New Franciscana Will Chronicle World Events

TO BE PUBLISHED AT ASSISI
COLLEGE

Last fall there was established in Assisi an international college of Capuchin writers for the purpose of promoting Franciscan studies. The President of the College is Father Cuthbert, of the Capuchin College at Oxford University, and the Rev. Felix M. Kirsch, Ph. D., LL. D., of the Capuchin College at the Catholic University, Washington, has joined the staff for the period of one year. The Rev. Amedee Teetaert, of Louvain University, is the editor of the scientific quarterly that has just been launched by the College.

The magazine is appropriately published in the home town of St. Francis and is well named "Collectanea Franciscana." It comes appropriately from Assisi in that it represents the interests of the millions the world over who are followers of the Little Poor Man whether by profession, or adoption or at least by admiration. The first issue of "Collectanea Franciscana" exhibits the truly Franciscan catholicity of its contents as well as of its contributors.

The articles deal with the most diverse phases of Franciscan thought and achievement. The authorship of the articles note among the contributors a Jesuit, Father P. Tacchi Ventura, and Dr. A. Landgraf, lately professor at the Catholic University of America. Though the contributors represent various nations, they generally write in Latin or at least present a summary of their findings in Latin. The chronicle records events of Franciscan interest the world over, and the bibliography another valuable feature, offers a digest, with critical comments, of all articles and books that appeal to those interested in Franciscan lore.

Suffice it to say that any one who would keep informed about what has been done in the past or what is being done now in the Franciscan world would do well to subscribe for "Collectanea Franciscana." The annual subscription fee is two dollars, and the address is: Collegio S. Lorenzo dei Cappuccini, Assisi, Italy.

STUDENTS ATTEND SHOW

At the invitation of Mr. N. F. Arnhold the students attended a show given at the Strand Theatre commemorating the one hundredth anniversary of the invention of the reaper. The show was sponsored by the N. F. Arnhold & Sons Hardware Dealers of Hays and agents for the International Harvester Co. machinery.

The show besides being educational was also interesting and amusing and all the students enjoyed it. The first reel showed how harvesting was done over a hundred years ago, by hand. The sickle gave way to the scythe and this in turn to the cradle. This implement was used for many decades until the reaper was invented by McCormick. Other reels showed how Robert McCormick experimented in getting out a harvesting machine, but unsuccessfully. His son Cyrus, however, was more successful. On the day when the new invention was to be tested, great crowds gathered, some to jeer others to learn. The machine cut the wheat. Since that time improvements have been made so that today we have the great combine machine, which not only cuts but also threshes the wheat and other grains.

Since most of the students are interested in farming it was of great benefit to them. They certainly appreciate the opportunity given them by Mr. Arnhold to see the development of the farm machinery with which they are so familiar.

JOURNAL STAFF CHANGES

As has been customary for a number of years the work of editing the Journal for the remainder of the school year has been turned over to the Junior Class.

Harry Maguire has been appointed to the office of editor-in-chief with Ernest Beilman as his assistant. Joseph Aich will report on all school happenings and activities. Aloysius Preisner will try to find interesting things in other school papers and serve it up to Journal readers. Paul Wiesner has been advanced to advertising manager with George Brungardt as his assistant. Cyril V. Denning will take care of the circulation.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON CHIROPODY

On Monday, February 2, Mr. Paul Schumaker, head of the shoe department in the Wiesner's Department Store, gave an illustrated lecture on chiropody to the faculty and students.

It was a very interesting and instructive lecture and all who attended learned how to best care for their feet. He also demonstrated the different appliances invented by Dr. School for the cure of defective feet.

ARCHITECT SUBMITS FURTHER PLANS

Mr. C. A. Smith of Salina, Kansas, architect for the New College, was here on February 18 to discuss with some members of the faculty and the building committee some minor changes in the plans for the New College.

Present plans are progressing nicely and work will probably be resumed on the new structure by the first of March.

BLARNEY CASTLE.

"The best way to get to Blarney Castle is to walk there—to walk there, I mean from the town of Cork. You will go to Patrick's Bridge. You will walk along the quays. You will pass Shandon Church whose bells a poet has made famous. You will come to a second bridge. Then you will turn up Blarney Street. You will go on until you come to a place named Clougheen. And the valley which Blarney Castle dominated is then before you. . . ."

