Science Bridges

Almost as spectacular as the play was Mr. Pendleton's bridge construction project. Each year students in the sixth grade designed and construct bridges out of balsa wood to compete to support the greatest weight. The project was a great success -- but how could it not be -- if your bridge carried a great deal of weight you did well, if not, you were able the watch a model bridge explode into pieces-- nothing if not dramatic and suspenseful learning. (No animals or commuters were harmed in this project)

Poetry Gets Press

Students in Mrs Decocco's language arts class presented poems they have been writing to a packed cafeteria a few weeks ago that did not escape the notice of the press. Congratulations to all the students see this week's Spectator for the full story!

Have a safe and relaxing vacation !
