IHS Takes Tri-Color at Hill County Fair for 7th Consecutive Year

Reporters Ashley Durham & Mary Maddox

John Ellis' pencil portrait was the piece of art picked to receive the Tri Color Ribbon or "Best of Show" at this years' Hill County Fair. This is the seventh year that an Itasca student has taken the top honor.

Receiving first place ribbons were Laura Librado-2, Gabby Rivera-1, J.J. Perez-1, Candice Kowalski-1, Zech O'Rarden-1 and John Ellis-1.

A Very Special Christmas Gift

Curry has worked for the Itasca Funeral Home for the past 44 years and has enjoyed every minute of it. She was born and raised in Itasca, and has always dreamed of staying here until her last days.

The problem started when the house she lived in was sold and she needed to find a smaller place to live. She planned to move into an apartment in Itasca, but found out that there was none available for lease until late in the year. She had to settle for an apartment in Hillsboro.

"I would have done anything to come back to my home town," Curry said.

Her daughter Terri Craigmile and granddaughter Bridget Moore and her husband found a duplex for lease in Itasca in November and swore everyone to secrecy until Christmas.

"They (daughter and granddaughter) said that when they walked into the house, aside from some homey touches, it was exactly what they had been looking for," Curry said.

Every small town knows that there is no such thing as a "secret" but this family was determined. To do so they painted at night and when people would pass by as they worked outside, they would run inside. They would also tell people that they were Christmas shopping when in fact they were putting up ceiling fans, changing window frames, and hanging curtains.

Christmas morning, Terri drove to Hillsboro to pick her mother up, telling her that they were going to visit some people in the Itasca Nursing Home.

"I noticed after turning on the wrong street that something was wrong," Curry said. "We parked along side the road facing a house on Files Street. I was a little confused, but my daughter told me to just get out of the car and follow her. When she opened the door I was amazed at what I saw."

The family has hung a huge sign that read "Welcome Home Granny!"

"If I had heart trouble I would have died that instant," Curry said.

Now Curry's dream has come true.

"If you get anything out of this article," Curry said. "I hope it is that there is a Santa Claus, and dreams really do come true."

Itasca Item Printing Press

Storing and moving the printing presses was the job of the school district. Maintenance supervisor Patty Miller oversaw the moving and securing the presses in their new building.

"It has taken sometime to get the printing press actually moved," Miller said. "Everyone was waiting on everyone else. But we finished the job and they are going to look great."

Senior Spotlight-Rachel Anderson

Reporter Sarah Evans Caricature by Gabby Rivera

"Optimistic, crazy, and outgoing!" is how 18 year old Rachel Danae Anderson describes herself.

Rachel is the daughter of Randy and Joy Anderson. She has three sisters Melody 29, Amanda 11 and Grace 3.

"My sister Melody is my role model," Rachel said, "because she never let her personal problems stop her from achieving her goals."

Rachel is very active in school. She is one of two senior girls who played on the girls' varsity basketball team where she was nominated for the Wendy's Heissman Award. She will compete in UIL tennis. Last year she advanced to Regionals in the singles event. In March, she will compete in UIL Literary Criticism and Social Studies. Rachel is the treasurer of the Itasca National Honor Society.

When Rachel is not busy with school or sports, she enjoys listening to music (preferably country and rock), reading Harry Potter, driving around in her 2000 Saturn, and playing tennis. Rachel is also active in church where her dad is the pastor.

"Itasca is great!" Rachel said, "It's so much better than all the other schools I have attended."

Rachel's favorite teachers are Mrs. Weatherly, Mrs. McClure, and Mrs. Swilley. Her favorite class is "Trig" with Mr. Scott. Her favorite quote is "close the orifice on your anterior, medial cranial surface!" by none other than Mrs. Swilley.

Rachel has attended Itasca since her junior year and has loved every minute of it.

"I will never forget Mrs. Swilley-isms that you never understand the first time" Rachel said "and being one of Chad's Chix during football season!"

Although she loves Itasca High, she realizes it is almost time to take the next big step.

"I am 98.257% ready to graduate," Rachel said. "After I do graduate, I hope to attend Tarleton State University and become a teacher."

Although Rachel is not fully ready to graduate, she has some advice she would like to hand down to the underclassmen.

"Do your best even when you don't feel like it, because your grades come back to haunt you later."

Senior Spotlight Victoria Jimenez

Photographer & Reporter Devin Corbitt
Caricature by Gabby Rivera

Victoria Lee Jimenez cannot wait for graduation. She has attended school in Itasca for nine years.

"I'm getting married on June 23, so I want graduation to hurry up and get here."

Victoria's goals for the future include finishing college and getting a high paying job. In ten years, she sees herself as being married and rich. She loves everything about herself. She describes herself as nice, truthful, and an angel.

"My pet peeve is annoying people. But, I do enjoy being with my friends. They don't annoy me too often."

During school, Victoria is involved in crosscountry and track and field. In her spare time, she enjoys driving her Monte Carlo or just being around her fiancé and her friends.

"My friends are fun to be around and they're easy to make fun of, especially Rosemary."