"The legend of the castle that an old woman told me had to do with water and a fairy woman. The King of Muster saved an old woman who was about to drown in the lake. She had nothing to give him by the way of reward. She told him, however, that if he would mount the topmost wall of his castle, and kiss a stone which she described to him, he would gain a speech that would win friend or foe to him, man or woman."—From Padraic Colum's new book, "Cross Roads in Ireland."

Dominic A. Kuhn '13, who has been ill at St. Anthony's Hospital is recovering nicely and expects to leave the hospital soon.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Washington, our First President, is called the Father of His Country, and the phrase embraces the man.

Washington had a high sense of honor when a boy as when a man, and was just as generous and noble in his feelings at sixteen, as at forty; but in other respects he was totally different. When sixty years of age repose and calm dignity were his great peculiarities. At twenty ardor, enthusiasm, and love of adventure, formed his chief characteristics. The truth is George Washington was a boy of ardent and fiery feelings, and a youth of strong and terrible passion.

Washington was not only cool in the hour of danger and utterly destitute of fear, but often impetuous, and sometimes apparently reckless. The crowning glory of his character was his patriotism. No man ever before rose out of the mass of the people to such fame without abusing it.

History searches in vain for a military leader, so much of whose life had been spent in camp and whose will was law to a grateful nation who voluntarily resigned his rank and chose the humble, peaceful occupation of a farmer. From the outset, his honor and his country stood foremost in his affections. The first he guarded with scrupulous care, and for the last he offered his life and his fortune. His patriotism was so pure that no wrongs could for a moment weaken its force.

The patriotism which made him endure with such patience, toil with such perseverance, refuse all emoluments, and scorn the gift of crown, has become the admiration of mankind.

Washington's military genius is considered of the highest rank, as any one who investigates his career carefully will find out for himself.

At the age of sixty-five, having committed his country in solemn faith to the God in Whom he trusted, he bade farewell to the cares of public life, and retraced his weary steps to Mount Vernon.

While riding in a severe blizzard one day Washington contracted his fatal illness. His sufferings were intense; he said, "I die hard, but I am not afraid to die." Washington received a great military burial. He did not do as Napoleon, but led his country step by step to freedom and prosperity.—A. P. '32.

YOUR SCHOOL IS WHAT YOU MAKE IT

Practically every college campus in the country, especially the boarding school campus, is infested with those who like to pass their spare time spreading valueless criticisms. Doing little to aid and much to harm, they only tend to poison the attitude of the entire student body, and to tear down the efforts of others. In turn, what constructive work do they attempt? What part will one find them taking in school activities?

To these the school seems dead. They complain because their athletic teams are not the best in the country. They deride or combat the efforts of others who endeavor to boost various activities and inject a bit of life into the seemingly dull routine of school. But when the call is issued for students to try for this or that particular activity only the usual few answer. No wonder a school is dead.

Your school is what you make it. Each student, when he selects an institution as his alma mater, pledges, thereby, to serve her, or, at least, render a fair exchange for what he is receiving. If not, then the word "alma mater" is a misnomer for a school. Hence, besides taking the regular course of studies, the student should indulge in the activities which time and his particular talents will permit. If his school is a dead, mediocre, or unpopular institution it is because he is not able to make it better. It depends on him for its reputation.

In reality, a school, perhaps, is a dead institution, but it can be made to boom with life. Everyone has a chance to make its teams, to participate in its literary, dramatic, forensic, and musical activities. If the teams are poor, if the other activities are not what they should be, it is really a reflection on the talent of the student body. They can make them no better. Of course, once in a while, an All-American prospect may be overlooked but it does not happen as often as one is inclined to think judging from the number of those critics who stroll about the campus.

If a student cannot be a leader in the various activities he can at least support them. It is much easier to be a good roofer on the side lines than to play in the game, and likewise it is much more disgraceful to be a poor roofer than a poor player, for the poor roofer is not even able to replace the poor player, and something which is easier he refuses to do or cannot do. It all amounts to this—students make the activities, activities make the school and it is only to those who take no part in the activities the school has to offer that it seems a Purgatory. So remember that your school is what you make it.—The Hour Glass.

