Skittles Lawsuit

Edwards and Peyton Schoonover

Have you ever eaten Skittles? Chances are you have, but did you know you were also eating Titanium Dioxide? “Titanium Dioxide is a naturally occurring compound created when titanium reacts with the oxygen in the air” (npr.org). “People are saying it's “unsafe for humans” (eathis.com). “Titanium Dioxide is associated with cancer developed after inhalation exposures, and it may have affections on DNA and gastrointestinal system function” (poison.org). “Titanium dioxide can possibly be carcinogenic to humans.”(webmd.com). This compound is found in all skittles.

Jenile, a loyal customer of Skittles, was outraged when he heard about this. “Jenile Thames, a California man, who claims Skittles candy contains a "known toxin" that makes it "unfit for human consumption," is suing the manufacturer, Mars.” Jenile Thames says Mars failed to warn consumers about the potential dangers of the ingredient titanium dioxide, which is used as a color additive in Skittles (npr.org). Maybe next time, you'll think twice before you grab a pack of Skittles off the shelf.

In the football games, we have our linemen and receivers. We interviewed one of the linemen/receivers Daigen Dorler "Dragon". We asked him what goes through his mind as a lineman during a game, and his response was that he wants to keep the quarterback calm and not stressed out. We asked him what he is thinking when the ball is getting thrown to him and he said "I just pray that I catch the ball and just run."

Another lineman for the JT Football team is Dominic "Dom" Williams. We also asked Dom about what goes through his mind as a lineman, and he said that he just gives 100 percent and does not stop until the game is over.

The JT Football team is currently getting ready for the Allen Bowden game, and they have been working hard for hours a day to get better. Come support our JT football team on September 19 when they play Allen Bowden, and cheer them to victory!

While the JT softball team has been through some rough games and good games, they have been practicing without stop for hours a day to get better and better.

We had a short interview with the team's pitcher Addison Clyma. The first question we asked her is what it feels like to find the perfect pitch and she said, "It feels relieving to find where I can throw a strike." Furthermore, we asked her for some words of encouragement for people who want to play softball but can't get the courage to and she said, "Believe in yourself and practice and never give up on yourself!"

During an interview with the cheer captain Lagyn, we asked her how hard it is to learn a routine and she said, “It takes a lot of practice, time and effort.” By the time they hang up their cheer uniforms, they will be doing better than ever!
