DISTINGUISHED VISITORS

Rt. Rev. Bishop and Very Rev. Provincial Stop at Monastery

During the past month the local monastery was host to two distinguished visitors: Rt. Rev. Francis J. Tief, D. D., Bishop of Concordia and Very Rev. Fr. Thomas, O. M. Cap., Provincial of the Capuchin Province of St. Augustine with headquarters at Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Rt. Rev. Bishop arrived on Oct. 6 and presided at the Annual Junior Clergy Examinations the next day. He also met with the New College Building Committee relative to extending the drive for funds to complete the new college to the eastern part of the Diocese. He left on October 8.

The Very Rev. Provincial arrived on October 9 and spent two weeks here. During this time he made short trips to the Capuchin Friaries in this territory, attended the meeting of the Campaign Committee a Salina and also met with several committees here at Hays.

On October 23 he met with the Rt. Rev. Bishop relative to the New College. He left for the East on Oct. 24.

If the Shoe Fits—Wear it

Crowding—running along the sidelines at a game—fighting for a place on the front line—Do you like it? Nobody does. Do you do it? That's another question.

This is a good chance to observe the Golden Rule. Others don't like to be shoved or crowded out of a good place at a game any better than you do. Then why do it? Then too, if the students did not run along the sidelines everyone would have a better chance to see the game. No organized cheering can be done if the cheering group is running up and down the line. Let the team do the running. You get your place in the cheering section and keep it. —Exchange

JUNIOR CLERGY EXAMINATIONS

Several Members of Faculty Take the Examinations

It is an ecclesiastical regulation that the Junior Clergy submit to an examination annually for several years after ordination. This examination was held at the local monastery on Tuesday, October 7.

The board of examiners consisted of Rt. Rev. Francis J. Tief, D. D.; Very Rev. Fr. George, O. M. Cap.; Rev. Charles Menig, Ph. D. and Rev. S. V. Fraser. Three of the faculty took the examination, namely: Rev. Fathers Cletus, Mathias and Frederick. Other priests here for the occasion were: Rev. John F. McManus of Wilson; Rev. John Kelleher of Zurich; Rev. Fr. Callistus, O. M. Cap. of Victoria; Rev. Fr. Marion, O. M. Cap. of Hays and Rev. Fr. Kenneth, O. M. Cap. of Munjor.

HONOR ROLL PUBLISHED

Stringent Requirements for Honors

In order to stimulate to better efforts the Faculty has decided to publish an honor roll at the end of each term.

The requirements for this distinction are very stringent. A grade of not lower than ninety per cent must be merited in the four required subjects and also in Religion; there may be no un-excused absences and the conduct and application grade must be very satisfactory. During this term ten students merited this distinction.

HOMECOMING CELEBRATED

Football Squad Guests at Banquet

The Sixth Annual Homecoming of the H. C. C. Alumni was celebrated on Thursday, October 16. Many graduates and former students attended the celebration. Quite a number partook of the lunch served at noon in the refectory. A good crowd was on hand to watch the H. C. A. team hold Ellis to a scoreless tie, and a capacity crowd filled the Fort Hays Dining Room of the Lamer Hotel, where the banquet and dance were held. The members of the faculty and also the football players were guests of the Alumni at the banquet.

During the banquet speakers were introduced by Prof. Weigel. Father Herbert, Director, was the first speaker and welcomed the alumni to their Alma Mater. Albert Spies '29 responded to the address of welcome, and Alex Pfannenstiel '24 spoke on "Homecoming". Father Alfred was then called up and spoke on "Sportsmanship". Ot Weigel '15 entertained with banjo and song between speakers. The banquet closed with the singing "America".

After the banquet the tables and chairs were removed and the dance was on. Ot's orchestra furnished the music.

"HOMECOMING"

Every school has a "Homecoming Day", and has it ever occurred to you what homecoming in its true sense really means?

