Allison Bonacci

Director of Education

For over 13 years, Allison Bonacci has presented cyber safety presentations to students in grades K-12 and facilitated seminars for parents, teachers, and school administrators. Allison is passionate about cyber safety and protecting students while using technology.

In 2009, Allison became acutely aware of the dangers posed to children like her own and started educating students and parents. As a mother of three, Allison knows firsthand the challenges parents face when trying to protect their children online, and the importance of being involved in their digital use. Cyber Safety Consulting strives to educate students, and provide parents and educators with the necessary tools to help their students navigate the online world.
