2019 Gold Out shines light on childhood cancer

Fundraiser brings in more than 7,000

Coahoma ISD is helping to shine a light on childhood cancer research by raising $7,340 in the annual Gold Out fundraiser.

During October, Coahoma ISD sold Gold Out T-Shirts and accepted donations for Team Up which is a charity started by Angel Miller and Kelly Pickle. Both women have children impacted by cancer.

All the money raised, excluding the cost of the T-Shirt, is directly donated to childhood cancer research facilities each year by Miller and Pickle.

"Thank you to everyone who participated this year in purchasing a T-shirt or donating money to help kids who can't fight cancer alone," said Kristen Joslin, who oversaw the fundraising drive for Coahoma.

Brynn McJimsey, Coahoma Elementary School assistant principal, handed out the first 9-weeks Top Dog Awards on Friday, Nov. 1, during the morning assembly.

This year, each nine-weeks Top Dog award will focus on recognizing and encouraging one positive trait. Compassion was the focus of the first nine-weeks awards. One student from each classroom was nominated by his or her teacher.

Award recipients from the traditional elementary school program were: Nash Wegner, Kylie Gillion, Nya Esparza, Henzley Clinkscakes, Bella Bozeman, Kaiclynn Molina, Bo Wilson, Kinzlee Henderson, Michael Bryant, Kelton Froman, Cooper Johnson, Juan Cuellar, Harley Salazar, Lilly Dugan, and Gian Carlo Maldonado.

Award recipients from The Academy program were: Kirsten Rojo, Reagan Wilkerson, Iker Martinez, Jordyn Mugica, Mason Gammons, Jaida Sheppard, Chloe Collier, Annabelle Lloyd, Aiden Granger, Kinzlyn Kemper, Kaylor Freeman, and Candun Guse.

Dobbs finishes CC season strong

Serena Dobbs ended the Cross Country season with a strong finish at the UIL Regional meet held on Oct. 28.

The CHS freshman placed 92nd out of 177 competitors and finished with a time of 13:59. Dobbs ran in 35 degree weather on a tough course.

"This was a great learning experience, and I'm really proud of her," said Head Cross Country Coach Joe Mireles.

CHS theater haunted house a success

"The Coahoma Picture Show" haunted house fundraiser held on Saturday, Nov. 2, drew a large crowd and brought in around $1,200.

Money raised from the event will help pay for the travel costs of CHS students who will be attending a three-day theater festival in Dallas set for later in the month.

Theater students worked for several weeks on the production which included recreating scenes from six popular, scary movies.

The production received a number of positive reviews on social media.

GOLD OUT

Gold Out was brought to Coahoma ISD in 2018 by Bulldogs Head Football Coach Chris Joslin and his wife, Kristen. While employed at Rockdale High School, Chris worked for the school's head football coach Jeff Miller, Angela's husband.

Both Chris and Kristen watched as the Miller's son, Gunner, fought an aggressive form of bone cancer called Ewing's sarcoma. Gunner was diagnosed his freshman year in high school but has since gone into remission. He is now a freshman at Texas Tech University.

Coahoma ISD announced the final totals for this year's campaign on Oct. 24, during the varsity football game between the Bulldogs and Stanton Buffaloes.

Although Coahoma High School colors are red and white, Bulldog fans were encouraged to wear their Gold Out shirts to show support for the fundraiser. The varsity football team wore special gold and red uniforms.

honorary captains, and they or their representatives joined the Bulldogs for the traditional coin toss at midfield.

Honorary captains were Gunner Miller, who was represented by Trinady Joslin and Zoie Joslin; the late Briella Heranandez, who was represented by the Quiroz family and her sister, Eliana; and six-year-old Serenity with her family. Serenity was diagnosed at 5 years old with leukemia. She went into remission on Sept. 6 and continues her treatments every 10 days in Lubbock. Her last day of treatment is set for Oct. 17, 2021.

Since its founding five years ago, Teaming Up has donated more than $250,000 to fund childhood cancer research.

Bulldogettes end season with Bi-District appearance