Sometime or other we have seen a picture of an old man sitting in his old favorite chair. His hair is white with years, and his face is wrinkled from hardships. His head is reclining on his chest; his arms are hanging limp at the sides of his chair and in one hand he is holding his pipe.

He is enjoying a nap. And as he sleeps, old memories come to him in dreams. Now he is living his boyhood days over again. The dreams come to him as if it was only yesterday he was a young and carefree boy, swimming in the old swimming hole, or throwing his books over his shoulder and going down the street whistling a tune perhaps of his own origination. He is going to school, and pictures himself playing pranks on the teacher or fellow student. As he dreams of his school days a smile comes over his face. These are the happiest days of his life and it is a consolation just to dream of them.

Now, we have set aside a day for all the old grads to come back and live the grand old school days over again, see and talk with old friends; get acquainted with the new boys in the old school; see what the old school is doing in the way of athletics and promotions. Taking all in all, it is to live those unforgetful good old days over again. "Ain't it a grand and glorious felin'." —H. M.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

When we hear the name of Columbus mentioned, our first thought concerning him is that he was the man to discover the new world upon which we live today. But is that all the farther we should go when we honor him?

There are probably many things about Columbus on which we could write, but by far the greatest was his strength of character, to go on even when confronted by the greatest obstacles.

When we read the life of Columbus we find it not hard to prove that he possessed great strength of character. We know from ordinary circumstances that it takes courage to bring forth any new idea where the people believe exactly the opposite of what we are trying to prove. But this is what Columbus did. At a time when almost everybody believed the earth to be flat, Columbus began spreading his theory that it was really shaped like a ball and that by sailing straight in any direction you would return to the starting point. If we place ourselves back in those early days and imagine ourselves like the people of that time, would we believe any such theory? I believe not. So here the only thing that we can do is to give Columbus praise for not giving up his plan of proving this idea to the people.

After failing to interest John II. of Portugal and Henry VII. of England in his plan we read that he spent eighteen years in a struggle with poverty, striving to overcome ridicule and opposition, but never once giving up his supreme idea.

And did he fail? No; by urging himself onward he finally met one who gave up her jewels to see that he be given everything necessary to make the trip. Where could we find a better picture of perseverance and in the end obtaining your goal?

After Columbus had been given ships, men, provisions, etc. necessary for such a long journey he still was faced with hardships and other things which would have turned any other man back to the mainland. The picture of Columbus standing among a mutinous crew—-anxious, fearless, watching every bit of floating grass or weed, but sailing on and on over pathless waters and under strange skies, is another inspiring theme. But he succeeded in the end, and what more did he wish? He had proven his theory and now instead of looking upon him as a half crazy man, he was a hero among them.

What a great lesson the life of Columbus is for us. When we are in the midst of some small difficulty, should we quit? Will we reach our goal that way? We all agree that we would not, and the only way to reach this goal is to persevere in all things and never give up. If it is good we will come out victorious no matter what the difficulties. —A. K. "FLOREAT"

"The Aerend" issues quarterly from the Kansas State Teachers College at Hays. Its interesting name is derived from the Anglo-Saxon, and signifies something to be told. So far the magazine has been true to its title. Its contents range over a variety of informative subjects.

The very first issue contains a number of special interest for the German-Russian settlers of Ellis County. In "Pilgrims of the Kansas Prairies" Thelma Hruza recounts the struggle of the first settlers in their arduous search for liberty. It is an old story, a story well known to the children of these settlements; and it is told in an unusually fascinating manner. It is a joyful story, and it is also a pathetic story: joyful, when we see the disillusioned emigrants leaving their fool's paradise in Russia and coming to the "land of the free"; pathetic, when we behold one tradition after another disappear in the "great American melting pot".

It is with a masterly touch that the author plays the minor chords in the passing of the lady veiled in white and blue who visited the home on Christmas eve, of the early town crier, of the quaint marriage customs, and of many more beautiful traditions that weathered the storms of a hundred years in Russia.

