RAILROADER

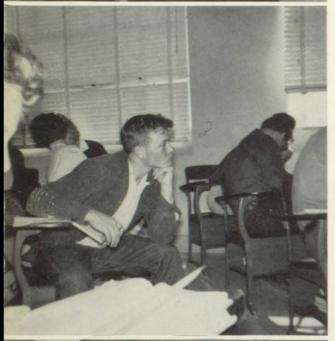

FOR

From the shrill early-morning ringing the alarm clock to the final bell at for o'clock, the day in the life of a student E. H. S. is busy, busy, busy. The routine familiar. The student rushes around to g to school on time. (And ultimately en up forgetting an assignment that must h turned in). His methods of getting to scho are varied, but efficient. If he's athleti he rides a bicycle; if he wants to get fros bitten, he walks; if he's not athletic ar doesn't want to get frost-bitten---in oth words --- if he's lazy, he rides in a car; as if he wants to get bounced and jostled, I rides a school bus. After sitting through morning of classes --- some bearable, son unbearable, and, believe it or not, son interesting --- he makes the mad dash f the cafeteria to stand in line for the lo wait.

VORD

After consuming his food at the quickest rate he possibly can, he rushes back to an afternoon of classes and waits impatiently for four o'clock. Of course, when that bell finally rings, it doesn't necessarily mean that he can go home. For now is the time for a committee meeting for this or a committee meeting for that to get under way. Finally when everything is under control, or everyone just gives up, he can go home -or to the drug store for a coke. Thus ends the normal (?) school day in the life of an E. H. S. student. Of course, there are many days that are filled with special activities such as peprallies, games, debates, suppers, dances, programs, and carnivals which we couldn't get along without. Our school days are active and hectic, and we seldom really know what's going on. But would we trade places with anyone? Of course not!!

A problem solved; a job well done; a goal set for the future; surely these are some of the most satisfying experiences of each day. Thoughtful consideration of these values may help to prompt that forward step which, when guided by the wisdom of yesterday, energized by the light of today, and inspired by a vision of tomorrow will lead into useful and satisfying accomplishment. ying accomplishment.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

The seniors of '61 will long remember September 1957, for that was when we entered the halls of Ellis High School as freshmen. To some, the halls and classrooms were a familiar sight; to others, they were strange and unfamiliar. But we all had something in common. Each one of us was entering into a phase of our life that was to prepare us for our future. Here, in this building, where we were to share victory and defeat, we would learn and be influenced, and perhaps we would teach and influence others. We were all members of a class which, for the next four years, would be working together and having good times together. We were all members of a group with one common goal--graduation.

Our freshman class began working to make money for the prom we were to give in the spring of 1960 and for the much-anticipated sneak we were to take in the spring of 1961. Our first money-making project was our Hobo Day. We did all kinds of odd jobs from raking leaves to washing windows. To wind up our day of work, we had a party to celebrate. This was the first of many gettogethers just for fun.

As sophomores, we were allowed to sell popcorn and candied apples at the football and basketball games. Every night that there was a home game, a group of hard-working (and hungry) sophomores met in the home ec. room and made the food for the night's game.

With the arrival of our junior year, we saw ahead of us the responsibilities of selling pop, candy bars, and hot dogs at the concession stand. Each year we worked hard trying to build the best float for the homecoming parade. This year we did just that. Our float, "Let's Blast 'Em" took first prize.

Then there was the junior play "Pure As the Driven Snow." Everyone worked hard building the set, selling the tickets, and rehearsing parts. Of course, the night of the performance, we had a nice little rain storm which kept about half of the audience away. But the show must go on! And it did, in spite of a leaking stage roof, a stubborn light that insisted on exploding, and "boos" from the audience--planned of course. Everyone agreed that this was the best play ever presented at EHS. At least the Juniors did.

The beginning of our senior year found us eagerly looking forward to our trip to Denver; it also found us about $300 short of cash. But never fear; as the saying goes, "where there's a will, there's a way." One way or another, the seniors will get to Denver. We were permitted to sell hot dogs and coffee at the football games. That small income helped somewhat.

In the fall we gave our senior play entitled "Many Moons." This year the weather was very kind to us, and it didn't rain or snow or anything.

Thus, as our four years of high school draw to a close, and graduation night gets closer, we think back to that first day in September of 1957 and how we have progressed and changed over the years. High school has left memories for each and every one of us, and on commencement night, as we receive our diplomas and appear before the school for the last time as graduates, each one of us will carry his own special memories into a bright future.

FAREWELL

As another school years draws to an end, the long awaited time when that familiar four o'clock bell will ring for the last time gets closer and closer. With the arrival of that anticipated spring day, the students of E. H. S. will gather up their scattered belongings—a loaned book, a lost slide rule, or a forgotten costume for a play—and walk happily down the halls of E. H. S., through the front door, and out into the future. The seniors will be stepping into a whole new way of life; many will be starting on a job; others will be making plans for college. The underclassmen will be stepping into a summer of fun, work, and relaxation, with the knowledge that, come next fall, they'll be back in their places at E. H. S. But all the students who walk out that door will have a common understanding. Everyone will carry with him memories of the school year. Many reflections of the past months will be amusing; many will be sentimental; none will be forgotten. So then, as the year comes to a close, we ponder these thoughts. Here, through this door is a meaningful step in our lives. This act of walking out of school for the last time signifies all that we have worked for and accomplished during the past months, and all that we can hope for in the future.
