

TOY SELECTION GUIDE

For Preschoolers (2020 edition)

Dear Parents,

Holiday time will soon be here. I would like to offer suggestions regarding toy selection for your children. The following toys and games were chosen because of their ability to promote skill development, address sensory processing and they are fun to play! You will need to use your judgment when choosing the most appropriate level of an activity relative to your child's age, size, attention span, motor skills and complexity of the task; there can be a big difference between some 3 and 5 year old's skills. If your child receives OT and/or PT, you may want to check with their therapist about a specific toy/game/activity. Your child may require assistance and/or supervision to play a specific game for safety reasons (ex: balance, strength, coordination).

Just a reminder too, some of the toys may require supervised use due to small parts, especially if younger siblings are present.

Have a wonderful holiday and enjoy the playtime that you share with your children!

Please contact me if you have any questions.

Check your local stores or their websites first; they are stocking more unique toys and games than ever before. For example: CVS, Target, and Walmart now stock a wide selection of Crayola and Melissa & Doug (M&D) toys. Michael's, Walmart and Target have some craft and science kits.

Some items are marked with a vendor symbol as they are available at specific sites or under specific names.

Walmart has a new Spark, Create, Imagine (SCI) line for pre-k through K (colors, shapes, animals, ABCs, etc.)

Target and Walmart regularly sell inexpensive scholastic educational items and fine motor products. For example, felt food, Dr. Seuss flash cards, and alphabet/number sequencing, puzzles, etc.

In addition to their in-store project activities (on hold due to COVID), Home Depot has many Stanley Jr. Kits (ex: birdhouse, Kids Bugs & Insects and Butterfly habitats) and Garden and Tool sets (ex" Toolbox kit).

Gross Motor-Refers to large muscle movements. These toys enhance balance, eye-hand coordination, bilateral coordination, strength, endurance and motor planning
