term/ phrase; if they contribute something new, add it to the list.

Step 4: Ask the students to look at what's on the board and describe what themes or lessons they notice in what's written, probing for the importance of knowing and being clear about what your boundaries are, and of finding out what someone else's boundaries are and respecting them, including if they were to change.

Say, "These are pretty low-key behaviors and boundaries we're discussing – but it can get far more serious than this." Ask the students whether they have ever heard the terms "rape" or "sexual assault" before, and if so, what they understand it to be. Probe for, "it is when someone forces another person to do something sexual that they don't want to do." Explain that rape usually involves some kind of forced sex – vaginal, oral or anal – but that if a person does other sexual things to another person who didn't want to do those things, it's considered sexual assault or abuse, and is just as wrong as rape is.

Explain, "Rape and sexual assault are extremely serious because they can hurt someone physically and emotionally. They are not just wrong, they are crimes. So if you aren't sure what another person's boundaries are – or, like Max, push it a bit to see if the other person will change their mind – you may end up committing a crime. This is another reason why clear communication is so important – if you're not sure how someone else is feeling or what they want to do sexually, just ask. If you don't like what you're doing sexually with another person, say you want to stop – and then stop."

Say, “The most important message I’d like you to walk away with is that the person who doesn’t respect boundaries – the person who pushes it or assaults or rapes another person – is always responsible for what happens. If someone says ‘no,’ you need to stop what you’re doing. If you don’t like what someone is doing, you need to say ‘no’ really clearly. If someone does sexually assault or rape another person, it is never the fault of the person who has been assaulted or raped. The abuser or rapist is always in the wrong – it doesn’t matter what the person who was raped was wearing, or whether they knew each other, were a couple or had done something sexual together before. No means no – every single time. Even if someone is silent, they have not given consent.”

Step 5: Take the envelope with the individual squares that contain the sexual assault hotline and website on them, and begin to walk around the room, giving one to each student. As you walk, say, “It’s always best if you can talk with a parent/caregiver about something serious that’s happened to you or someone you know. You can also always talk with another trusted adult, like someone here at school. But sometimes, people – both kids and adults – find it really hard to talk about sexual assault. That’s why there’s this hotline, which you can access by calling or going online. In the end, it doesn’t matter who you talk with about this – what matters is that you tell someone so that it stops and so that person can’t do it to anyone else.”

Recommended Assessment of Learning Objectives at Conclusion of Lesson: The content messages of the learning objectives are provided in the teacher’s lecture; the small group activity will help the teacher assess learning objectives one and two; three will be assessed by observation during the last discussion.