The old people may regard this passing with a certain amount of "tragic grief", still they cannot but realize that the process of transformation and amalgamation must needs take its course. The generation native of the Kansas soil can but rejoice in a happy blending of the old culture with the new. Both the one and the other appreciate the sympathetic recognition given them by the able writer of "Pilgrims of the Kansas Prairies". —G. S.

SPORTSMANSHIP

Sportsmanship is applied to all games and sports but finds its real application in the athletic events between schools on the gridiron, basketball court, or the baseball diamond.

One of the essentials to all sports is sportsmanship.

Nothing will put a school's standard on a higher level, or degrade its standard to a lower level than good or poor sportsmanship. It is natural that the spectators and critics form their opinion of any school by the attitude taken by the losers, or the character of their playing.

When a decision is rendered that seems unfair for one team, and the players have a doubt as to whether it is a just penalty or not, the players should always keep in mind that the officials are working the game as they see it and not as each individual sees it. When this is kept in mind, it will help both players and spectators to show sportsmanship.

So if a team losing takes it with the same spirit as it would have taken it had it won, it is showing real sportsmanship. You will always be remembered by the spirit shown in the game when the "breaks" are against you.

So let us have a team that anyone could well be proud of and let us play the game as real sports and display real sportsmanship. —H. M.

To Write an Editorial

Sir James M. Barrie, who first made his real start in newspaper work on the Nottingham Journal, was once asked for a recipe for the production of an editorial. Here is what he wrote:

- 2 pipes equal 1 hour. 2 hours equal 1 idea. 1 idea equals 3 paragraphs. 3 paragraphs equal 1 editorial.

With the Faculty

The professors are busy with their daily tasks. Only one or the other has time for outside work.

Father Alfred takes an occasional trip west on the "galloping geese" to substitute for the pastor at Grainfield or to assist the pastor at Park.

Father Cletus is acting prefect during the absence of Father Frederick. He assists the pastor at Schoenchen twice a month.

Prof Weigel attended a Bankers' Meeting at Osborne. He also takes a hike out into the country from time to time to keep in trim in case landits hold up the bank. He does this by shooting at ducks and other moving objects. He claims to have bagged fourteen ducks on one of these occasions and he wants Lew Lane at St. Mary's to read this and take note. Prof also does a work of charity from time to time: he conducted the teachers exams for the superintendent who was laid up in the hospital at the time, and he visited his sick sister at Salina.

Coach Brennan makes an occasional forage into the country, but he has not the luck or the nerve to report such splendid results as Prof. Of course, he's young yet, he'll learn.

Father Herbert and Father Matthew were busy the past week averaging grades and sending out the reports for the first term.

Father Frederick took time out to go to his home in Cumberland, Md. to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of his parents, Mr and Mrs. J. J. Becker. Mr. Anselm Weigel is substituting for Father Frederick in the Junior High.

SENIOR SALLIES

Now that the term examinations are over we can catch our breath.

We all did not get on the Honor Roll for the simple reason that there was not enough room.

Physics Prof: "What's matter, Henry?"

Henry: "I study so much Physics that I get a stomach ache."

The seven members of the class on the first team also attended the banquet at the Lamer Hotel given by the Alumni.

Rohleder has been going home pretty regularly. We wonder what the attraction is around there. Is it the beautiful scenery?

Physics Prof: "Say, Henry, were you ever fired with enthusiasm?"

Henry: "Yes, from every physic problem."

Rupp: "Where did you get those trousers, Joe? They fit you like a glove."

Joe: "That's just why I'm kicking about them; they should fit like trousers."

Mackey: "Say, Peay, if 'f' means fifty, what does 'ff' stand for?"

Peay: "Fifty fifty".

Wasinger: "Are you wearing spectacles, Rich?"

Rich: "Yes. Through cross-word puzzles I've contracted an optical defect. One eye travels vertically and the other horizontally."

Pyysics Prof: "What is a prism?"

Joe Falen: "A place where convicts are kept."

