The annual oratory contest of H. C. C. took place in the College auditorium on Saturday, March the 29th. Six contestants participated and each one made a good showing.

Adlore Boucher, a member of the Senior Class, was judged the winner and thereby received the Bishop Tief Oratory Medal. This prize is given annually by our Rt. Reverend Bishop to the winner of the oratory contest.

Harold Mackey, a member of the Junior Class, took second place and he gave a very good account of himself. Other students who took part in the contest are: Lucius Schmidt, Senior; Alfred Koch, Junior; Joseph Drees and Ernest Beilman, Sophomores.

Adlore Boucher will meet the winner of the Hays High School contest in our auditorium within the next few days.

Mr. James R. Start, from the K. S. T. C., Hays, was kind enough to act as judge. The faculty and students express their sincere thanks to Mr. Start for his fine work. Every one appreciated the appropriate remarks the judge made after the contest.

The faculty and students also extend a vote of thanks to Mr. C. M. Holmquist for his generous donation to the library. Many valuable books are included in the donation and we were glad to receive them.

MACKEY - CAPTAIN ELECT

At a meeting of the basketball lettermen - Harold Mackey, '31 was chosen to guide the destinies of the Bluejay Basketeers for the season of 1931. Good luck and success, Mac!

ROBIN'S RETURN

God's violin! I like the thought so much!
For when I hear you in the dawn of spring
Singing those merry songs you always sing,
I like to think that God, with master touch,
Has drawn a bow across your heartstrings, such
Sweet music swelling that each withered thing
Has pricked its numb and drowsy ear to clutch
The word of life, which God chose you to bring.
You are a herald: on your coat expressed
The royal badge of spring we gladly mark.
And, like the dove, you bring us tidings blest ---
The dove that brought salvation to the ark.
She had a branch of olive from her quest:
You have the seal of sunrise on your breast.

PATRONAL FEAST OBSERVED

St. Joseph's Day Celebrated With Solemn Services In Church

The feast of St. Joseph, March 19th, was solemnly observed by the faculty and students of Hays Catholic College. At nine o'clock a solemn High Mass was sung in the parish church. Rev. Father Director was celebrant of the Mass, and Rev. Fathers Frederick and Cletus deacon and subdeacon, respectively. The students attended the services in a body.

Father Frederick delivered an appropriate sermon on St. Joseph.

The day was observed as a holiday at the College.

MISSION SOCIETY MEETS

St. Joseph Misson Unit Acquires New Life

On March 9th Rev. Father Richard called a meeting of all the boarders and revived the apparently defunct Mission Unit. The Rev. Moderator announced that he would solicit members for the Seraphic Mass Association in order to help our missionaries in Porto Rico. Father Moderator alluded to the fact that a number of the boys were personally acquainted with the missionaries and he knew they would be especially interested in helping them.

The students were requested to induce their parents and friends to enroll in the Seraphic Mass Association. A number of the boys responded immediately and paid the annual membership fee. The other boys promised to enlist the interest of their parents in the good cause when they go home for the Easter vacation.

In order to instill new life and interest into the Mission Unit the following officers were appointed: Ernest Peay, Recorder; Alfred Koch, Albert Stramel and John Vesecky, Promoters.

H. C. A. UPSETS DOPE

Beat Hays High In Two Overtime Periods

Rivalry of many years was clearly shown in a cage contest between the H. C. C. Bluejays and the Hays High Indians at the Sheridan Coliseum on Tuesday, March 4th. The Bluejays conquered the Indians in a thrilling two overtime period battle, 19 to 13.

At the end of the regular playing period the teams were knotted at 13 all. Desperate stubborn defenses held the first overtime period scoreless but in the second, Basgall and Gerstner broke loose for three sensational counters to cinch the victory for the Bluejays.

