WELCOME to Garretttsville

Welcome to the historic Village of Garretttsville! Located at the intersection of State Routes 82 and 88, our charming village is one of the best-kept secrets of Portage County. Garretttsville offers the charm of a quaint, small town blended with conveniences found in our larger neighbors.

2020 has been a interesting year as we, and the rest of the world have been dealing with the corona virus, but as we have proven in the past, Garretttsville is strong and we will not let this episode in our history get us down.

For a town of our size, we have so much to offer residents and visitors alike. Looking to escape to the country for a day of recreation? Garretttsville boasts a fabulous golf course, bowling alley, roller skating, three village parks and a three-screen movie theater. If you're looking for great local food, visit one of Garretttsville's many restaurants, ranging from convenient quick-service to fine dining; there are options for practically any taste.

Shoppers from across the state and beyond love to visit the various specialty stores of our Historic Main Street, and the shops in Garretttsville's two shopping plazas.

If you are looking for fun things to do, visit our Chamber of Commerce website for a calendar of events. Unfortunately some of our events have been cancelled or rescheduled. however we are still hosting Classic Car Cruise Nights once a month through September and have added several other events through the end of the year.

Garretttsville is a great place to live and raise a family, whether you want to purchase a home or build in one of our fine developments or even rent. Home sales are up and new home construction is at an all time high. I attribute that to the fact that the cost of living in Garretttsville is affordable. I have been told in the past that people move to Garretttsville because they can purchase a home of more value for the money with lower overhead, but most of all they come here to experience the historic charm.

Our education system at the J.A. Garfield Local Schools is of high quality and has earned a state rating of Excellent for many years. Our safety services include a full-time Police Department, Fire Department and Emergency Medical Service. We have two medical centers that give us a wide variety of physicians.

Did I mention that we have a lot to offer? Why take my word for it? Give us a try, come to visit and take a look for yourself. Experience the friendliness and charm of Garretttsville, Ohio.

WE'RE OPEN FOR BUSINESS: Come Grow With Us!

As a small community with a big commitment to business support, Garretttsville offers businesses of all sizes the best of both worlds. Every business is a big fish in our small but very well-appointed pond.

Retail and restaurant businesses have a variety of districts to choose from so you can place your business in the area that best matches the character of your store, be it charmingly quaint, no-nonsense specialty, or one-stop-shopping. The active Chamber of Commerce and Village Event committees keep the village hopping with festivals, car shows, socials, and expos, guaranteeing a steady stream of out-of-towners to supplement local customers.

Professionals will enjoy the comfortable office spaces combined with easy access to the major courthouses and hospitals and plenty of opportunity to entertain clients without having to battle city traffic to grab some lunch.

Industrial businesses have a place here as well. Garretttsville is an industrial nexus, located at the intersection of two state routes and convenient to the interstates and the Ohio Turnpike. The Industrial District houses the various factories and industrial companies that Garretttsville is proud to host. With a significant labor pool within walking distance, and plenty more just an easy commute away, Garretttsville is a great place for an industrial business to call home. While many plants and factories end up in a pretty unpleasant environment, you and your employees can step out the door of your establishment and enjoy a refreshing, productivity-enhancing lunchtime stroll on the Headwaters Trail or go the two blocks into town for a meal at one of the local restaurants, pizza places, or sandwich shops.

The area is central to pools of skilled and white-collar employees as well, including Maplewood Career Center, Kent State University Management School, and Hiram College.

Garretttsville's solid Midwestern values make this a place where you don't have to sacrifice quality of life to operate a quality business. Our business owners and employees are a part of our community and we'll do our best to make you feel welcome.

GARRETTSVILLE WAS HOME TO RECORD SETTING RED OAK

GARRETTSVILLE – Most people who have grown up in the Garrettsville area know that the Lifesaver was invented here. We were known for producing the most maple syrup in the world and the great train robbery of 1935, but few people are aware that Garrettsville had the largest Red Oak tree in the World. Yes, the world!

