Lindsey, attached is the information you requested when we spoke on the phone. I love the benefit that you can be involved without being a plaintiff or defendant in a court case. The proposal can be a little confusing, so feel free to call me if you have questions. Right now they are just asking districts to provide some information about their individual district situation.

This is being sent to 46 school districts representing over 50,000 students that I've been told are interested in hearing more about a potential lawsuit. Reply to me if you no longer want to receive information about a potential lawsuit. We had a zoom meeting last Friday with interested districts and a couple of attorneys, and they are providing the document attached for your review. They would like you to answer the questions they included in the document, and then you can provide those answers to the attorneys (Jerry Stocks and Shane Mendenhall) who are included in this email. They will review responses, and I assume they will need another zoom meeting with interested parties to discuss the next steps. Several districts are ready to act quickly, but the attorneys need to gather as much information as possible to make the best case before anything is filed. Just a reminder to those worried about spending taxpayer dollars on this, you could have a community member or group pay the fee on behalf of the school district, so no tax dollars are spent.

I have also provided the district enrollments based on the last posted report card for every district, therefore the attorneys have that information already from a consistent and verified source.