Victoria was born on Veterans' Day, November 11, in Dublin, Texas. Her parents are Reymundo and Laura Jimenez.

"I really love and admire my mommy and daddy," Victoria said, "They are my role models."

Although school is not a big priority at the moment, except to graduate from, Victoria does have a very important message to the underclassmen.

"Abstinent is the way to be!"

Wampus Cats Make 2007 Play-off

The 11-2A District runner up Wampus Cats played the 14-2A Gunter Tigers in the Zebra Roundup Warm-Up Saturday, February 17, in Grandview. The play off preview gave the teams another practice game; this time against a team that had also made it to the playoffs.

The Itasca team lived up to their name, the Wampus Cats (the fiercest cat in the jungle), by beating the Tigers 71-54. The Cats continued to display the skills that have advanced then to the playoffs. Kendale Mayberry's unrelenting leadership led the team, as he set up plays, scored and assisted other players in scoring. Freshman Desmond Guy and Sophomore DeVeon Mayberry continued to polish their ball handling skills and management of the court as they gave Kendale a breather without disrupting the flow of the Cats' game.

Clayton Wienecke played well at both ends of the court, scoring or assisting and blocking numerous Tiger shots. Mikey Marshall and Dee Marshall also contributed with scores but their contributions under the basket in rebounds are part of the reasons the Cats have a 19-5 overall record and a 10-2 district record for the season. Another big factor in the Cats' awesome season is Tralyn Harden and his magic shot (when it is hot – it is sizzling). He put 26 points on the boards and did a great job of rebounding for the Cats.

Adding to Harden's 26 points were Desmond Guy 13, DeVeon Mayberry 11, Mikey Marshall 10, Clayton Wienecke 4, Dee Marshall 4 and Kendale Mayberry 3.

The Wampus Cats will meet the Dallas Life Fighting Lions (Oak Cliff) in the bi-district play off game in Midlothian on Wednesday, February 21, at 6:30 p.m. Time and place for future games will be posted on the Citizens State Bank's and Special Events Center's reader boards.

They Really do Award the Money

Reporter Ashley Durham

Teachers repetitively tell seniors to apply for scholarships online, but the seniors don't believe that they will receive any money. Itasca High's Autumn Bennett is proof that seniors who apply for scholarships online are rewarded.

She is the proud recipient a $2,500 scholarship. She is one of only 112 high school seniors who are recognized as a Horatio Alger Texas Scholar. Autumn got the application from www.fastweb.com.

Horatio Alger Scholarships are awarded on the basis of a student's integrity, self-reliance, determination, and perseverance. Autumn shows all of those characteristics.

Businesses, groups or individuals wishing to come on board at any of these levels are encouraged to contact the Healthy Woman office. There are special benefits to the sponsors at each level of involvement.

The event begins with a Women's Health Expo with health and wellness information, health screenings, door prizes, and even a chance to do a little shopping with some of the vendors. The FREE Health Expo times are 5:00-6:30 pm. Beginning at 6:30, women will have an opportunity to have dinner at $12.00 per person, followed by nationally known speaker, Dr. Suzanne Metzger. Entertainment during dinner will be harpist, Lorenzo Gonzalez, from the North Park Shopping Mall in Dallas.

Dinner is by reservations and tickets can be purchased at the Healthy Woman/Senior Circle office at Hill Regional Hospital. For further information, please call Becky Jones at 254-580-8887 at the Healthy Woman office.

Presidents' Day

Each year most government offices, local, state and federal, close the third Monday of February in observance of Presidents' Day. Until 1971, February 12 was observed as Lincoln's Birthday and February 22 as Washington's Birthday, but as more federal holidays were added, the two were combined.

Most Americans forget the reason for the holiday and just see it as another day to get out of school and go shopping. Recently Senior Paige Bailey gave a speech in class that is most appropriate for this holiday and hopefully will encourage some thought on American presidents, past, present and future.

What I Want a President to Be

Paige Bailey

Whenever I think of an American president, I get an image of a head silhouetted against an American flag, all lit up from behind. That sounds really corny, but to me, a president should be almost larger than life: pristine, well spoken, neatly-dressed, intelligent and attractive. Gender or race doesn't really matter to me, if he or she can personify all those qualities.

Above all, the president should keep the dignity of the United States spotlessly clean. Other countries see the executive as a symbol of a whole nation, and if he looks bad, all of us do. Bill Clinton and Richard Nixon were both fine examples of a president in some ways, but as far as morals were concerned, they were both severely lacking.

They should keep in touch with current issues and not be afraid to take risks and make changes, if it is in the best interest of the American people. Right now, for example, immigration and Iraq are two of the largest areas of controversy; twenty years from now, and even by the next election, all that will be different.

I believe that an American president should be Christian, but also tolerant of other religious and belief systems separate from their own. They must keep an open mind at all times, and try their hardest to make their judgment in the best interest of all.

Presidential power is one of the highest there is; the person wielding that authority should fully understand that.

Students Aim for $3,000 in 2007 Jump Rope for Heart

Press Release

Fourth and fifth graders at Itasca ISD are jumping at the chance to fight heart disease and stroke, our nation's No. 1 and No. 3 killers. On March 23 at Itasca Elementary, the school will hold its annual Jump Rope for Heart event.

