

Your college and career readiness journey

Some of the most important college and career conversations happen at home. In the spirit of the holiday season, we'd like to invite you to use this list of "Dinner Table Questions" to help kick off those conversations!

- Is there a company or brand you really love? Is there a job there you could see yourself in? How can you research job openings there?
- Is there a career you're already thinking about pursuing? What do you need to achieve to enter that field?
- What type of career do you expect will be relevant for the long term? What type of career do you think will NOT be relevant in the next 25 years?
- What interests you about the world or how something in the world works? How could your interest eventually lead to a career in this subject?
- Is there a skill you have always wanted to learn? How could you start learning this skill in the next year?
- Do you have access to any tools that can help you explore different careers or connect with a professional in a field you're interested in?
