

The Incredible 5 Point Scale

5

Yelling or screaming. Almost spitting your words out. People will think you are feeling violent. People will probably back away. People might be afraid of you.

4

Scary sounding. Too loud for the situation. People might think you are angry and might even back away.

3

Concerned tone. It might be a little more intense than normal. People will think you feel strongly about whatever it is you are talking about or that you want to emphasize a point, but this tone is not scary or angry. This tone might also sound excited or passionate.

2

Calm tone. This is the tone of voice that is usually used when having a casual conversation. Other people can hear your words but don't feel any strong emotions coming from your voice.

1

Tiny tone. This is almost a mumble. It is hard to hear someone who mumbles. The person you are talking with might not hear your words at all.