The tree was located on Water Street and owned by Richard Lawless. It reigned as the largest Red Oak in the Nation for some time, finally being dethroned by a tree in New York state in 1987. At the time it was the biggest Red Oak in the world. The largest Red Oak in the world today is supposed to be in Russia. Currently there are co-champion Red Oaks nationally, one tree in Virginia and one in Ashtabula. Both have scored just a few points higher than the massive Oak of Garrettsville. The tree was roughly 8 ½ feet in diameter, 90 feet tall, and had a crown spread of over 90 feet as well. The fact that this tree grew to this size at all is truly amazing in itself.

In Ohio, prior to the first settlement in Marietta, 95 % of Ohio was covered by forest. Maple, Beech, and Ash dominated the northeast while Oaks and Hickories were more pervasive everywhere else. By 1910, there was only 10% of forest cover left in Ohio. Now it is estimated that around 35% of the state has forest cover. However, Ohio has very few if any virgin trees remaining. That is what made this tree so special. It was one of the last virgin trees not cut down as Ohio was settled in the 1800's and early 1900's.

Sadly, the tree, due to age and decay had to be cut down years ago, and up until this past April, the massive stump remained.

In September of 1940, American Forests (then The American Forestry Association) launched a campaign to locate the largest living specimens of American trees. The National Register of Champion Trees started out as a competition, a national hunt to discover and preserve the largest specimens of American tree species. The campaign to find America's largest trees grew from a desire to protect and preserve them for future generations. The trees people hunted for were scattered through forest and field, along roadways, and in backyards. There are specific criteria involved in determining if a tree qualifies as a potential champion. It is based on a point system and factors such as circumference, height, and crown spread are measured. These measurements are then added together to get a total point value. The highest point total is crowned champion. The tree in Garrettsville earned 440 points. The current co-champions have earned 446 and 556 points respectively. Ohio is currently home to fourteen species of national champion trees. The Ohio Department of Natural Resources has a link on its web site which list all the state champion species and the county they are located. Another local connection to big trees is Davy Tree, located in Kent. Davy has been a sponsor of the national big tree program for the past twenty-five years.

If you want to want to see some big trees, one must visit Congaree National Park in South Carolina. Within the park they have six national champions and 25 state champions. It is quite a place if you like big trees!

JA GARFIELD LOCAL SCHOOLS

The James A. Garfield Schools are the cornerstone of an excellent community. The schools have become the foundation and reflection of a community with high expectations. We only achieve great things because of the support of our community and our Core Beliefs.

Each of our Core Beliefs was defined by our staff and we work to bring these values to life each day.

These are our Core Beliefs. They are the essence of how we see ourselves. They become 'activated' in situations within our schools and community on a daily basis as we work and interact with people and lead students. The nine Core Beliefs of the James A. Garfield Schools are the foundation of what makes our district the best place to live, work and learn.

If you would like to receive a Core Belief card as a member of the community, please contact Superintendent Ted Lysiak and one will be delivered to you personally. You can request a card by calling the board office at 330.527.4336 or contacting our superintendent, Mr. Lysiak, directly (cell: 216.534.7413, email: tlysiak@jagschools.org).

JAG - The Perfect Balance of Arts, Athletics and Academics

For the past two decades, James A. Garfield Schools have been recognized as one of the premier public school districts in the region with an high-caliber education and atmosphere.

Recently JAG was one of only 250 schools in North America named to the AP District Honor Roll. At JAG, students receive a stellar education at an amazing value. When coupled with an academic program that has received numerous distinguished recognitions from the State of Ohio, Garfield's accomplished arts program and extensive athletic opportunities make it one of the preeminent schools in the region.

The JAG All Sports Boosters have raised hundreds of thousands of dollars to support athletic facility upgrades. Such an active support group allows all of our student athletes to participate in any sport at no cost. Our Band Boosters have mirrored these efforts for students with an interest in the fine and performing arts. The work and dedication of these two organizations have paid great dividends for our students and community and are a critical piece of what makes the James A. Garfield Local School District the perfect balance of Arts, Athletics and Academics.

