

For my fccla project I decided to educate people on how to play an easy song on the acoustic guitar. It was a fairly simple song, and it was fairly simple to teach. I first learned the song, then got a camera to record, then got my brother to hold said camera and record the video. After the video was recorded, I spent many hours leveling out the audio, and smoothing out the frame. After more edits, I was finally ready to upload my video to YouTube, and send it to my peers for edits/advice. After receiving advice from my peers, I made said edits/changes for the video and then uploaded the final version to YouTube.