AT NIGHT

At night
When I am tired and start to nod
I climb into my little bed.
It is not long, its not broad.
It need not be.
For it is big enough for me.
What have I else?
I have no wealth,
I have no fame,
I have no title to my name.
At night.
When I am tired and start to nod
I climb into my little bed.
It is not long, it is not broad.
It need not be
For it is big enough for me,
And at my side
My angel guide—
And God.

—G. S.

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH?

Some people, whom we thought at first quite attractive, after we knew them quite well we found them less attractive; and many others for whom we did not care at first, after we knew them for a time we really liked them.

The conclusion is obviously this: that appearances are often deceiving and that one with only a little acquaintance of another cannot adequately judge that person.

I believe that we can learn something from this, and that it will really be worth while putting into practice.

If we make it a point to know people very well before we pass judgment about them, we shall find that a great many, who at first appeared to us unattractive, are really attractive.

That little bit of good which is in even the most unattractive of us, after we discover it, often makes the latter so attractive that we almost forget about the unattractive part. In fact in time they may be quite the opposite from that which they first appeared to us.

If you wish to get more enjoyment out of life—and we all can afford to do that—if you want to make college life as pleasant as possible for yourself and others; and if you are one of those who are always advocating a better college spirit, a better means for doing these things is to know a person for a long enough time before you judge him to be some one you like or dislike. You will find that your friendship will extend to limits far beyond your expectations. This great and far-reaching friendship will become a source of happiness to yourself and others.

Seconds Win 35-3

The Hays Catholic Academy quintet defeated Ellis High in a fast and furious game at Ellis on Friday, Feb. 6, by a 23-20 score.

The game developed into a hectic affair in the second half after the Bluejays had earned a lead in the opening periods. At one stage Ellis held a three-point lead which was erased by a pair of long goals caged by Staab, Jay center.

The Hays team continued to have a meager one-point lead until the last eleven seconds of play when Gerstner slipped in a basket to clinch a victory. Gerstner lead the Hays attack with five field goals. Jacobs was outstanding on the defensive for the Bluejays. LaShelle, who scored seven points, led the Ellis attack.

In a preliminary contest the Hays seconds had no trouble disposing of the Ellis seconds 35 to 3. Koch led the attack with 15 points.

Staab Leads Academy to a Decisive Win—Offense Functions Well

The H. C. A. Bluejays played their best basketball of the year in the last half of the game on Saturday, Feb. 14 to turn back Quinter in a decisive 25-15 victory.

After a poor first half in which neither team was able to display any offensive power, the Hays attack waxed warm in the final periods with every member of the quintet contributing to the total.

The Bluejays led, 4 to 1, at the end of the first period which was marked by Quinter's total inability to work the ball down the floor. In the first three minutes Quinter failed to get a shot while only four attempts at the basket were made during the period.

Jamison connected twice in the second period, his only scoring of the game, to give his team-man 8-7 lead at the half.

A long basket by Staab put Hays back in the lead as the second half started. Free throws by Wolf and Staab and two field goals by Gerstner enabled the Jays to gain the upper hand in the period. Wiggington was responsible for all of Quinter's four points during the quarter.

Brennan's quintet put the game on ice in the first three minutes of the final period by running the count to 19 to 11. A Quinter time out didn't help the Westerners' cause and the Catholic five breezed in with a well earned victory.

Bluejays Unable to Hit Basket As Woodmen Move into Second With 27-15 Win

Russell supplanted the Hays Catholic Academy in second place by downing the Bluejays 27-15 in Sheridan Coliseum on Wednesday, Feb. 11, in a ragged game featured by almost totally ineffective Hays goal shooting. The Academy second team brought the only consolation to Hays fans by winning their curtain raiser 13-7.

Russell's victory came largely through the inability of the Jays to hit the hoop. Although gaining nearly twice as many shots as the invaders, Hays averaged only one goal in ten tries, while the Woodmen hit more than a third of their hard earned shots to lead the Bluejays from beginning to end.

The winning Russell margin was amassed in the first half, which ended with the Jays trailing 13-5 after a dismal exhibition of basket shooting which nullified their close guarding and shot-earning attack. While Mackey, Hays guard, was holding the dangerous Shaffer to a single basket, Miller, Dumler and Richards stepped into the breach and accounted for the safe Russell lead, with only Wolf and Staab registering for the Academy.