GARRETTSVILLE REOPENS AMIDST ONGOING PANDEMIC

ESTELLE R. BROWN | WEEKLY VILLAGER

GARRETTSVILLE – If necessity is the mother of invention, then we're entering into an accelerated Age of Innovation. As local storefronts and services reopen to the public amidst an ongoing pandemic, they are devising new ways to keep employees and patrons safe while getting back to business.

While state and federal officials provide specific reopening protocols for salons, barbershops, restaurants and medical offices, many remaining retail businesses and service entities must work out their own approach as they emerge from lockdown.

Each reopening is customized to best suit clientele's interests and each business's ability to operate within a wide array of medical, financial and practical unknowns. As Jonathan Harris, Director of Portage County District Library (PCDL) put it, "It's not every day that you get to reinvent library services for the community."

GARRETTSVILLE LIBRARY

Speaking of the library, June 1 marked its first day of "contactless curbside pickup" in Stage II in its phased approach to PCDL's return-to-service plan. Two weeks prior, it had instituted Stage I, consisting of restocking Library Express pickup lockers with books in Mantua and Hiram.

During this Stage II phase, patrons can call ahead at 330-527-4378 or place holds online (portagelibrary.org) to reserve books, DVDs, audiobooks, CDs, etc. Staff members are back at work full-time and can answer questions, provide recommendations and otherwise provide reader advisory services by phone according to previous hours of operation (10am-8pm M-W, 10am-6pm F, 9am-5pm Sat).

Reserved library items will be placed in a paper bag labeled with the patron's name and can be picked up from a table in the front lobby for a period of three weeks (extended from the usual two-week borrowing period).

Anyone who has been holding on to borrowed library materials since the statewide shutdown should feel free to return these items to the library. No late fees will be charged, Harris said. At this point, all returned items are being placed in isolation for 72 hours, according to CDC guidelines. No further sanitation steps are being taken at this time but could change, pending evolving recommendations.

Meanwhile, no programming has been scheduled at the local library and there is no target date set yet for Stage III, when doors will reopen for people to browse the shelves, share computer usage or otherwise interact inside the library building. When these services resume, Harris said that new health protocols will be in place, including protective barriers, one-way aisles of foot traffic, face masks and hand sanitizer.

While workers are required to wear face masks, guidelines for patrons are still under discussion by library administration, Harris indicated. According to his point of view, based on best practices for public health, "Patrons can pick up holds without wearing a mask but if they want to enter the library and interact in shared spaces, they should wear a mask."

VILLAGE BOOKSTORE

Heading to Main Street, Ellen Eckhouse's Village Bookstore is also partially reopened. While her doors are closed to casual browsing throughout the used book store, Eckhouse is in the shop every day but Monday, providing takeout/delivery services.

Similar to the library service plan, customers can call 330-527-3010 or send a private message through the Village Bookstore Facebook page or website to pre-order a book. This mode of operation has been in place since April.

"I would love to throw open my doors now and welcome people in to shop the shelves, but this may not be the right time for us and our customers to be safe under those conditions," Eckhouse said. "Since I can't spray my books with Lysol without damaging them, I am willing to work hard to streamline options for customers with takeout, delivery, recommendations, Zoom book club meetings and maybe even private shopping by appointment."

She also is offering $1 books and book genre mystery bags out on a bench in front of the store. Until there are clear procedural guidelines or a vaccine in place, Eckhouse says the bookstore will continue to improvise and operate as safely as possible.

and appointment-only sales, Bruce Abraham partially reopened Charles Auto Family on May 4. After using the shutdown period to regroup and determine best practices going forward, all staff members came back to work full-time as of June 2. Business has been so brisk, Abraham says he may be hiring additional talent soon.

One month after reopening, Abraham reported, "We've had one of our better months for a long, long time; due to pent-up demand and a great staff working real hard to follow all the sanitation and social distancing guidelines and updating our online options. Our disinfecting and social distancing protocols make people more comfortable doing business with us. We disinfect every car before and after service and test drives. We disinfect door handles and bathrooms regularly throughout the day. Most of us don't like wearing masks but we can put up with it to keep everyone safe."