All the Bluejays played a wonderful game. Particular attention must be given to the work of Gerstner and Basgall, forwards, and to Captain Keberlein who led his team to victory. To say one of the men played a better game than another would be an injustice for that night they all cooperated, moving here and there, to bring home a city championship and a first victory over a Hays High team in a regular scheduled game. The box score will be found on another page of this issue.

EASTER RECESS

Vacation Lasts One Week

In a recent faculty meeting the exact dates of the Easter vacation were decided. Classes are to continue until 3:15 P. M. Tuesday, April 15th. The students may leave for home after the 3:15 class. No exception will be made to permit any boy to go home before the final class on Tuesday, April 15th.

The classes will resume after Easter on Tuesday morning April 22nd. All the students must be present for the first class on April the 22nd.

A Joyful Easter to Friends and Patrons

GOOD SPORTS

For several years there has existed a friendly rivalry between the Hays High School and the Hays Catholic Academy- a friendly rivalry in the domain of sports. This rivalry never had a test on either the gridiron nor on the basketball court. Scrimmages were held, but so far as actual games-well, there just weren't any.

Fate or some other power brought the two schools together this year during the district tournament. The H.C.A. squad was not the favorite to win the game, but the cards seemed stacked against the Hays Hi, and the Academy won a hard, clean fought game. It took two extra periods to determine the winner, but finally Hays Hi was defeated by the score of 19--16.

Comments all over town were to the effect that it was one of the cleanest and hardest fought games of the season locally. This sportsmanlike behavior of both the players and spectators reflects credit on the schools as well as on the followers of both teams. Generally when there are several teams in a small town, there is bitter rivalry, and when there are inter-school games this rivalry goes into bleachers or grandstand. It is to the honor of the schools as well as to the fans that there was no evidence of this in Hays. There was much at stake in this game, and the teams as well as the audience are to be congratulated on their good sportsmanship. More power to such athletic training.

And more. To the credit of the Hays High School-- both faculty and student body-- a word of praise and appreciation is due. By unanimous vote of the students the cheering went for the Hays Catholic Academy in their games with Ellis Hi and with the Norton High School. After our school had eliminated them, they gave us what support and backing they could. It was hard for Hays Hi to lose their game to the Academy. But they were good sports in their loss, and responded nobly to home town pride and encouraged their rivals on to further victories. If that is not clean and honest sportsmanship, what is?

Thanks, Hays High School! May we have the occasion to return the support on some future day.

ETHICS IN ATHLETICS

On the season's record of play the Hays High School basketball team was doped to win from the Hays

Catholic College quintet in the region-tournament held at Hays. But as often happens in tourneys the dope was upset and in a torrid encounter the Catholic five emerged victor by a scant margin after over-time periods of play. It was a contest unmarred by ill-feeling or uncalled for roughness. That, between two teams from the same town was in itself worthy of note. But that isn't half the story. After being routed from the running by a team it had expected to defeat, the Hays High School rallied to the support of its conquerors and in two contests the Catholic Academy had the staunch support of the adherents of the five it had whipped. There you have something, if you please, to ponder on. Something, let it be added, that wouldn't have happened only a few years ago. The same fine feeling, of course, also existed between other teams present at the tournament. Such sportsmanship is an achievement and in itself it justifies fully the time and effort expended in high school basketball. Hays Daily News.

KINDNESS

To be kind is not to be an ingratiating Percy, or everybody's fool. A tender heart befits a strong character. Many of the bravest have been the kindest.

A man might sail under false colors, displaying wealth and learning, and fool the public for a long time, but kindness admits of no such hypocrisy. One can live without Greek and much mathematics, but not so well without kindness. Although we cannot all be brilliant, we can all be kind.

True kindness is a virtue and, like every moral virtue, it must be acquired and practised. Kindness is the fairest flower of a good character. It is always found in the company of Christian charity, and like charity, covers a multitude of sins. There is really no reason why our dyspepsia should be blamed on every one else.

A road-sign on the way to sunshine and joy says: "Keep Smiling". If heeded, it banishes depressed feelings and introduces cheerfulness. Dickens says that it is a fair and noble adjustment of things, that while there is infection in disease and sorrow, there is nothing in the world so contagious as laughter and good humor.

