Newark Families and Staff,

Congratulations and Thank You to our 7th and 8th graders and parents for a successful Bake Sale and Sloppy Joe dinner at the Winter Festival on Saturday. All proceeds will go to decrease the cost of their Springfield trips coming up this spring.

K - 4 Holiday Concert is this Thursday! This is a sold out event! We will have seating by families who have responded to the RSVP. Masks are required on Thursday. PTO will have a 50/50 Raffle, Santa will pay us a visit and some other surprises in our 1970's version of game night for this year's program. Thank you to Mrs. Hager and the staff for all of your hard work! This event will be live on our YouTube page.

Our giving trees are set up at both schools and the Newark BP. The community can purchase the items and return them with the ornament to either school by December 13th. We will then pass the items on to the families. Thank you in advance for your support.

It's time for our 5 Things! Our 5 Things are: Coat, hat, gloves, snow pants, and winter boots. We recess outside every day (three times a day!) and we want our students to be warm. Snow Pants keep their clothes dry and when we start sledding, an extra pair of socks would be great too to keep our feet dry when we come back inside.

There were many changes to our calendar the next few weeks. Speech Contest, Rosati's time to dine and the holiday store - all changed dates as noted. Thanks to all for being flexible and understanding!

Don't forget to download our Mobile App and check out the website! Have a great week!

Partners in Education,

Mrs. Turman & Mrs. Rowe

How to Boost Your Energy

(revised from "How to Boost Your Energy" by Vanessa Milne, RD.com, September 2021, pp. 21-24)

Carol Heffernan, a 43-year-old from Oshkosh, Wisconsin, regularly felt worn out from working, shuttling her two kids to school and playdates, and taking care of housework. But when COVID-19 hit and the kids were suddenly home all day and learning remotely, the run-of-the-mill weariness quickly turned into full-on exhaustion.

"All the extra responsibility and the mental load—it all just added up," she says. "I felt grumpy and tired, and it wasn't due to lack of sleep."

If there's one thing many of us have in common, it's that we're tired. Doctors even have a name for it: "tired all the time," or TATT for short. More sleep is not necessarily the answer; nearly 25% of people who get seven or more hours of sleep at night report they still awaken feeling tired most days.

A few weeks after her fatigue set in, Heffernan decided to drop everything and go for a walk, which she hadn't done since the pandemic began. "I just wanted to be by myself", she says. "I needed a break." When she returned, she felt recharged and decided to make a habit of it.

Turns out recent research done at the University of Georgia found that just ten minutes of low- or moderate-intensity exercise gave study participants a noticeable energy boost. Another study revealed that participants who committed to working out for 20 minutes three times a week increased their energy levels by 20 percent in six weeks.

Dr. Yufang Lin, an integrative medicine physician at the Cleveland Clinic's Center for Integrative and Lifestyle Medicine explains that "when we don't work out regularly, our muscles can become weakened, so when we do use them in everyday activity, we're more tired." At the cellular level, the mitochondria, or "powerhouse" of the cell, grow more powerful and numerous after aerobic exercise, providing a continuous source of increased energy.

Here are some other strategies to try for increasing your energy:

15 Minutes Off, 90 Minutes On

Dane Jensen, CEO of Third Factor, a coaching company that helps people perform better under pressure, states, "Getting into a rhythm of periods of exertion and rest enables people to stay energized over the day." He recommends a 15 minute break every 90 minutes, suggesting choosing breaks from four categories: physical (walking or stretching), cognitive (crosswords or Sudoku), emotional (phoning a loved one), and spiritual (be involved in a religious practice). Jensen reinforces that breaks need to be intentional and need to be spend on something that will actually give you energy. 15 off/90 on is not feasible in all situations, but tweaking this idea to work in your situation can give a positive result.

Make More Red Blood Cells

Fatigue is often related to not having enough of two key nutrients: iron and vitamin B12. Both of these nutrients are necessary to make red blood cells. "When there are not enough red blood cells, less oxygen gets carried to the cells to allow them to generate energy, which causes fatigue", says Dr. Lin. Red meat and shellfish are excellent sources of both of these nutrients so those who do not eat these items are at a higher risk of deficiencies. A blood test can reveal if such deficiencies exist. Supplements or diet adjustment can treat this.

Don't Assume Mental Health

Some people are genetically predisposed to depression, and others develop it as a result of difficult circumstances. Rates of depression has tripled in the United States during the pandemic.

Chronic fatigue or feeling as if you are unable to complete daily activities because of excessive tiredness could be a sign that you may be suffering from depression. Other symptoms can include loss of appetite, irritability, and lack of enjoyment in activities which used to bring satisfaction. Ask your health care provider for a mental-health screening. Talk-therapy can help, as can antidepressants.