Music Teacher: "What is a sharp?"

Koch: "A large and fierce fish."

Klenda: "Hey, Rusty, there's nothing to it."

Rusty: "To what?"

Klenda: "Nothing."

SOPHOMORE NOTES

The term exams are over and the reports will be home before the next holiday. Maybe some of the sophs will not be so anxious to meet papa.

Kippes: "What's the matter, Ed?"

Ed: "I got a sliver in my finger."

Kippes: "You want to be more careful when scratching your head."

English Prof: "Is this a good sentence: He's as crooked as a dog's hind leg?"

Class: "Yes."

Prof: "Yes; but according to nature is a dog's hind leg crooked?"

Staab: "Not as crooked as mine."

Des.h: "Do you know when water will stop running downhill?"

Basgall: "No; when?"

Desch: "When it gets to the bottom."

Schmidt: "A tailor friend of mine told me a good way to make trousers last."

Pfeifer: "How?"

Schmidt: "Make the coat and vest first."

Adolph Rome, Geore Schmidt, Boniface Jacobs, Richard Staab are making a good showing in football.

COLLEGE HAPPENINGS

Mr. Norman W. Fields, publicity representative for "The President's Own", addressed the students in assembly on the United States Marine Band. This organization will give a concert at Hays on November 4.

Tom Ryan, ex-leight-weight champion gave a talk to the assembly on "keeping fit".

The County Examinations for teachers were held at the College on October 24, 25, under the supervision of Prof. Weigel.

Father Herbert purchased two carom tables for the amusement of the boys. Judging from the crowds standing around them, they are very popular with both boarders and dodgers.

Rev. Father Vergil, O. M. Cap., of Frontenac, Kansas was a welcome visitor.

Father Gerard visited the College to get "The Idea of a University".

JUNIOR JOLTS

All members of our class with one or two exceptions are getting along nicely in their studies. We hope to keep it up for the rest of the year.

Of course all our names are not on the honor roll this time, but give us a chance.

The football players of our class are still loyal to the practice periods which they never miss.

Sauer: "Ah, quit making that noise with your heels."

Klaus: "They are the new heel-plates I had put on today."

Sauer: "That's right, I did hear Beilman talk about the mule he shod today."

Nurse: "Who are they operating on today?"

Orderly: "A fellow who had a golf ball knocked down his throat."

Nurse: "And who is the man waiting so nervously in the hall, one of his relatives?"

Orderly: "No, that's the golfer, a Scotchman, and he's waiting for the ball."

Weigel: "Wish I would not have to walk so much."

Beilman: "Why not buy a car like mine?"

Weigel: "Even if I had a car like that, I'd be afraid to drive it."

Beilman: "Oh, I had this car for over two years, and never had a wreck."

Weigel: "You mean, you had this wreck for over two years and never had a car."

Stramel: "Do our cook's spectacles magnify?"

Preisner: "Yes, they do."

Stramel: "I wish she would take them off when she cuts me another piece of pie."

Professor returning from a hunting trip, was taunted by a student: "I see you've been hunting."

The unlucky hunter nodded.

"Shoot anything?" asked the boy.

Prof: "I shot my dog."

Student: "Was he mad?"

Prof: "Well, he wasn't so darned pleased."

All the Juniors welcomed the free day on October 23, which was given by Father Thomas. Thanks.

MY SUMMER VACATION

Hays, Kansas
September 30, 1930

Dear Friend:

I am writing you a few lines to let you know how I spent my summer vacation. The first thing I did after school left out was not much more than I am doing now. After I forgot all about school I began looking for a job. The job I got was at a miniature golf course. That job lasted for about a week and a half. The next thing I did was shovel wheat with one of my school companions. This job lasted for two weeks. During these two weeks I had plenty of fun, enough work, and many good things to eat. While I worked in the harvest field I always felt well and always had a good appetite.