If you see a grey-headed old grandpa sitting alone on the porch, perhaps the whole day with no one to talk to, greet him with a smile, and cheer him with a few words. It costs you nothing, but it means more joy to him than words can tell.

We can do some favor every day. Why seek to do great things and neglect the small! The bashful little violet near the crystal brook pleases God as much as the weather-beaten oak. Acts of kindness will greatly help to balance our books when we take our final inventory. The Roman Emperor Titus made it a point to do an act of kindness every day. One night when he had failed to do so, he said: "Friends, I have lost a day." Father Faber said he would rather face his sins on judgment day than his unkindnesses, for the evil generally stops with a sin, but an unkind act goes on forever.

Business men are kind and obliging. It belongs to the trade. But often their chief motive for kindness is to feed the purse. True kindness is not selfish. It lives on the truth that all men are children of our Father who is in heaven. Then there are street angels and home devils, that is, people who think kindness is a necessary ornament put on for everyone else except for those who have the first claim to it. They have a smile for outsiders, but not for those at home,—those with whom they daily come into intimate contact.

Lent is an excellent time to practice kindness. Start right now. It is fatal to procrastinate. —R. G.

QUOTH THE SAGE.

ON SENIORS and OTHERS

A Senior is a student who spent three years dreaming of the time when he can strut around the campus with all eyes enviously glued upon him. His teachers tell him he has to get serious now; they are going to make an educated man out of him. And my, how he has to sweat! If it isn't Vergil, it's History; if not these, he is surely told to prepare a speech. If Juniors knew all the Seniors have to do, they'd quit.

Seniors are not only an enviable lot, they are also useful. For one, they can save the Prefect a peck of trouble. Now I don't mean that every time they see a Soph reading a novel in the study hall or a Freshie cutting his initials into his desk, they have to sock him, although the latter offence really merits it. I mean that he has merely to be worthy of his exalted position. He need only register that important and mortifying Senior-look and presto, all crime is taboo. But if he himself tries to get away with everything except the study hall desk, can any one expect Freshies ever to get some sense?

There are Seniors and Seniors—just like any other commodity.

There's one kind that makes me angry. I mean those freaks of humanity who think they have "IT". They'll try to make you believe that the school is glad they came; it couldn't do without them; the teachers are fortunate in having them for pupils; their school-fellows are elated to have them around; they are such an honor to their class. And the poor saps mean it. While they're splining this yarn, they have an ancient toothpick dance a jig in the right corner of their mouth; and with their cap parked on the left ear, they'll shamble to and fro with a gait that would make Charlie Chaplin look like an amateur. To educate such fellows is a challenge to any school.

There's another sort of Senior that makes me mad. Thank goodness, there are not many of them. I mean the fellow who is chock-full of love for himself. He has a strong will, but it is bent the wrong way. When he decides to be stubborn, the latest tractors couldn't develop enough power to budge him. He doesn't seem to give a hang what anybody says. And if the Prefect should dare chide him, he may get a smart reply. Strange, this sort of fellow is often an acknowledged leader among the unthinking. Sometimes he will kick about the eats; he wants meals such as the stylish folks in the movies eat; and in nine cases out of ten young men of his type ate cabbage soup at home every day except Sunday. And what's more, I'll bet that when it comes to making their own living, they'll be glad to get even that.

And then there is a tribe of Seniors that make me laugh. They are youths with an overheated imagination. You can find them anywhere, but you would not look for them in a place where there are books and study desks. But they are there.

You can easily tell them: they smudge the window pane with their well greased noses or stare ahead looking at a blank wall and dreaming dreams. And such dreams! Ah, her eyes—they glisten like the dew-drops in the morning sun; and her hair—such soft rolling waves, reminiscent of the sea in its kinder moods; and her cheeks — the blushing rose pales beside them. And so forth. The poor boys. Dream-girls are only dreams: they jist aint that way, they jist aint!