Recognizing that 'the new normal' is a moving target, Abraham said that he and his staff had to construct a way forward during this ongoing pandemic. "In order to be successful, I need to respond to my customers and their needs. People are afraid of the unknown so we're doing our best to provide a safe pathway through it. Today's environment dictates what's right."

VILLAGER EMPORIUM

Located on the corner of Main Street and SR 88, the Villager Emporium reopened in May with adjusted shopping hours (Tues, Weds, Fri & Sat 10 – 3) that will continue through the summer. Michelle Zivoder, owner of the store said that during the mandatory shutdown a lot of time was spent cleaning, painting and re-staging her shop. CDC Guidelines are being followed, the store is heavily sanitized each evening and throughout the day, masks are required to be worn by our customers. "We have a high-risk family member, so we are taking this very seriously, but we also realize that we have to make a living and need to get back to business", stated Zivoder. In addition to the store being open, their on-line presence at villageremporium.com is being updated and items can be arranged for pick-up at the door. "As many of the other businesses are doing, we are adapting daily and look forward to seeing our customers".

These are just a few examples of how Garrettsville's business/service sector is re-emerging from the COVID-19 shutdown that paralyzed life as we knew it earlier this Spring. As we approach summertime, we're enjoying the return of Garrettsville Farmers' Market at the Old Buckeye Block downtown every Thursday afternoon, June 4 through August 27. As additional reopenings roll out in the village, be sure to support your local business owners and neighbors as they innovate ways forward through these trying times.

EAGLE CREEK

Streams, creeks and rivers are often called the “lifeblood” of our planet. Rightly so, there is no denying water is essential for the biological aspect of our lives and the lives of all living things that share this world; even so it attends the varying other needs of our existence, often in a more intangible manifestation.

Since humankind has existed, establishing communities in proximity to water has been a necessity and typically fundamental to success. The peoples who lived near and eventually settled this area no less followed that instinctual drive to congregate near a convenient and seemingly renewable source of fresh water when they happened upon Eagle Creek.

Prior to and during European settlement, Native American tribes such as the Seneca led by Chief Big Son undoubtedly frequented the creek during travels between their villages near present day

Streetsboro and around Nelson Ledges State Park. By the time settlers of the Western Reserve, such as John Garrett, arrived at Eagle Creek, which flows through the heart of our village, then known as Silver Creek, met those basic and fundamental needs, providing fresh, clean water for everyday use and, with the help of gravity, energy to power the local grist mill.

The name of the creek likely changed around the mid-20th century when stream names were ascribed to the overall length of the watercourse and the size of its watershed; maps from the mid-19th century label it as Silver Creek, Eagle Creek and even the Mahoning River. One cannot even guess what the native peoples called it, as they rarely named geographical features at all. Regardless, while the need for harnessing the creek's energy was a prime mover for early settlers of Garretttsville, there is little doubt that the innate beauty and soothing quality of water in motion was no less admired than it is today.

While the grindstones of the mill may be silent, the roar of rushing water onto the rocks below can power the spirit for those searching for something to relieve the stresses of everyday life. Eagle Creek's headwaters begin approximately six miles northwest of the village, just south of the intersection of Alpha and Wakefield Roads in the form of small inconspicuous wetlands, at present buffered and protected by deciduous forests.

Meandering south and east, this tiny almost imperceptible movement of water gains strength from numerous seeps, springs and other small streams. Black Creek to the south and Silver Creek to the north bolster the flow as it winds its way through bottom lands and marshes, meeting with the main branch in secluded woodland settings.

Silver Creek 1950's

Relatively secret and majestic landmarks such as “Forty-foot Falls”, perhaps inspiration for “The Bridge” written by Garrettsville native and poet Hart Crane, flank the creek valley including several beautiful outcroppings of Sharon Conglomerate sandstone standing sentinel over its march.

