Kennedy Park Families:

I hope this letter finds you all well and healthy. We at Kennedy Park School #24, continue to appreciate your cooperation and understanding during this school year.

Due to the impending snowstorm, Thursday, December 17th will be an asynchronous (not live instructional) day. In the event there are power and/or Internet outages teachers will be posting Thursday assignments, schedules, and information no later than Wednesday, December 16th by the evening in his/her virtual platforms. All in-person classes will work remotely on Thursday, December 17th and return for in-person on Friday, December 18th.

In order for student attendance/participation to count for Thursday, December 17th, students will need to complete the designated assignment(s) given by the teacher no later than Monday, December 21st.

Should there be disrupted internet connections or possible power outages, the following video is a quick example of how to save a Google type file to the local drive of a Chromebook and then be able to access those documents offline. <https://youtu.be/UDAxr6nnVjo>.

If the student is not using a Chromebook and instead using a desktop, MacBook or laptop, they would save to the hard drive from that device and access the files from that device.

An iPad – they would also have to save to the files folder on the iPad – here are some links from Apple on how to save and access those files –

If possible, students should download all materials needed for their Thursday, 12/17/20 lessons on Wednesday night. They should also make sure that their device is properly charged. The asynchronous day will allow students to continue the instructional learning, but also be able to enjoy the snow day!

If you should have any questions or need assistance, please reach out via email to pamela.kaminsky@woodbridge.k12.nj.us or vandana.chakke@woodbridge.k12.nj.us

Take care and be well.

Best,

Mrs. P. Kaminsky
