Class of 2019 Graduates

lost several outstanding members over the audience to the graduation cerethe years, last Sunday, they walked across the stage into their new lives outside of high school. Starting at 2:00 noticed, just live to make your abp.m., the ceremony concluded around 3:45 p.m. with the graduates exited Belt High with more than their diplomas.

The commencement ceremony commencement addresses. began with the pledge of allegiance led by Keely Drummond, the Student the class's salutatorian was MaKayla Body President for 2019-2020. After that, the band sounded the first chords off the first round of speeches. While of "Pomp and Circumstance," which was originally composed by Sir Edward Elgar for the coronation of King community members, family, friends, Edward VII. Slowly, the thirteen grad- and classmates, the valedictory aduates of the Class of 2019 made their way around the backside of the main gym in order to pause at the front of the stage for photographs. Behind them, members from the Class of 1969 attended the graduation fifty years after their own jaunt across the stage.

Although Belt's Class of 2019 Belt Principal Kyle Paulson welcomed mony and explained the class's motto, "Don't strive to make your presence sence felt!" (author unknown) while recognizing the Class of '69. After the welcome, the ceremony transitioned into several presentations including

State Golf

On Monday the 13th of May four Lady Husky golfers headed west to Seeley Lake in order to compete in the State Class C Golf Meet at Double Arrow Golf Course. On Monday the 10 girls conducted a practice round and although it was little rough, it prepared the girls for the actual competition beginning the next day.

On Tuesday the girls exceeded expectations, as they were sitting in third place as a team at the end of the day with a cumulative score of 334. Karlee from earning a medal. Flinn had an Permann led the way for the Huskies shooting a 102, putting her in the final foursome on day two. Following her was Sierra Reese who was in seventeenth place with a score of 114. Sydne Flinn shot a 118 placing her at twenty first and Tori Shelton scored 123 which put her at twenty sixth. The day went very well for the Lady Huskies and Coach Stinson was very proud of the girl's rounds. Mrs. Stinson Quote, "

by Andy Beck. As the three seniors in choir, Grace Davison, Faith Hawthorne, and MaKayla O'Neil realized that this would be last time they sang with their friends, the tears began to flow from family and friends in attendance previously met Bessette at the Capitol Building where Bessette spends much of her time as the representative of House District 24 in the state legislature. Since Bessette's birthday was the following day, Davison led the class in singing "Happy Birthday" to her. Overall, the class was very lucky to have Bessette express her thoughts on the importance of graduation and the following years for the graduates; she even canceled a scheduled trip to Las Vegas to deliver the address at little ol' Belt High.

When Bessette was done, Paulson presented the Dufresne Award to Megan Graham. Graham teaches high school math and currently heads the Belt's chapter of NHS. Graham received her award for her innovative classroom techniques and her dedication to aiding students in and out of the classroom. After Graham accepted her award, the three seniors in choir (Davison, Hawthorne, and O'Neil) sang "I Believe in You" by Audrey Snyder and the presentation of awards began.

Following scholarship presentations, the big moment came at last. The seniors of 2019 individually accepted their Belt High School Diplomas from Chad

Stroop, chairman of the Belt School Diploma, were members of Nation-Board of Trustees.

As the graduates walked across the dais, Paulson announced each seniors future plans. For instance, Elyse Adams will attend Utah State University for a major in Agricultural Business with an emphasis in economics/financing. After that, she'll serve a mission for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter -Day Saints. Raenita Berlinger hopes to attend the Welding and Industrial Technology Program at Great Falls College MSU. As for Morgan Cooper, she plans to attend MSU Bozeman and go into nursing. On the other hand, Grace Davison will attend the University of Montana Western seeking a degree in Ecology with an emphasis on Fish and Wildlife. Entering the United States Air Force, Matthew Dollenger will report for active duty. In order to enter the Pre-Apprentice Lineman Program, Robert Gliko will attend Highlands College of Montana Tech. Going out of state, Faith Hawthorne plans to attend WyoTech in Laramie, Wyoming for hough the school provided refreshtraining in auto body repair.