Students will jump rope to raise funds for the American Heart Association, which funds cardiovascular disease research and public and professional education programs.

Jump Rope For Heart is co-sponsored by the American Heart Association and the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance.

The average heart beats 100,000 times each day. One of the best ways to take care of your heart is to make exercise a regular part of your everyday life. Jump Rope For Heart teaches elementary school students how exercise benefits the heart and shows students that volunteering can be fun and beneficial to the whole community. They learn they can make a difference by providing important community service and having a great time at this fun-filled family event.

Money raised by the event will go to fund potentially lifesaving research into heart and blood vessel diseases and educational and community programs. Please help our students help others. When a student asks you to be a sponsor, support Jump Rope For Heart with whatever you can afford to give. If you would like to help more, call your nearest American Heart Association office at or call 1-800-AHA-USA (1-800-242-8721).

The students will turn in their money and sponsor sheets on March 19. Please help them reach their goal

Do You Remember . . . ? - "The Handkerchief"

Columnist Carl Sweeney

Back during earlier days and even through World War 2 fashion was not a priority. The ladies had to feed, clothe, wash and cook and many other everyday things, and there was little inclination or need for fancy clothes.

They couldn't jump into the model "T" or a wagon and dash into town to buy a knit shirt, perma-press pants or other items of ready-made clothing.

Most of it was done by hand and treadle sewing machines with material ordered from Sears and Roebuck or from feed sacks. About the only time they dressed up was to go to church or a funeral.

Some of the ladies in town wore fancy clothes, hats and gloves to various events such as the Ruskin club, the 42 club, the Eastern Star, or maybe to Dallas or Fort Worth to a theatre.

However, the ladies everywhere did have a special accessory that served practical needs as well as adding a little flair to their dress. It was a small thing, but it added much to the dress and well-being. It was a nine or ten inch square cloth called a handkerchief. It was often make of linen or other fine cloth such as silk, with lace and other decorations, crochet, or tatted lace. One would think the object would be put to more practical use as Webster says "a small cloth used for wiping the nose," etc. Not this one, we had another pocket with a more common one for that.

The little square could be used to cover the lady's head for church going, for cleaning eye glasses, and one was always carried to funerals even though tears might not be forthcoming, more likely it was used to dab perspiration before the days of air-conditioning.

I remember our mothers using spit and the handkerchief to clean a smudge on our face. The young girls also carried them, but for more practical uses than an accessory. They did not carry purses, so the handkerchief was put in a pocket if there was one, or tucked into the sleeve above the hand. Mother sometimes tied a coin in the corner of a young girl's hankie for safekeeping. Also during recess at school, we played a game called "drop the handkerchief."

I am sure most of you ladies remember a simpler time when if a young lady was interested in a certain young man, she would discreetly drop her handkerchief, making sure, he was aware of it. Of course, he would pick it up for her, and a conversation began. The boys used what was called "a line," and the girls used the handkerchief.

After World War II, we began to modify handkerchiefs somewhat; they began to have patterns and were not always square. Some were colorful with even scenes of states, etc. Handkerchiefs probably were one of the most popular all time gifts women received. One of the most popular was monogrammed, including men's. Often women stored them in lace-trimmed boxes with perfumed sachets inside. Quite often, when a lady wore a blouse with a pocket, or a tailored coat, there was a decorative hankie in the pocket-for contrast or decoration. Men have almost invariably used a coat pocket-handkerchief for this purpose, and it continues today.

Another use for handkerchiefs was to make quilt tops, especially when it was no longer popular. There are some beautiful old antique quilts made from fancy handkerchiefs, and they are quite valuable today.

There was another kerchief that comes to mind. They were used in earlier times. It was the bandana. Webster says, "it was a large scarf for the head," but we know it was much more than that. In fact, it was more versatile than the common hankie. The bandana probably originated in the Latin countries. The Vaquero used it extensively. Our cowboys made the bandana popular in our country. They wore it around the neck to keep out the dust while working cattle, or on trail drives to mop the sweat from the brow, to secure a splint for a broken arm or leg, as a wash rag when cleaning up in the creek, or even worn around the shoulders with the chambray shirt and blue jeans, to church or other social functions. The Latin ladies also used the bandana for an accessory to their dress.

When the cleansing tissue came into being the handkerchief faded out of the picture, even though they are gone, those old fancy handkerchiefs will always have a special place in our hearts and memories.

Wampus Cats of the Week

Cats' 6th/12th Man on Court & Field

High school UIL athletics is set up to give students the opportunity to test themselves and their accomplishments against their peers and to teach other life enhancing skills such as good sportsmanship and teamwork.

It may not have been designed to booster community spirit and involvement, but that is certainly, what happens especially in Itasca.

Wampus Cat fans follow their teams during bad times as well as good, but they are particularly supportive during play-off time. During the football play offs they packed the stands at Pennington Field and the Gopher Bowl giving the impression that Itasca had many more than its 1500 population.

The fans' support of the students and coaches, many times, give the teams that extra edge that is the difference between winning and losing. All of the Cat teams are appreciative of the fans support.
