

Stay in the Know

Gas Prices by Addison Hathaway

Everyone has noticed the gas prices are increasing more and more. It has made getting to school or work much more expensive. It is about 4.30 dollars for one gallon of gas in some areas. At this rate, it could be cheaper to buy a Tesla. Lately, it costs the average person 1,200 dollars for 5 months of gas. Everything is getting more expensive. Due to Russia's attack on Ukraine, it has created an imbalance in the supply of gas for America. The financial crisis in 2008 held the record of highest gas prices of $4.10 per gallon. Now, in 2022, it's $4.30. Don't forget to fill up your tanks before gas prices rise again.

Anxiety in Children by Jamie Brown

A lot of younger people suffer from some type of anxiety disorder. Oftentimes children get really bad separation anxiety when parents leave them for any amount of time. Children can also suffer from phobias, social anxiety, and panic disorders. Anxiety looks different in everyone. Some people can be very anxious but it doesn't show, while others have a panic attack that can be very hard to calm down. Separation anxiety can be anything from being away from someone or even being away from something that makes one feel safe. Phobia is when you are afraid of something, such as ladybugs, dogs, or the doctor. Others suffer from general anxiety, which is when one becomes extremely worried about the future. Some people have social anxiety which is where people become uncomfortable and nervous around other people. 7% of children ages 3-17 are diagnosed with anxiety each year.

Food on TV by Bryce Nelson

Have you ever wondered why the food you see on TV ads looks so appetizing? There are a few reasons for this, one of them being that the food stylists spend hours working on their product. There are a few other tricks than just long hard work though. Sadly, almost everything you see in a food advertisement isn't actually edible. Most of the ingredients are either fake or substituted for something else.

For example, the smooth syrup you see being poured over a stack of pancakes is usually engine oil. The reason for this is because the pancakes don't absorb the oil as quickly as syrup. The same reason milk is usually substituted for glue in cereal commercials. And burger patties are usually painted with shoe polish to enhance the color. There are a bunch of tricks that food stylists use, but it doesn't change the fact that when you go to the restaurant, it'll look like it got stomped on.

Cute Aggression by Vivian Andersen

Have you ever seen something cute and just wanted to squeeze the life out of it? This is called cute aggression. If you've experienced this before you probably pushed it under the rug as an odd urge just you had, but it's not, it's actually quite common. Though not everyone may experience cute aggression, those who do know what I'm talking about. Cute aggression is a form of Dimorphous Expression. An example of dimorphous expression is when you're so happy you cry. Cute aggression is when you physically react in a mock aggression to something cute. Prime example you may have been told by an adult as a child is "You're so cute I could eat you up." You would assume this mock aggression to cuteness could be dangerous, but it in fact is not. The people who experience this don't want to hurt the animal, they simply want to care for it. The emotions behind this are very loving and caring. The exact cause for cute aggression is not known. What is known is it's from you having such strong emotions about something being cute you can't process it and experience this cute aggression. Next time you experience cute aggression just know a small squeeze never hurts.

Location Information

Facts about the Smokestack by Madison DeMarois

So, what is the smoke stack? The old Anaconda Smelter Stack was used for copper smelting and manufacturing phosphate products and originally used to mine iron. It is a brick smoke stack or chimney, built in 1918 as part of the Washoe Smelter of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company (ACM) in Anaconda. The smoke stack stands at 585 feet tall, making it the tallest masonry structure in the world.

The smoke stack was designed to get rid of exhaust gasses from the various roasting and smelting furnaces at the smelter. The smelter would release toxins into the air such as arsenic, copper, sulfate, lead and zinc every day, which took a toll on the environment, killing trees, putting arsenic into the soil. This has caused most Anaconda residents to test their soil and replace their grass yards due to the emissions from the stack. Don't eat the dirt.

Las Vegas by Trae .s.

Las Vegas has a lot of nicknames such as: "the City that Never Sleeps, Sin City, the City of Lights, and the Neon Capital of the World." Their slogan is "What happens in Vegas stays in Vegas." Las Vegas was founded as a city on May 15, 1905 by J. T. McWilliams. Facts: The Sky Beam at the Luxor Costs About $51/Hour. The City Sees Over 300 Weddings a Day. The first structure built by non-native settlers was built in 1855 by Mormon missionaries. Golden Gate Hotel & Casino is the oldest hotel and casino in Las Vegas, originally opening in 1906 as Hotel Nevada. I have been there three times.

The Great Outdoors

Fly Fishing by Tanner McDonald

While we all fly fish for a lot of reasons, we all share one primary goal to catch more fish. Fly fishing is most renowned as a method for catching trout, grayling and salmon. It is also used for a wide variety of species including pike, bass, panfish, and carp, as well as marine species such as redfish, snook, tarpon, bonefish and striped bass. Fly fishing is very popular all around the world and everyone has their own technique that they do. It is a good hobby and some people do it competitively. You can also tie flies to fish with as a hobby or even do it as a business.

Lost Creek by Elain Chaney

Summer is coming and the best thing is to go visit Lost Creek. It is nice to visit there. It has a few parking spots and a nice waterfall. You can do some hiking in Lost Creek, so bring your family there to have fun. It's a pretty place to see, so check it out and have fun there.

The Sky by Thomas Fortier

The sky is everything that lies above the horizon and surface of the Earth including the atmosphere and outer space. The daytime sky appears blue because air molecules scatter shorter wavelengths of sunlight more than longer ones. The night sky appears to be a mostly dark surface or region spangled with stars. The Sun and sometimes the Moon are visible in the daytime sky unless obscured by clouds. At night, the Moon, planets, and stars are visible in the sky. Some of the natural things seen in the sky are rainbows, lightning, precipitation, the northern lights, and pollution. Wow.

Gaming Madness

Having a Base For Your Opinion by Tristan Frossard

Ok so you all know when you hear something on the internet, and it says one thing or another is trash. That happens often and people just accept it. So I thought I would do something like this article on why you should try it before you just say it's trash. So why should you do this? Well sometimes it's about the person saying it's trash. Maybe they don't like it and they convinced many others not to try it. Or it's actually trash. Anyways I'm doing something about how I think Halo 5 Guardians is trash. I've never played it, so to test this out, so I spent the 20 bucks, still gagging about that, on Halo 5. Once it shows up on Friday the 25 of March 2022. I'm going to play the entire campaign, and then deem it trash or not. It's my opinion and, personally, I find trash games fun if I ignore the story and just focus on gameplay. Regardless, you should get some experience before you just call something trash. Otherwise, when you get your first experience with it, you might say something like "Hey this is pretty cool" and sound like a hypocrite. So get a base for your opinion. Just as a note, I got Halo 5 and it took me two days to get through the gag fest of a campaign, when it usually takes me a few hours. It's bad not even ignoring the story can help this game, and anyone who likes this game lives in a trash can, and smells like beans.