Back in state, MaKayla O'Neil will attend the University of ties. Montana to pursue a degree in journalism. Unlike the rest of his class. Keaghan Opheim will enter the workforce with the hope of attending college later. Victoria Shelton is also not going straight into a university, because she wishes to start her major in criminal justice online in Eastern Gateway Community College. Samantha Vaughn plans to attend college in Portland, Oregon. Majoring in astronomy and physics, Julia Vogt will attend the University of Iowa. Finally, Brendan Wing will enroll at Montana Tech, an affiliate of the University of Montana for a major in business.

Adams, O'Neil, and Vogt, who graduated with a Belt Honors

al Honor Society, and were honor students. Cooper was a part of National Honor Society and an honor student, as well.

Once the graduates received their coveted diplomas, the rose ceremony, which allows seniors to thank those who helped them in their journey to graduation with a flower, commenced with many hugs and tears set to "Laughed Until We Cried" by Jason Aldean and "My Wish" by Rascal Flats. This was followed by the senior slideshow that allowed the seniors to share their journey through pictures from childhood to graduation.

At last, Paulson concluded the ceremony and the graduated seniors threw their caps into the air, which resulted in a small child being assaulted by Opheim's glittery cap. Once the caps were retrieved, the seniors marched out to the "Windermere Overture" composed by Chris Sharp and lined up in the main hallway to give their last hug to various audience members. Altments in the cafeteria, several students had their own graduation par-

Among these parties, Davison celebrated Saturday night in the Belt Brew Pub. On the other hand, Shelton had her party at the Harvest Moon Saloon on Sunday after the event at the school. The rest of the class held a joint celebration at the Belt Pavilion where previous classmates reunited from across state lines. An exception to this was O'Neil, who opted to hold her party at the Raynesford Community Center. Many community hit the rounds of post graduation celebrations. Although these seniors are venturing out into the unknown, they are not alone. The support system that got them through high school will (cont. next page) undoubtedly serve them well in the adult world. Even though these brilliant men and women are traveling in various directions, the graduating Class of 2019 is already planning ways to keep in touch and maintain the friendships cultivated over their time at Belt Public Schools. The Valley Voice congratulates these extraordinary seniors on making it this far and wish them

As the year came to an end, the class of 2021 got to try something new in the science lab that most of them had never done before. They had the opportunity to dissect all animals, everything from a worm to a frog. The students were given instructions and a dissection kit and were on their own.

On May 14th, the first day of dissection, the students got to cut into an earthworm. They placed the worm on a spongy blue pad and made an incision in the dorsal side of clitellum. This is the part of the worm that is a thick, rounded ring found in the skin that is used for carrying offspring. Once the cut was made, the students had to pin the flopped down skin so they could see all the internal organs. The 10th graders used a diagram to locate and identify the five pair of hearts and find blood vessels that branched from the blood vessels that pumps blood to the hearts.

Once they had discovered what everything was, the students cleaned up their areas, threw away the worms, and washed all the tools that were used.

Next up on the list was vivisecting a starfish. This animal was a lot different than the worm and had more appendages that were trickier to cut into. The students counted how many arms or rays the decided on the frog while one starfish had and located the small, round hard place on the top of the starfish. The students got the opportunity to feel the different surfaces on the sea star and look at the internal skeleton. Once again, when they were finished cutting into the creature, they wiped up their station and prepared for the second dissection they would be doing that day.

On the same day they cut into the starfish, the sophomores also did a crayfish. The objective of doing the crayfish was to describe the appearance of multiple organs found in the crayfish, and name the organs in its body. Because the students did two animals that day, they didn't have a lot of time so they had to clean up quickly and get to their next class.

Friday, May 17th, the last day of anatomy study, the students had the choice between a perch and a frog. Three out of the four groups group stuck with the perch fish. The whole point in cutting into both the frog and the fish was to see the various organs in their bodies and examine how the organs create entire systems.

Dissecting the animals was a great interactive lab for the students in helping them get involved. The activity gave them a better look at the animals instead of just looking on a screen. Mrs. Horton will continue to let students dissect animals and learn the importance of the organs that make up their systems. By: Livvy Shelton as Gliko took fourth in the mile (5:03.77) and second in the two mile (10.49.99) and Hepfner earned fifth in the mile (5:04.58) and sixth in the two mile (11:03.63).