For thousands of years following the last continental ice age, the waters of Eagle Creek have steadily flowed past Native American encampments, through our back yards, woodlots and farm fields almost unencumbered save by fallen timbers or the occasional beaver dam until reaching Garrettsville. Slowed to nearly a stop by the arch dam above the falls, the landscape hidden beneath these waters is undoubtedly one which few if anyone alive today have truly gazed upon, a scene that perhaps one day will be revealed. As many dams are being removed around the region due to safety risks, lack of necessity, costly repairs and to reestablish ecological services, communities may be pleasantly surprised to witness an even more beautiful view, one seen by our native peoples and early settlers.

Presently however, the experience which Eagle Creek affords both visitors and local community members in undiminished. Behind the brick and wood facades of Main Street a secret place awaits sojourners and residents alike, seeking a place to reflect and find respite. Atop the boardwalk spanning the creek one is afforded a magnificent view of the cataracts below as they cascade onto the sandstone bedrock, terminating into swirling pools and eddies that harbor many aquatic creatures.. and the occasional blue heron.

Fish such as fantail darters, western black-nose dace and golden redhorse find refuge in the pools and riffles from the hunting eyes of birds like the kingfisher or the stoic blue heron. Tree swallows dart and dive low over the water in an aerial pursuit of emerging mayflies and stoneflies. An observant onlooker might catch a glimpse of a mink seeking out frogs and crayfish, scurrying about the crevices of high-walled ledges wreathed in the verdant colors of lichens, mosses and ferns. A chance encounter with an otter or two bobbing about in their playful fashion on the hunt for mussels buried in the silty deposits of the creek bed is not an impossibility either.

And while for the observer it may seem as though the story of Eagle Creek ends in this picturesque image within the confines of a beautiful country town, its journey has barely begun.

Less than a mile further downstream its waters join Camp Creek before entering the Eagle Creek State Nature Preserve. Comprised of 483 acres, many different habitats are preserved and accessible via four miles of hiking trails, home to throngs of living creatures and one of the best spring wildflower display in our state.

For another ten- and one-half miles it continues gradually southeast less observed by human eyes until its eventual confluence with the Mahoning River. Yet it is within the surrounding villages such as Garrettsville, that the source for the continued beauty and sustainability of Eagle Creek resides.

The people, the visitors, the passersby that reap what Eagle Creek has to offer ultimately reserve the responsibility to safeguard the continual flow of its rewards for generations to come.

The next time you visit its banks, take a moment to observe with all your senses; contemplate not only how the creek affects your life but how your life affects the creek. Discover, study and respect the lifeblood which flows through and sustains our community, for what we invest into its waters will assuredly return.

THE LOWER LIMB PRESERVATION GROUP:

Providing Care and Treatment of the Ankle, Foot, and Related Areas of the Leg

Dear Patient,

For nearly 30 years, your physicians, who are now part of The Lower Limb Preservation Group, have provided Northeast Ohio and the tri-county area with superior foot and ankle surgical care. In addition, we are pleased to announce the return of Dr. James Canterbury from his military service in Afghanistan, who is available by appointment.

It has always been our goal to improve what we do and we want you to know we are here for you. If you experience a lower extremity injury or wound involving the ankle, foot, or the soft tissue associated with them, our physicians are here to serve and care for you. We are on staff as several of the local hospitals in Portage and Summit Counties and we also have offices in both Portage and Stark Counties.

Please contact the physicians of The Lower Limb Preservation Group if you...

- Are in the ER with foot, ankle or related injuries.
- Need additional or follow up care after your ER visit regarding an ankle or foot fracture or trauma or soft tissue injury of the leg that are related to the ankle or foot.
- Are in need of complete care for foot, ankle and related area issues.
- Have acute or chronic wounds, ulcerations, skin or toenail disorders.
- Are in need of TAR (Total Ankle Joint Replacement)

- But please remember to call 9-1-1 with any critical emergencies! -

Lower Limb
Preservation
Group
