Elementary Students to Become Published Authors

Many students in the elementary are in the process of becoming a published author. Through a program called Student Treasures many students have started writing their own books. Lower grade levels are writing a themed classroom book with contributions from all students. Upper elementary are writing their books based on brainstorming ideas that each grade level has chosen. Fifth graders are writing fractured fairy tale books. Delani Grauman says, "It is very exciting and fun to know that I am going to publish a book". Writing the books is a fun way to meet Common Core Standards, improve critical writing skills and motivate students to write. Drafts will be sent to the publishing company in November. The books will be available for purchase in December. If you would like to check out the program go to www.studenttreasures.com.

Preschool Openings Available

The Elementary School is seeking preschool aged children to attend our new Great Start Readiness Program (GSRP). GSRP follows the Elementary school schedule on Mondays-Thursdays, meals are provided and transportation is available. Students will explore pre-reading, math and science skills, use language for a variety of purposes, including music and movement, investigate problem solving and develop social skills.

This is a free preschool program available to those preschoolers who qualify. Children must be 4 years old on or before November 1st. There are several other qualifications, so call the GSRP classroom at 628-2131 ext. 1310 to ask for more information. We'd love to have your preschooler join us!
