School Model

Personalized Learning

Student as a Learner

- Increased 6 points in Overall Accountability Score from 2019–2022
- Moved from a C to a B

Student as a Person

- Students participate in a mentoring program that involves community members to form relationships and inspirational experiences.
- Hopkins leverages the support of the community to gather donations of food, clothing, and other personal items that students might need. This is part of the whole-child approach.
- Hopkins offers students a wide range of extra-curricular activities that allow students to name and explore their interests and passions.
- Hopkin's Student Council embodies true leadership with monthly participation in local food banks and service of the community.
