Parental Involvement Plan

Research has proven there is a positive correlation between student success and parent involvement. Involving parents in the school learning community has the potential to provide a greater impact on student success than any other educational program or reform. This plan intends to promote meaningful family participation in student learning with the expected result of increased student achievement.

Standard 1: Communicating

Robinson High School recognizes that communication between home and school should be regular, two-way, and meaningful. We will conduct two parent/teacher conference meetings during the school year to engage parents in meaningful dialogue about the progress of their children. Parents will be provided information through email, phone calls, newsletters, and the school website.

According to Act 35 of 2004, each teacher in our school is required to have no less than two hours of professional development designed to enhance understanding of effective parental involvement strategies. We also provide mentoring of new teachers with training on how to conduct parent-teacher conferences to provide relevant communication with parents.

Additional School Communication:

- Annual Report to the Public
- Student Handbooks
- Calendar of events for the year
- Important dates and school activities posted on the website and social media
- Schoology for daily grades and instruction information
- Report Cards
- HAC (Home Access Center) for progress reports
- School Newsletter
- School-wide phone announcements
- Family Night Events: Orientation, Financial Aid Nights, etc.
- Music and Drama Programs
- Athletic Events
- Interpreters for ESL families

Standard 2: Parenting

Robinson High School promotes and supports parenting skills and programs. We have a Parent Center open to families throughout the school year during the school day. The Parent Center houses resources regarding responsible parenting, academic resource materials, and information for families in need.

We also offer a PALS (People Assisting Local Schools) program in our school. This is a partnership program for our parents that matches them with volunteer opportunities. These parents, grandparents, and guardians give of their time and talents to assist the school in educating students.

Standard 3: Student Learning

Student learning increases when parents are invited into the process by helping at home. Robinson High School acknowledges the fact that parents play an integral role in assisting student learning. To assist parents in student learning, we host informative parent meetings to inform parents about what students will be learning, how they will be assessed, and how parents can assist their children in meeting educational objectives.

Robinson High School invites parents to parent/teacher conferences to discuss academic and behavioral progress and course selection and career planning.

Standard 4: Volunteering

Parents are welcome in Robinson High School and their support and assistance are sought. We have many volunteer programs throughout the school. The most active is Facebook the Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) for parent leadership and participation.

Other volunteering opportunities:

- Athletic Booster Club
- Band Booster Club
- Senior Moms
- Special Olympics

Standard 5: School Decision Making and Advocacy

Robinson High School recognizes that a parent is a full partner in the decisions that affect his or her child and family. Information on policies concerning parent visitation, student pick-up procedures, and classroom visitation are provided to students through the Student Handbook.

Parents are also encouraged to participate on various advisory councils and committees such as the Handbook Committee, ACSIP Committee, Equity Monitoring Committee, Parental Involvement Committee, and the School Strategic Planning Committee.

Standard 6: Collaborating with Community

Robinson High School recognizes that community resources are used to strengthen schools, families, and student learning. Committees consisting of parents, community members, teachers, and administrators provide input regarding school improvement.

Parent Involvement Policy

Robinson High School understands the importance of involving parents and the community as a whole in promoting higher student achievement and general goodwill between the school and those it serves. Therefore, the school shall strive to develop and maintain the capacity for meaningful and productive parental and community involvement that will result in partnerships that are mutually beneficial to the school, students, parents, and the community. The school will provide the coordination, technical assistance, and other support necessary to assist in the planning and implementation of effective parent involvement activities to improve student academic achievement and school performance. To achieve such ends, Robinson High School will strive to:

1. Involve parents and the community as partners in collaboration, development, decision making, and review of the parent involvement policy, as well as programs associated with parental involvement, and other long-range goals of the school. Parent recommendations will be solicited through parent comments, surveys, meetings, etc. The parent involvement policy, which describes the means for carrying out the policy requirements, will be distributed to parents
2. Develop policies and programs that will promote parental involvement while taking into consideration cultural diversity.
3. Provide strategies encouraging parents on how to be partners in their child's education. Such strategies might incorporate developmentally appropriate learning activities in the home (i.e. ADE website tools, nutritional meal planning, etc.).
4. Coordinate and integrate parent involvement programs and activities by sharing the state of the school and an overview of what students will be learning, the forms of academic assessments used to measure student progress, and the proficiency levels students are expected to meet, and how parents can assist in making a difference in their child's education. This information and the curriculum in use at school can be found on the Pulaski County Special School District website (www.pcssd.org).
5. Ensure that information related to school and parent programs is sent to parents to the extent practical in a language parents can understand.
6. Pulaski County Special School District (PCSSD) provides training at least annually for volunteers who assist in an instructional program.
7. PCSSD provides two hours of professional opportunities for teachers concerning parental involvement.
8. PCSSD provides at least three hours of professional development opportunities for administrators concerning parental involvement.

To ensure the continued improvement of the school's parent/community involvement program, RHS will evaluate the effectiveness of parental involvement policies. The evaluation will examine the policy's effect on promoting higher student achievement and participation and whether there are barriers to greater participation by parents. These may include those who are economically disadvantaged, disabled, parents who have limited English proficiency, limited literacy, or any racial or ethnic minority background. The evaluation shall be accomplished during an annual meeting of parents and other community members, certified and classified staff, and members of the administration.

Parent Involvement Plan

Commitment to Parental Involvement

Joe T. Robinson High School recognizes that parents play a crucial role in their children's success in school and commits to encouraging parents to be full partners in the education of their children. We want to work as partners with parents to help all children excel.

The school has developed a parental involvement plan, as prescribed by Arkansas law and the rules of the Division of Elementary and Secondary Education,, but most importantly because we want to create a caring partnership to support our students. This plan, which is reviewed annually, reflects our school's commitment to building parental involvement through the following components; communicating about school programs and student progress, recruiting family volunteers, involving families with learning activities at home, including families in school-decision making, and collaborating with the community to coordinate resources and services.

Ways for the parent to become involved in the school and his/her child's education:

A vital part of the parental involvement program includes parents becoming actively involved. Here are a few ways we encourage parents to participate.

- PTO Activities
- Reviewing classwork and homework at home
- Volunteering at RHS
- Assisting teachers and office staff
- Chaperoning field trips
- Assisting with club activities
- Athletic Booster Club
- Band Booster Club
- Senior Moms
- Special Olympics
- School-Wide Fundraising

Recommended Role of the Parent, Student, Teacher, and School

The success of students, both personally and academically, is a primary concern of all faculty and staff at Robinson High School. For us to accomplish this common goal, all stakeholders should be striving to reach the same objective. The role of each set of stakeholders has been articulated below.

Parents should:

- See that their student is on time and attending school regularly
- Support the school discipline policy
- Establish a time for homework and review homework regularly
- Ensure there is a quiet place to study
- Encourage their child's efforts and be available for questions
- Stay aware of what their child is learning
- Read with their child and let your child see you read
- Ask their student open-ended questions

Students should:

- Attend school regularly
- Come to school each day with necessary supplies
- Complete and return homework assignments
- Observe regular study hours
- Conform to the rules of school conduct

Teachers/School should:

- Provide appropriate and meaningful instruction and assignments
- Regularly communicate with and provide necessary assistance to parents so that they can help with assignments
- Encourage students and parents by providing information about student progress
- Engage students in the learning process
- Provide an environment that allows for positive communication between the parents, students, and teachers

Our School has an open-door policy for parental involvement. We welcome suggestions and comments to help us improve.