JAYS DEFEAT EAGLES TO THE TUNE OF 29 TO 4

The Academy Bluejays let down the visiting Wakeeney Eagles without a single field goal here on Wednesday, Feb. 18, and preserved their U. P. standing with a lopsided 29-4 victory, after the second team had held the Wakeeney Eaglets to two goals in winning their opener 21-9.

Larry Brennan's Catholic crew continued in the same winning form that brought them victory over Quinter last week, and played as good a brand of ball as seen yet in the league, and which if continued may yet land them in first place. Wakeeney completely smothered by close Hays guarding, and their only effective attempt from the field was nullified, when Heckman's last minute goal from center was disqualified for traveling.

For the entire first half the Eagles failed even to register a free throw while Staab was leading a Bluejay attack which rolled up 17 points in the sixteen minutes of first period play. With this safe lead in his pocket Brennan then sent in his substitutes to play most of the last half, but even the reserves hit the basket and continued to hold the Wakeeney attack helpless, Meis, Peay, Koch, and Wolf accounting for the last half scoring.

Staab displayed good form in heading the Bluejay attack with four baskets, and Mackey, while failing to score, played a strong defensive game, with Meis, Wolf and Gerstner mixing nicely in the floor play. Heckman was the only one of the invaders to show any power.

QUINTER NOSES OUT BLUEJAYS, 16 TO 15

Single Free Throw is Margin of Victory in Closely Contested Game

The Bluejays lost a hard-fought game on the Quinter court Thursday, Feb. 19, when the Bulldogs broke a last minute tie with a free throw in the final moment of play. From start to finish the contest was close and fast with never more than a four-point difference.

Mackey started the works with a long shot over the head of E. Hines that thrilled the crowd. A moment later Reinecker tied it up when he broke away from Gerstner for his only score of the evening. On the next play Gerstner had a chance to atone but was fouled and missed both free tosses. Then the shots rained thick and fast with never a hit, until finally Gerstner clicked a goal only to have E. Hines duplicate, ending the quarter 4-4 as Jacobs missed a free throw.

Upon resumption of hostilities Wigginton and Gerstner each garnered a goal. But Quinter forged ahead when Staab went down with a twisted ankle, letting Jamison free to make his only marker unmolested. Time was called to give Staab first aid and he played a great defensive game the rest of the evening though he failed to boost his percentage by a single goal. G. Hines converted two out of five free throw tries and Gerstner registered on the only charity shot allowed the Bluejays in the quarter, which ended 7-10.

Neither team bagged a goal in the third period but each side was given three charity shots and every single one counted in the score which stood 10-13 at the close. Wolf started the last quarter by retrieving the ball from a scramble and dribbling under the basket for a set-up. Then with but three more minutes to go Jacobs connected at long range and the Bluejays were once more ahead 14-3. Shortly after in a toss-up in which Wolf had to jump, his man Wigginton was left free and the ball passed to him for a set up putting Quinter a point in the lead. Then a double-foul was called on Wolf and Wiggton in which both missed the try, but which removed Wigginton from the game. Shortly after this Mackey was fouled and tied the score at 15 all with his successful free shot.

The Hays seconds were again defeated by the Quinter reserves, 21-18, in a hotly contested battle in which Hoover made 13 points for Quinter and Schmidt led the Bluejays with seven.

We have another new face at the editor's desk. "The Mount Mirror," St. Scholastica College and Academy at Atchison, Kansas. It seems to be a very interesting paper.

The High School Orchestra of St. Mary's H. S. at Windthorst will broadcast over KGNO at Dodge City on the 27th of this month. It should be a good tryout.

St. Mary's College has about 15 boys out for basketball. Much interest is being shown by all and it is good for the boys as well.

'Way down south from sunny Tennessee, comes the Central Hi-Light, published by the students of the Central H. S. We are always glad to receive new faces at the desk.

We notice in the latest number of the "Tiefonian" the Girls Catholic High School publication, that one of their alumnae is already in Paradise. We certainly congratulate them on this honor and wish to state, by the way, that she took one of our Alumni with her. We hope they are enjoying life together in Paradise.

