The following are fictional sources to show sample citations.

When citation information is not available, adhere to the MLA prescribed order of items.

Harris, Nathaniel, and Grace Montoya. Renaissance Art. New York: Thomson Learning, 2004. Print.

Summers, David, et al. "Michelangelo." The World Book Encyclopedia. 2008 ed. Print.

"Vincent Van Gogh: Early Works." DISCovering Fine Arts. Detroit: Gale, 2007. Discovering Collection. Gale. Web. 12 Jun 2009.

Wallace, William E., ed. "Michelangelo." Answers.com. Answers Corporation, 2009. Web. 27 Apr. 2009.

*"Works Cited is sometimes referred to as References. The terms mean the same thing. Each is an alphabetical list of works cited, or works to which you have made reference. Works Cited is generally used when citing sources using MLA (Modern Language Association) style, while the title References is used when citing sources using APA (American Psychological Association) style."

"Works Cited and Bibliography are not the same. In Works Cited you only list items you have actually cited. In a Bibliography you list all of the material you have consulted in preparing your essay whether or not you have actually cited the work."

"Remember:

"1. DO NOT number entries.

"2. DO NOT list citations separately by categories. All references are placed in ONE ALPHABETICAL LIST by first words of citations, regardless of where citations come from.

"3. Begin on a new page. Start on the 6th line from the top (or 1" down from the top of the paper), center, and type one of the following titles: Works Cited, References, or Bibliography. Double space after the title. List all entries in alphabetical order by the first word, taking into consideration the rules governing titles that begin with articles.

"4. Begin the first line of each entry flush at the left margin. Keep typing until you run out of room at the end of the line. Indent 5 spaces for second and subsequent lines of the same entry. Double-space all lines, both within and between entries. Remember that this is only a guideline adapted from the MLA handbook, 7th edition. You are advised to follow the style preferred by your instructor."
