

Meet the moment in education with character and care.

Lead a school community where students and staff thrive.

This past year principals have shown time and again their leadership, resilience, and dedication to their students' success. To support them as they prepare for the year ahead, WGU Teachers College is offering an online Character Education Professional Learning (CEPL) program to help principals and teachers create a school culture that promotes the character and wellbeing of their staff and students.

Choose character education professional learning for educational leaders (CEPL-E).

WGU is offering a FREE one-year CEPL-E program to 100 principals. Register Now. Principals will develop the capacity to build a customized school-wide culture of character to enhance student learning. They'll earn valuable micro-credentials designed for educational leaders and engage with fellow principals and character education experts through the CEPL-E online community and a series of live events.

Envision the optimal school culture.

Throughout the program principals will reflect on virtue ethics and character to envision a school culture that celebrates, cultivates, and values teachers and students of character. To help them fully integrate character into their school, each principal will select 1-3 teachers to earn micro-credentials in the CEPL-T program, at the low cost of $250 per teacher. Together principals and teachers will leave their programs ready to enhance teaching, learning and school community through character.

Realize positive program outcomes.

From the start of the CEPL-E program, principals will have access to valuable tools and a national support network to implement character education in their school. They'll gain skills and knowledge to share with their staff and put into practice immediately. Principals will be equipped to:

- Develop both on-site and online strategies for building a culture of character.
- Apply principles of character throughout their school community.
- Guide and support teachers to create a school environment in which every child thrives socially and academically.
- Incorporate character education into the curriculum, school, community, and beyond.

Principals can continue their learning and work in character education long after the one-year program through ongoing support and conversations with colleagues and experts around the country in the CEPL-E online community.