When I hear the line of one of these lovesick dudes I don't have to look at him. They all look much alike: a splendid mop of wool, (an evident sign that all the nourishment destined for the brains is wasted on hair), and a powdered nose. Most of them have faces that a dotting mother might still improve with the help of a soapy washrag.

But don't think that I'm crabbing about everybody. Really much of this discussion applies to others as much and even more than to Seniors, for such as I have described very seldom make the Senior grade. There are many kinds of Seniors I do like. For instance, the fellow who knows how to control himself. You never hear him use language that his mother couldn't hear. And when it comes to class, he does his duty. He keeps himself neat and clean, but he never announces his approach with five-and-ten-cent perfume nor do loud clothes shout his presence. He's not a bit crazy about the girls; he lets them rave and they will in due time; he'll be the catch of the season.

And then there's the kind of Senior that I love. Everybody does. You can't help but love him. Although he is continually putting his brains through the daily dozen, he doesn't come around with a pleated forehead. There is a smile on his face that you couldn't iron out. He knows his place and he is polite; he shows respect to whom respect is due.

There are Seniors that make me cry. I hate to think of the day when they won't be around anymore. That is the way their teachers feel about them too. These heart-breakers are excellent in class; it's a real pleasure to teach them. What is more, they have a golden character, largely a natural inheritance, 'tis true, but also rounded out by dint of careful training. When they carry their diploma hence, the cozy nooks in classroom and study hall will remain sadly vacant for many a day. Boo Hoo! Stay away, Graduation Day!

One word more. There is really more fun in being a Senior than a Grad, the testimony of Seniors, Juniors, Sophs, and Freshies notwithstanding. A few more months and a sometime Senior will be lugging a pencil on his ear and a ledger book under each arm; another will be pounding away at a typewriter till the sparks fly from his finger tips; a third will be dragging a briefcase along, trying to tell people whose ears are plugged with cotton that the Vermin Despatching Co. makes the best flykiller on the market. Now these same Seniors can delve into Cicero and Shakespeare and work out some decent problems in Geometry instead of adding a bunch of digits on a dead adding machine. That blamed thing can't make a mistake—and how can a fellow get a kick out of numbers, if he doesn't wear out a few pencils and erasers correcting a real problem?

Yessirree, the Senior life is a merry old life, as all good Alumni can tell! —J. B. S.

JUNIOR JOLTS

Koch: "What is that rag you have in your hand?"

Rupp: "That is my hankerchief."

Koch: "But why is it so big?"

Rupp: "For crying out loud."

Rohleder: "Mackey, why are you so sure your sister is getting married?"

Mackey: "Because I saw her put a revolver in her hope chest this morning."

Schmidt: "Why was Adam born before Eve?"

Klenda: "So Adam could say a few words."

Peay: "Dreiling, what are you going to be when you get out of school?"

Dreiling: "I haven't thought about that."

Palen: "He will be an old man."

Rupp: "So you are taking painting?"

Wasinger: "Yes I am, but how did you know?"

Rupp: "I saw some of your pictures this morning."

Wasinger: "And you were wondering how I did it?"

Rupp: "Oh! So, I was wondering why you did it."

Prof: "Why were you late getting here?"

Leiker: "I couldn't see my-self in the mirror so I thought I was here, then I found the glass was broken out."

Keberlein: "What part of speech is woman?"

Rohleder: "She isn't no part, she is all of it."

Prof: "Koch, what is the difference between a goose and geese?"

Koch: "A goose is one geese and geese is a lot of geeses."

Prof: "Rohleder, why are you standing there with your mouth open, you had better close it or a fly will fly in it."

Rohleder: "(Talking with his mouth still open) That is just it, I am waiting for the one in it to fly out."

Rusty Schmidt says they are putting whiskers on Fords to make them look like Lincolns.

Prof: "Peay, give me a sentence with the word 'diadem'."