The larger part of my summer vacation was spent at home. After I came back from the country dad put me to work painting the house. I must tell you the truth and say that I did like to paint in the morning, but after that it was a very hard job. The best part of this job was the way dad had things arranged. He does not go to his job until twelve o'clock at noon and works until twelve at night. He would sleep until ten o'clock in the morning—and sometimes that included me. We generally had a good start by eleven o'clock. Dad can paint faster and better than I can, but I always tried my best.

After dinner I was alone and therefore the job was lonesome and tiresome. I do not regret I helped to paint this summer because I may never get another opportunity like that to learn the trade.

Well, I must stop about painting and tell you a few other things. The first party I attended was Lindy's birthday party. We all had a good time and I hope Lindy will live to be a year or two older so we can graduate together.

Another thing I must tell you is that I and some of my companions went to Russell one Sunday and only had four flat tires! Not so bad, eh!

Yours truly,

ALEX '32.

We have the largest representation of any of the classes on the honor roll this term. Let's keep it up!

The Freshman Class is progressing nicely in most of the subjects. In Algebra we are trying to add and subtract polynomials; in History we are learning something about Greece; in Latin and English we are not very far advanced.

Algebra Prof: "What is a term?"

Jacobs: "It's the time the prisoner has to sit in the 'jug'."

Prof: "You might know what one is like pretty soon."

Elmer Jacobs, Charles Bahl, and Tony Dechant appeared on the program held in honor of Father Thomas.

SUMMER HOLIDAYS

Hays Catholic College,
September 22, '30

Dear Friend:

Since you have asked me to tell you how I have been employed during the summer vacation I will start from the beginning and tell you everything that has happened.

Three days after school closed I began work in my uncle's store as a delivery boy, and worked steady for two and a half months. After that my sister, Cecilia, came home from Denver. As you know she is in nurse's training. While my sister was home one of her friends from Nebraska came to visit her, and boy, did we have fun! Two weeks later dad and my cousin Mary, who also is going to train for a nurse, went with Cecilia and myself to Denver. From Ellis we drove south as far as Dodge City, a very beautiful town. Here we turned west, and finally at six o'clock we arrived safe and sound at Pueblo, Colorado.

This city surely believes in lights. We stayed here over night, and went to a movie. The next morning we were on our way again, and the first thing we saw was an accident. A car missed a bridge and plunged over an eighty foot bank. It was a terrible sight.

When we arrived at Colorado Springs we visited many scenes. Among them was "The Garden of the Gods". It is one mass of stone statues with many images formed naturally.

When we arrived at Denver, it seemed as if we should never get through the city. But we finally reached St. Anthony's Hospital, where Cecilia is in training. We left the girls here and went sight seeing. But in the evening we all went to the Aladdin Theatre. It is quite a large theatre and has a good orchestra. The next evening we went to the Denver Theatre, the best of them all. The third day we took several mountain trips, along Bear Creek and Clear Creek Canyons up to Georgetown. Here we turned on another road and went up to Mt. Genesee and Mt. Lookout, where we saw Buffalo Bill's grave and other monuments. The scenery along these canyons and mountains is indescribable—the only way to learn anything of their beauty is to see them yourself. This is one trip I'll never forget.

We stayed at Denver five days and the sixth day we returned to Ellis. Two weeks ago I returned to Hays Catholic College, and everything is fine so far.

These are the things I have been doing all summer. Write soon to Your friend,
Paul '32.

HAYS BLUEJAYS WIN FROM RUSSELL, 12-7

Neither Team Displays the Necessary Punch to Win

Playing before a good-sized crowd of H. C. C. alumni, gathered for a homecoming celebration, the Bluejays and Ellis High School battled to a scoreless tie on Thursday, October 10.

In the first quarter Hays threatened to score, but the strong Ellis defense held. In the third quarter Hays went over for a touchdown, but a penalty forfeited the play. In the last quarter Ellis was able to reach the eight-yard line, but the solid defense of the Bluejay forward line would not give, and the game ended without a score.