Hennes flung the disc 117-04 to take fourth place and Wing earned sixth in both the long jump (19-03.5) and triple (39-10). The 4x100 meter relay took fifth with a run of 47.33 and the 4x400 meter relay tag-teamed the mile in 3:44.96 to place second and conclude the meet's events.

Generally, in order to qualify for state an athlete must place fifth or above; however, each year one division gets to take their sixth place winner to state as well. This year, the Northern C Division will take their top six athletes to the state meet in Laurel this weekend.

Through qualifications at the divisional meet and previously achieved pre-qualifying standards, the Husky track team will send sixteen athletes to test their talents against the best Class C runners, jumpers, and throwers across the Treasure State..

The State C Meet kicked off this morning and will continue throughout the day and into tomorrow. For those interested in watched the events but unable to attend, the meet will be broadcast on the NFHS Network.

The Voice wishes Belt's athletes the best of luck at state. Next week a special edition of the Voice will share the state meet results. By: Adelle Meissner

Not far behind her was Reese who scored a 130 putting her in thirtieth place. Shelton, in her last high school golf meet, fired a 128 which was good for thirty fourth. The team score at the end of two days was a 707, which earned the girls sixth place overall out of eleven teams. Coach Stinson noted that "...while day two at state didn't go as the girls had hoped, it was a another successful season and we gained great experience which will pay off next year and beyond."

When all the numbers were tallied Manhattan Christian captured their third consecutive girls' title, followed by Chinook and Fort Benton. The boys' tournament was also hosted at Double Arrow and the Manhattan Christian boys won their second consecutive state crown.

This season was very successful for Huskies as they had ten of the thirteen members qualify for state, which has never been done before in team history. The trip was certainly a learning experience for the girls and should help them as they prepare for next year's competition.

The Valley Voice would like to congratulate the state golf team and the Lady Huskies on a fine season. By: Natalie Larsen

Academic Awards

At 8:30 last Monday morning students in grades three through twelve gathered in the gym in order to participate in the annual Academic Awards Ceremony. This event recognizes students' academic achievements throughout the school year.

Every year the fifth grade students participate in the Charles M. Russell essay contest. This year's winner was McKenzie Pogany.

The National Scholastic Challenge certificates were next to be handed out. This test is a general knowledge exam for middle school students. Everyone who performed better than the national average received a certificate. Seventh grader Clayton Jassen was the state winner for the eighth grade test, and Mac Hedstrom was the school winner for the sixth grade test.

Next was the Iron Husky Awards which g to one boy and girl who show outstanding effort in the weight room. This year's winners were Grace Norstedt along with Matt Dollenger and Gavin Roberts

These five kids were awarded with perfect attendance; fifth graders Cade McCoy, McKenzie Pogany, Cash Smith, and Kyle Atwood and third grader Junior Smith. These students received a Kindle Fire for attending school every day this year.

Debates are one the students' favorite activities from Government each year, especially the tournament. Mr. Koontz awarded Brendan Wing (1st), Elyse Adams (2nd) and Tori Shelton (3rd) for an outstanding job in this year's debates. Along with those awards were the winners of the Geography Bee, Reese Paulson earned third, JJ Triplett took second and the school-wide winner was Tara Hedstrom. Hedstrom went on to represent Belt at the State Bee.

Next Anita Virts recognized the winners of the Patriots Pen and Voice of Democracy writing and speech contests. For the middle school students, Reese Paulson took first, Chloe Feit received second, and Ella Pethel came in third. For the senior speakers Matt Dollenger was the first place winner, Grace Davison was second and Julia Vogt along with McKayla O'Neil tied for third.

The Heisey Foundation also recognized three students for their academic improvements over the course of their high school careers. Senior Brendan Wing and Juniors Brooke Schraner and Karlee Permann received both a certificate of achievement and a two hundred dollar check.

Every year in memory of Jim Pimperton, who died in a car crash in 1982, a freshmen is awarded with the Pimperton Award. This year the award went to Asa Jassen.