Peay: "People that do not stop, look and listen at railroad crossings diadem site quicker than those that do observe them."

Joe Palen got a terrible shock yesterday, he climbed a telephone pole to pick fruit, he thought electric currents were something to eat.

Yesterday one of our professors asked how many of us were dumbbells. Those that were to remain standing. The class sat down with the exception of H. Leiker and Klenda. The Prof asked Klenda if he was a dumbbell. Klenda said he remained standing to keep Henry company.

Wasinger: "Koch, what is a cow's hide for?"

Koch: "It holds the cow together."

Rupp: "That fellow over there hasn't any arms."

Rohleder: "Hasn't any arms, then how does he blow that bugle?"

Rupp: "By ear."

Leiker: "Palen, why were you sitting there scratching yourself?"

Palen: "Well, I am the only one that knew where I itched."

Prof: "Use the word 'Kelvinator' in a sentence, Keberlein."

Keberlein, after thinking for a while said, "I never saw a picture of Mrs. Coolidge without 'kelvinator' side."

Wasinger: "Why does Dreiling with his hat on remind you of Saturday?"

Leiker: "Because it is on his week-end."

COLLEGE BAND REORGANIZES

Mr. Leo Wiesner Has Charge of Promising Musicians

Mr. Leo Wiesner, band master of Ellis, has again undertaken to organize a band in the College. Mr. Wiesner has long been a friend of any activity begun by the Capuchin Fathers and has repeatedly shown his loyalty in many different ways. Now he comes to lend a helping hand to the music department.

To his first call for volunteers ten new and promising musicians responded. Weekly and sometimes bi-weekly ensemble practices have been in order since the organization of the band some weeks ago.

With the help of the older and more experienced players we expect to have a fair band by the end of the school year. The personnel of the band is as follows: Cornets: Edward Schreiber, Frank Stecklein, Cecil Basgall, Anthony Skolout, Daniel Brungart. Clarinets: Paul Wiesner, Edward Kippes, Cecil Jacobs, Theodore Unrein, Alfred Staab. Altos: Lucius Schmidt, George Schmidt, Desch. Trombones: Robert Dreiling. Baritone: Victor Stanton, Marcellus Leiker, Rudolph Brungardt. Basses: Anselm Windholz. Drums: Richard Staab, Anthony Pfannenstiel.

H. C. A. Five Eliminated in Third Round of Regional Tournament.

The Norton High basketball team eliminated the H. C. A. Bluejays in the third round of the Regional Basketball Tournament by a score of 22-9.

It was a tired Bluejay quintette that entered the Coliseum that evening as the only Hays' representative in the tournament. The boys had played fine ball and gained two wonderful victories before they finally succumbed to the strong Norton team. The boys were fagged out and though they put up a hard fight they were handicapped and lost. We did not feel bad at their defeat because they gave us all they had, and what more could we expect? We are well pleased with your showing, Bluejays.

RAILROADERS BEAT H. C. A.

The Hays Bluejays suffered a defeat at the hands of the Ellis five by a score of 25 to 12. The Hays five were unable to solve the Ellis defense, and could not locate the basket. The half ended 12 to 5 in favor of the Railroaders.

The third quarter was fought on more even terms. In the last period the Black and Orange five completely outclassed the Bluejays and piled up a substantial lead. The Ellis team scored 13 points to the Bluejays 7 in the last half. The final score was 25 to 12 in favor of the Railroaders. Mackey was high scorer for the Bluejays with seven points. Coleman carried away the high score honors of the evening with 14 points.

Kreutzer is becoming very classical lately. He was observed reading Scott's Ivanhoe".

Celly Rupp was congratulated on his wonderful voice, but we still prefer to hear him whistle.

Adlore Boucher took part in the recital given in the auditorium. He portrayed the part of Cardinal Wolsey, which he enacted very cleverly.

Basgall: "What's the best way to make a mule move when he balks"?
Beilman: "Just yell hey (hay)."

