Dear Parents and Guardians,

This weekend we set our clocks back and gained an hour of sleep. I always think of this weekend as the unofficial start of the Holiday season. In the last few weeks, several students have presented ideas about helping families and community members in need. Last weekend's Battle of the Birds was a great kick-off to the season of giving. As a Catholic community, we were able to collectively raise over $3500, which was matched by two area businesses! What a blessing to Mr. Elwer (a former long-time employee of LCC) and his family.

If you are like me, once Halloween is over, I say the holiday season has officially begun. LCC has been asked by several agencies to help during this time. We have boxes for the Marines' Toys for Tots (new, unwrapped toys) to help fill in the coming weeks. We will have information about Give-a-Christmas and a few other initiatives in the coming weeks. Part of our mission statement states that we are dedicated to helping students "become disciples of Christ who respond to God's call." We aim to achieve this by providing various opportunities for our students to get involved by volunteering their time and talent or by donating items through their treasure.

Even though we set our clocks back this weekend, this is the time of year where we all can and should move forward to help those in need. Please allow me to thank you in advance for any encouragement you may provide by taking students to stores, giving reminders and nudges and by helping to purchase items. Have a wonderful week T-Birds!

Blessings,

Mrs. Williams
