Free Application for Federal Student Aide (FASFA) Opportunity

On Saturday, February 20th, 10 AM - 2 PM, BCHS will host another FASFA day for senior students and their parents to apply for financial aid for college. It will be held in room 113. The parent and student should both plan to attend if possible. You will need your previous years tax returns. If you have any questions, see Mrs. Grossman in the guidance office.

Dual Enrollment for 2020

BCHS will be offering several options for dual enrollment for the 2020-2021 year for juniors and seniors.

Point University will be offering two class on campus each semester next year. Point will meet with qualifying students on Monday, February 10. There will be a parent meeting on Thursday, February 20 for parents at 6 PM in the cafeteria.

We will also be working with Ogeechee Tech to increase opportunities for students to go to campus for Career Tech. If 10 or more students enroll, Bryan County Schools will provide transportation for those students.

Savannah Tech will continue to teach welding on campus.

If you have any questions regarding dual enrollment, speak with your students counselor, Ms. Mosier (juniors) or Mrs. Grossman (sophomores)

Class Dues

If your student has not paid their class dues, the time is now. Class t-shirts are available for grades 9 - 11.

Seniors, remember your dues cover your diploma and diploma cover. If you need assistance with this, please see Ms. Blankenship, Mrs. Hendrix, or Mrs. Walker. We will be happy to help.

Parent Tips of the Week - Responsibility

Responsibility is being accountable for one's actions, whether good or bad. Taking on more independence and responsibility is part of your adolescent's growth, and teaching the value of responsibility goes a long way in guiding him or her to becoming a responsible young adult. Responsibility is not just about how the choices your teen makes affect them, but also how their choices and actions affect others. Giving your teen more responsibility throughout these high school years will set them up for success when they eventually leave the family home.

Try to hold firm on consequences for behavior. A big part of responsibility is dealing with the consequences of your own actions, and while your teen may be really good at breaking house rules, it is your job to enforce the consequences. Perhaps your teen missed curfew and therefore doesn't get access to the computer for a week. Or if they don't help out with their household tasks they aren't allowed to hang out with a friend after school. By setting clear expectations and consequences when those expectations aren't met, you're teaching your teen about responsibility. If you often don't follow through on consequences, your teen will learn that there isn't a real reason to obey the house rules to begin with.

Parents/Guardians, It is so important to teach students to be responsible. If they do not learn to accept responsibility for the things they do and the decisions they make, life in the real world will not be good to them.
