The Lyndonville Central School District is a small rural school district located in Orleans County, serving the towns of Yates, Carlton, Ridgeway, and Gaines. The schools are located in the village of Lyndonville (approximate population of 4,105), which is located midway between Rochester and Niagara Falls. A fruit-growing region known especially for its apples, the rural setting offers a variety of recreational activities including hunting, fishing, boating and camping. Residents are employed by several small industries in the Lyndonville, Medina and Albion area, or travel to Rochester, Buffalo or Lockport for work.