SENIOR SALLIES

The Seniors were well represented in the tryout for the coming forensic and dramatic contest that will be held in Quinter, February 21, Mackey took the honors for his oration and we wish him the same luck at Quinter.

Peay is the only one walking around on the campus with four stripes.

The Seniors have received their football sweaters and feel very proud of them.

Mackey wears a size 40 sweater and he ordered himself a size 32. Who is she, Mack?

Prof: "Mac, write the first three pages—no the first five pages—"

Mac: "I heard you the first time."

Wasinger: "Joe, what are you doing for a living, going to school?"

Joe: "No, of course not. How can anyone make a living off of that?"

Klenda: "I saw five people under an umbrella yesterday and not one of them got wet."

Rohleder: "How come?"

Klenda: "It didn't rain."

Koch: "Henry, is that your Baby Austin parked outside?"

Henry: "Yes, why?"

Koch: "Well, you had better go down there, the ants are trying to drag it under the sidewalk."

Joe: "Mac, what were you arguing about with the hotel keeper this morning?"

Mac: "I was kicking about the dirty towel."

Joe: "What did the proprietor say?"

Mac: "She said 99 other customers were satisfied with it and why aren't you?"

Peay: "Joe, why do you always go around with your head hanging down? Why don't you hold it up like I do?"

Joe: "Yeh, you want to remember an empty head is a lot lighter than one with something in it."

Rohleder: "What are you laughing at, Rusty?"

Rusty: "I went to the dentist with Palen the other day to get a tooth fixed. The dentist told him to open his mouth and what I mean he opened it; why he opened it so wide that the dentist said: 'Pardon me, I was going to stand on the outside.'

"Rusty" Schmidt was heard over station KFKB on Sunday, February 15th.

Wasinger: "Say Ruppy I heard you were in a fight yesterday, is that so?"

Rupp: "Yes. I was in a fight."

Wasinger: "What was it about?"

Rupp: "Well, I was going through the park and saw the zoo keeper and had a little talk with him. He said he was expecting a load of monkeys about an hour ago and they had not arrived yet and he was getting worried."

Wasinger: "Well, what about it?"

Rupp: "I saw a man sitting on a bench near by, so I walked over and asked him if he saw a wagon load of monkeys go by. And he said, 'No, why did you fall off?'"

SOPHOMORE NOTES

We are glad to realize that a member of our class, Lawrence Fink, will represent the College in the dramatic meet at Quinter.

Drees: "When do we go to Quinter?"

Father: "22nd of February."

Drees: "Why, that's on Sunday."

Father: "No, on Saturday the 21st."

Drees: "Still worse, that's when I take a bath."

Kippes has been sick quite often lately; it is probably school sickness more than anything else.

Red: "Who would get the job if the president and vice-president died?"

Kipp: "A Senator."

Red: "No, the undertaker."

Dress: "How many dead people are there in a cemetery?"

G Schmidt: "Gosh! I don't know."

Drees: "All of them."

C. Basgall: "You eat over a ton of dirt everyday."

Al Staab: "No, I don't."

C. Basgall: "What do you stand on when you eat?"

JUNIOR JOLTS

Prof: "What is half the diameter of circle called?"

Bartonek: "Radio."

John: "What beast supplies us with ham?"

Burgardt: "The Butcher."

Preisner: "What is a clause?"

Stramel A.: "It's something animals have to scratch with."

Drees: "The man looks upset this morning. I wonder what has happened?"

Lindy: "Who wouldn't be upset, looking at you all night."

Joe Drees claims he has a good watch. The only reason we agree with him is because he has to watch it all the time or it will stop.

We have a few students who are loafing at their studies, but the most are rather industrious.

Schuvie: "Well, they were going to make a monarch."

Sauer: "What kind of ark is a monarch?"

Joseph Drees, Edwin Weigel, Ernest Beilman and Aloysius Preisner represented the Junior Class at the inter-class contest held in the auditorium on Tuesday, February 17.

E. Beilman won first place among the extemporaneous speakers and therefore will represent the school at the Forensic and Dramatic Meet at Quinter on February 21.

The Junior Class representatives on both basketball teams are showing up well.

Prof.: "What great Dam have we studied about recently?"

Wolf: "Amsterdam."