Be Careful with Simple Carbs

When your body digests food, it is turned into glucose, which circulates to every organ and cell in your body. Everyone's blood sugar naturally fluctuates during this process and when it is low, you can feel sluggish. One way to keep your blood sugar consistent is to eat a meal or snack every two to three hours. Remember that what you eat can also affect your energy levels. Consuming simple carbohydrates (juice, candy, white bread, soda, baked goods) will lead to a rapid increase in blood sugar to which your body responds by producing insulin to drive the glucose into the cells, which makes your blood sugar drop, causing fatigue. A meal or snack of protein or complex carbohydrates (whole grains, non-starchy vegetables) which are digested more slowly than simple carbs, will give you a steadier blood sugar and thus more energy.

It Could Be a Condition

If you've been unusually tired for over a month, ask your doctor whether an underlying problem could be behind it. One common cause is sleep apnea, which affects over 20 % of Americans. This condition causes breathing to stop and start throughout the night, rousing sufferers from deep sleep multiple times at night. Untreated, this can contribute to cardiovascular disease and diabetes. It can be treated with a machine that pushes pressurized air into the nose or mouth during the night to make sure the airway stays open. Another potential cause could be hypothyroidism, affecting about 5% of the population (most commonly women over 60). This results when the thyroid produces too few hormones. Other symptoms of this are weight gain, slow movement and speech, and sensitivity to cold. It can be treated with medication.

60-second energy boosts

1. Drink peppermint tea

A study published in the North American Journal of Psychology found that sniffing peppermint helped reduce fatigue while driving. Another study found that those who drink peppermint tea are more alert and complete mental tasks faster.

2. Open the blinds

Exposure to natural sunlight, especially upon awakening, can help suppress melatonin, the chemical in your body that causes sleepiness.

3. Take deep breaths

Stress can cause us to breathe a bit shallower which can decrease the amount of oxygen that reaches the cells. To counteract this, try breathing in through your nose for four seconds, holding your breath for four seconds, then slowly exhaling for four seconds. Do this for several minutes to get the best results.

4. Chew sugarless gum

Studies have shown that chewing gum increases alertness. American soldiers during WWI were issued gum to help them focus.

5. Sing along to a song

Listening to music can increase levels of serotonin and oxytocin ("happy chemicals") and belting out lyrics makes you breathe deeper, taking in more oxygen, boosting energy.

Giving Tree

The Holiday season is around the corner and for many of us is merry making time.

However, for some families, this is not the case. Every year, Newark District #66 extends the offer to families in need to list basic winter wishes for their children. Our school staff, outside agencies and PTO are involved in purchasing/donating funds for our families. This year, we are again extending the offer to our school community by setting up a Giving Tree, allowing everyone a chance to give this holiday season.

There will be a Giving Tree set up at Newark Grade School and Millbrook Jr. High with paper ornaments. If you wish to participate, please choose an ornament, which will have the students gender and wished-for gift. Please drop off the gift with the ornament attached as the gift tag to Newark Grade School by December 13th.

We are grateful for the community support this holiday season.

Illinois Assessment of Readiness for English Language Arts/Literacy (ELA/L) and Mathematics

Dear Parent or Guardian:

Newark CCSD 66) is pleased to inform you of a new and innovative method for presenting your student Illinois Assessment of Readiness (IAR) test results.

- IAR Parent Portal – Introducing <https://il-results.pearsonaccessnext.com>, where you can access individual student results and resources to support everything you need to know about your child's performance on the Illinois Assessment of Readiness for English Language Arts and Math. This portal also allows you to add your student's Spring 2021 test results to your user account and access them in the future.
- Video Individual Score Reports (Video ISRs) – Video ISRs are personalized videos created specifically for your student that walk through the information presented on their student's score report. Delivered via the IAR Parent Portal, video ISRs combine student-specific animation and voiceovers to help you better understand your student's assessment results and direct you to resources that are tailored for your student's needs. We encourage you to watch these videos with your child and discuss any questions with your student's teacher.

As in the past, you will continue to receive paper copies of the Individual Student Reports (ISRs). However, new this year, included on the ISR, will be an individual claim code unique to your student. With this code you will be able to securely access your student's test results in the IAR Parent Portal.

The IAR Parent Portal and Video Individual Score Reports will be available October 26, 2021.

We are excited about the opportunity to strengthen our efforts with you to effectively communicate your student's performance on the Illinois Assessment of Readiness.