Seniors Elyse Adams, Julia Vogt and McKayla O'Neil are receiving honors diplomas this Sunday at Graduation and were recognized during the Awards Ceremony for all of their hard work during the past four years. Along with receiving recognition for their honors diplomas, Mr. Paulson awarded these three students with the Bright Flight Award, which recognize the top three ACT scores in each class.

The assembly was very rewarding for the students as it recognizes all of their academic success throughout the year. It ends the year on positive note and gives the students much to look forward to for next year. By: Natalie Larsen

Katelyn's Visit

Last week on Friday the 17th, Katelyn Reese job shadowed Michelle Stinson in the Belt School as part of a class she is enrolled in at Great Falls High School. "It was a great experience for me and I learned a lot by watching Mrs. Stinson," said Katelyn after her day was over. She watched Stinson teach the middle school students and took notes. The observation lasted the entire school day.

Reese's field experience was a requirement for her Developing Child class at Great Falls High School. Each Student was allowed to choose any work area that had children younger than them. Reese arrived in the morning, greeted by all of her old classmates and friends. It was a warm welcome that brought back several fond memories of her experiences at the school. Reese is a former member of the Belt School. She lived in the Belt community for four years before she decided to transfer to East Middle School and started eighth grade year. She is currently a freshman at Great Falls High, where she has a very good academic record. Reese is currently on the Honor Roll and works extremely hard to juggle school and her part-time job at the Black Eagle Community Center.

In the future, Reese will take the Developing Child class again. She claims that when the time to job shadow rolls around again, she will most likely choose a place in Great Falls that has more young children and provides her variety in her experiences. It was a pleasure for the Belt School to welcome Reese back into Husky Nation for another day.

Congrats Grad!

As the school year at a close, Brendan Wing is the last senior of the class of 2019 to be highlighted in the Valley Voice. Wing was born in Great Falls, Montana and joined the Huskies in second grade.

When asked what his favorite classes were in school.

Wing said any class with Mr. Hoyer. Mr. Hoyer has been a great inspiration to Brendan in helping him in his years at Belt. Wing mentions that he will miss marketing with Mr. Hoyer and all of his other classmates in that class.

His greatest memory of Belt School is painting B hill with his classmates and then engaging in class Olympics with paint all over their bodies. He comments "that day was a lot of fun and I will miss doing things like that with my class."

Brendan has been an active member of Belt in participating in basketball and track all four years of high school and he tried DECA his last year of high school. He made varsity for basketball all four years and qualified for state track in two events, triple jump and long jump, for the first time this year.

After graduation, Brendan plans on attending Montana Tech in Butte next year to major in business. Wing hopes to work at a bank in the future and possibly open his own business one day. Brendan will accomplish great things in his life outside the walls of BVHS and will be missed by lots. With that the Voice wishes all the best to the members of the Class of 2019!

Vogt Recognized

Belt High school's Julia Vogt received the Great Falls Tribune Academic and Leadership All-Star Award. Vogt is an extremely talented student and looks forward to a very bright future as she will matriculate to the University of Iowa to study astronomy and physics.

A letter was sent to principals around the area stating "We're looking for those students who shine long after the bell rings at the end of the school day. We want to recognize students who have not just excelled in the classroom, but who have made a difference in their school and community." Anybody who knows Vogt's character is well aware that she meets these standards. A nomination form was filled out, which contained examples of the achievements the student accomplished and actions he or she has taken to improve the community, and thus the young scholar was set in the running for the award.

Vogt won the prize and will have a story printed about her in the Great Falls Tribune. It is without a doubt obvious that Vogt has earned this title. She was a bright student while she attended the Belt School and will be missed. The Valley Voice wishes her the best of luck in her post secondary career as she leaves this small community as valedictorian of the Class of 2019. By: Sierra Reese

As school has ended for the year and students are returning home for summer vacation, accidents regarding driving under the influence tend to increase. This summer, and always, it is important to make an extra effort to avoid driving under the influence and decrease accident numbers. Everyone looks forwards to summer and traveling to go to rodeos, camping trips, family gatherings, and vacations. As you embark on summer adventures be sure to never drink and drive. Utah Bound

This year the Belt School district will be bidding a fond farewell to art teacher Troy Adams. For thirteen years Mr. Adams and his family have lived in Belt and the time has now come for the Adams clan to embark on a new adventure in Utah.

