

I'm a native Montanan and have been a teaching for many years. I got my Bachelor of Arts degree in Elementary Education at the University of Montana. I love learning and would go to "school" all my life if I didn't have to pay bills. Teaching allows me to continue learning and also gives me the satisfaction of helping others discover the joy of learning. I especially enjoy helping students that have struggled in school become successful and rediscover the excitement of learning.

I live on a ranch in the Big Hole Valley with my husband and three sons. I love doing the all the varied ranch work under the big Montana sky. Some of my favorite things include hiking to a high mountain lake, camping under the stars, getting up at dawn on a frosty morning and saddling up my horse, cuddling up to the fire with a good mystery, pulling homemade cinnamon rolls out of the oven for my boys.
