Create a Path to Homework Success

Teachers know that homework is essential to the learning process and that when assignments are incomplete it leads to students falling behind quickly. At home, however it can create frustration for parents and students. Not every student and home situation is the same, but you can help bridge the gap by offering students and parents some strategies to use at home that can help keep students on task and complete assignments with less stress at home. Thepathway2success.com offers more tips.

- Organization— use a binder, a journal, a list, a timer, a reward system.
- Offer Encouragement— use motivation with positive affirmations, self-talk, and small rewards.
- Eliminate Distractions— create good habits: electronics off, quiet time, scheduled breaks, model focused work.
- Keep in touch with teachers—via phone, email, some have homework updates on the school website.