Joe Schmidt attended the basketball game at Ellis. Oh no, not alone.

Joseph and Lucius Schmidt took part in the musical recital. They rendered their selections very well.

Basgall: "What's evolution, Vic?"
Stanton: "Just monkey business."

To be off three cents in a trial balance is considered serious. Beilman is just off about two thousand dollars.

Kreutzer will direct "The Hogback Orchestra" at Commencement, he informs us.

Froelich appeared at school Monday, singing, "Should I." Who is the new friend, Froelich?

Bernard Jaster, a classical student, is taking typewriting, and is progressing very nicely.

Beilman, Rupp and Basgall attended a party given by Coach Brennan for the Basketball Squad and all reported having a splendid time. The evening was spent in playing cards, after which a luncheon was served fit for a king.

FRESHMEN FROLICS

This time we find Ed.Basgall in the airplane business. Making them out of paper you know!

We wonder if it would make Ralph Gross feel better if he wouldn't always have this sentence ringing in his ears, "You write a thousand spelling words!"

Willie Lutters is so Scotch that the other day he squeezed a penny squealed.

Jacobs—"Fink would sure like to live near the green house."

Fink—"How did you ever think of that?"

Jacobs—"I didn't think of that, you told me."

Fink—"Oh! I was just kidding you. Why should I want to live near that particulad house?"

Jacobs... "Because that's where the rest of your family lives."

Unrein received the name "got's it" because he always gets everything.

Ed Dreiling can't even pick out the nouns in English. He is always imagining that his hair is not parted right.

Drees... "I know for sure that Skolat is Scotch."

Staab... "What makes you think so?"

Drees... "Because the other day when I gave him a rabbit's foot for good luck he went home and tried it."

We always wondered where Tony Kinderknecht got his money to jingle around in his pockets. But now we are wondering no more, since we learned that he works for his uncle and Tony's desk is near the cash register.

Klenda: "Gosh! Peay, you have a big strong fist. Hold it up and let me look at it."

Peay: "Here it is, what would you do if you had a fist like that?"

Klenda: "I would wash it."

Dreiling is a natural born poet. He wrote this while playing cards too, and you know poets are not made over night.

"Some folks say that flees are black,
And that's a lie I know,
Cause Mary had a little lamb,
Whose flees was white as snow."
Cute, isn't it?

Koch: "Rupp did you hang up your socks last Christmas?"

Rupp: "Why yes."

Koch: "What did you get?"

Rupp: "A notice from the house next door."

Dreiling: "If you had an apple and gave me 7-8 of it, what would you have?"

Palen: "I wouldn't have any sense, I know that."

Schmidt: "Where is the home of the swallow?"

Peay: "In the stomach."

Rohleder: "What is a skeleton?"

Klenda: "A man with his insides out, and his outsides off."

Dreiling: "What do we have now that we did not have a hundred years ago?"

Palen: "Me."

Wasinger: "Peay, what is a mirror?"

Peay: "I don't know."

Wasinger: "What! you don't know what a mirror is, what do you look at after you wash your face?"

Peay: "The towel."

Leiker: "What is nothing?"

Schmidt: "Nothing is a hole with a doughnut around it."

Klenda: "Keberlein, why did you stay up till three o'clock this morning?"

Keberlein: "Well, you see, I was trying to remember what it was that I was up to remember, and at three, I remembered what it was."

Klenda: "What was it?"

Keberlein: "I happened to remember that I wanted to go to bed early."

The following are the Juniors that reported for spring football: Peay, Keberlein, Koch, Wasinger, Leiker, Dreiling, Klenda, and Mackey. Peay Koch, Wasinger, Leiker, and Mackey are lettermen.

The Juniors going out for baseball are: Keberlein, Peay, Dreiling, and Klenda.

Wasinger, our fleet track star, is also getting into shape, and from the looks of things will furnish plenty of competition. Last year Wasinger gave the boys at Wakeeney a close run although he did not place. But beware this year.

