Principal Newsletter

Dear Parents and Guardians,

This past weekend, we set our clocks back an hour. If you are like me, the extra hour of sleep is appreciated, but the early traces of night are not. Knowing that there is not as much daylight to try and fit everything I need to do, as well as what I would like to do, forces me to be more efficient and creative with how I spend my time in the winter months. The desire and need to maintain an active lifestyle, spend time with my family and friends and keep ahead with the day-to-day operations of the school can be challenging at times. There is much to do, and oftentimes not enough time or energy to do everything.

As often as we have encouraged our students "to stick to the plan" this school year, it is important to try and maintain balance between goals and obligations especially as we move into the winter months and holiday season. No matter how busy we find ourselves, it is important to assess our priorities. What should our focus be each day? It is important that no matter how busy we get, we still make time for God. Even in the busy days and weeks ahead, we should be serving God and putting him first.

Kairos is a perfect opportunity to bond with God. I am looking forward to spending time with not only the seniors and some of my coworkers, but also with our creator. I appreciate that these days are built in so that I can ensure quality, uninterrupted time with our Father. I am truly grateful to work in an environment where I've been afforded that opportunity.

In the coming weeks, I hope you will make time for all the things that matter: spending time with loved ones over a football game, creating early morning shopping memories, grandma or mom's cooking, and, most importantly, spending time with God. No matter if we are in the car on our way to a store, at a football game, or on a run, God is always with us. Have a great week!

Blessings,

Ms. Williams
