

Thanks for taking a look at my profile page.

I'm Jeff Koslosky and this is my 32nd year of teaching science at Beaverhead County High School. The sciences are not only subjects that I teach but something I am passionate about as they provide us with a better understanding of the world. At BCHS I'm lucky to be able to teach a wide variety of sciences and enjoy the challenge of staying up to date and sharing with my students. I hold a bachelor of science degree with several science teaching majors and a master's degree in geoscience.

At BCHS being part of a team in both teaching, and in helping students in many different facets of life have been a highlight of my career. Teaching is a continually evolving profession and this always presents new challenges to tackle. The dynamic nature of working with young men and women in the school always keeps things interesting. Coaching tennis and cross country over the years have also added significantly to my understanding of, and ability to more effectively help students. My three sons are graduates of BCHS and now they are all continuing their education well prepared for what confronts them in life.