Mr. Adams will be moving his family to a town quite a bit larger than Belt in Beaver, Utah. Adams decided to relocate because he was offered a good job in another state where he will continue teaching closer to his relatives. He will be providing art instruction in seventh through twelfth grade and says that he hopes to last at least another decade, as he enjoys teaching.

Prior to moving to Belt Adams taught in Utah for three years and with hopes of a new start traveled to Sidney, Montana where he spent the next twelve years of his life also teaching high school students art.. In the summer of 2006 he moved his family to Belt where he and his wife Terri decided that Belt was the perfect place to raise their family.

While working in Belt Adams taught art to students as young as first grade all the way through twelfth grade. In his first year here he coached middle school football but after that he decided that he would rather hunt in the fall. Mr. Adams states that he has a lot of fun memories of hunting and fishing in the area.

When asked what some of Mr. Adams favorite memories were while teaching at Belt Schools he replied with, "I love seeing how well the students do at the State Fair art competitions because of the quality of the majority of students work." He also added, "I will of course miss the stories that Mr. Hoyer shares and seeing Mrs. Patty's smile in the office every day." Mr. Adams would also like to thank the students and staff in Belt for always making Belt such a great place to live and to raise his kids. "A part of my heart will always be a Husky!"

The Valley Voice would like to thank Mr. Adams for his many contributions to the Belt School System and community over the years and wishes him well in his future. Thank you for a great thirteen years!

After the 2019 school ed Belt High will bid adieu to elementary teacher, Lori Swanson. For twenty-one years Swanson has been part of the Belt staff directory and is college in Montana. now faced with a new journey. Her husband took a job in Laurel, Montana where he will be a part of the Yellowstone Bank Corporation.

Swanson's family moved to Belt in the summer of 1998 after her husband took a job at the Belt Valley Bank. Before moving to the valley her family was living in Geraldine where she had been teaching 1st graders for eight years. Two years shy of a decade, the family was ready to embark on a new adventure in Belt. The Title 1 job opened just two weeks before school started that year and Mrs. Swanson jumped at the opportunity and has been at Belt Schools for the year is complet- past twenty-one years. The Swansons moved to town with their two year old Colton and after being settled in for a year the family added a daughter, Jordan. The kids graduated from Belt in 2015 And 2018 respectively and are both attending > Mrs. Swanson has been all over the state offering her teaching abilities to many age groups. The first job she took was in Peerless in 1982 where she taught a combination of 3rd and 4th graders, followed by a stint at Bissel-Olney (near Whitefish) to instruct 6th and 7th graders. Her penultimate stop was in Geraldine where she guided 1st graders before wrapping up her career in Belt. While in Belt her responsibilities have included classroom instruction in: Title 1, 1st grade, 3rd grade, and 4th grade, as well as orchestrating the adoption of new programs like Accelerated Reading and Math.

Mrs. Swanson will be moving to Laurel, Montana this summer and stated that after thirty-seven years as a classroom teacher she is ready to take on new challenges. One of Mrs. Swanson's favorite activities that she did while in Belt was teaching and being the director of the after-school program, Husky Club. Swanson ended her interview with, "Belt has always been a great community to live and work. I'm grateful for the education that my children received and special friendships that we've gained over the years. I will definitely miss this place."

The Valley Voice and community would like to thank Mrs. Swanson for sharing her teaching abilities with the school and wishes her well in her future endeavors.

Donuts for Dads

Although Father's Day is still a month away, the elementary students treated their dads to a special celebration on Friday, May 17th in the library at 7:30 a.m. Children in pre-k through fifth grade were able to bring their fathers to the school in the morning and give them donuts, while also presenting them with specialized cards made during class earlier in the week. The library was packed with youngsters and their dads, with a good time was had by all.

These events were started by Ms. McNally three years ago with the goal of integrating classroom activities and family time. Both galas were a big success and the dads were happy to take part in the fun, so McNally plans to continue the event in the future. Second grader Kale Stroop stated that "it was fun to have my dad come to school for a while and see what I am been doing throughout the year".
