Note: I highly recommend you keep a daily diary or a weekly journal in Chinese language. Whenever you want to express yourself in Chinese during the summer, try to write three to five sentences down for each journal entry and keep rethinking, rebuilding and revising what you have written. The goal is not to achieve perfection, but to breathe in the language and to grow out of the immersion experience. When we see each other again, if you like and if you feel comfortable, show me your GREAT work of journals.