Peay, Keberlein, and Mackey were the Junior lettermen announced by Coach Brennan. This is Peay's first letter in basketball; Keberlein's third, and Mackey's second.

Have you ever seen a boy
Go whistling down the street,
Laughing and joking with those he meets,
He stands out as a boy, with
Training and personality!
No doubt you have, and you can bet,
He is a Junior from H. C. C.
When a call for athletes is made
There appears at once, a bunch
Of Juniors to the Coach's aid.
Around the school, at home or on the street,
You will know him
By his good nature and glee,
He is a regular fellow, a true fellow,
A Junior from H. C. C.

SOPHOMORE NOTES

Beilman, Schuvie, Meis, and Aich, got tired of the day scholars' study hall, so they transported their belongings to the boarders' domain of work. How do you like the new location, fellows?

Mermis has been absent for several days. We suppose he's taking a rest. His brains surely need one. Poor boy, we're so sorry.

There are quite a few Sophomores out for spring football and some out for baseball.

Paul Sauer, Ed Weigel, Stecklein and Linnenberger took part in the last musical recital.

Aich: "Wolf, you're certainly dumb."

Wolf: "No, I'm not dumb."

Aich: "How do you account for that?"

Wolf: "Well, I see Sauer parted his hair a new way."

Aich: "Oh, yeah."

Wolf: "Sure, every block has an alley."

Beilman: "I guess Wolf will be an animal trainer."

Wolf: "No, an animal entertainer."

Linnenberger: "Say, Freshman, how do you find the horse power of a car?"

Freshman: "I don't know."

Linnenberger: "Lift up the hood and look at the plugs."

Leiker: "Who gets the job if the President dies?"

Brock: "The Vice-President."

Leiker: "No, the undertaker."

Wolf: "Brock is so dumb that he thinks the 'Mexican Border' pays rent."

Brock: "Wolf thinks that New Jersey is a sweater."

Klaus: "Well, both of you fellows, think that 'Muscle Shoals' is a prize fighter."

Klaus: "Say, Sauer, what caused you to beat up that guy?"

Sauer: "He insulted my girl."

Klaus: "Why all he said was that she danced like a zephyr."

Sauer: "My mistake! I thought he said 'heifer'."

Photographer: "Do you want a large or small picture?"

Vesecky: "A small one."

Photographer: "Then close your mouth."

What a shame King Tut has such nice curly hair and is always receiving compliments, while the envious seniors have to stand around and listen. Pretty tough!

was the Bluejays only counter for the first quarter. Meanwhile Ellis scored from the field and added a pair of free throws to make it 5 to 1.

Shortly after Loflin of Ellis dribbled in for a goal in the second half, then the Bluejays got together. Gerstner started the scoring with a field goal to make it 4 to 9. Basgall followed with a long side shot, the first real field goal of the game. Mackey took a free throw and missed another. Basgall got a long side shot to tie the score, 9 all as the third period ended.

Hays was in a winning stride; Mackey got the tip-off almost regularly which enabled the Bluejays to try for scores. Gerstner broke the tie with a long goal and Mackey added a free throw followed by one from Basgall. Peay hooked one from under the goal to send the Bluejays into a 15 to 9 lead.

In the few remaining minutes Peay and Mackey each added goals while Ellis garnered a pair of free throws to finish the game at 19 to 11.

After defeating the Hays High on Thursday evening the Bluejays came back at 11 A. M. on Friday and appeared for its second game in a Regional Basketball Tournament.

After trailing Ellis for three quarters in what proved to be the most hotly contested game of the second round, the Hays Catholic Academy Bluejays pulled into a 19 to 11 win entitling them to meet Norton in the third round.

Getting underway slowly as far as scoring was concerned the contest seemed to be favoring the Ellis five. The Brennan aggregation got but half of the tip-offs during the first half and was trailing 3 to 7.

Ellis opened the game with a free toss soon equalled by Hays, which
