Thirteen new stop signs installed near school

A number of new stop signs were placed around Plainview Public Schools by the Plainview City Council's ordinance after last week's Council meeting. As shown in the picture near this story, the red dots are the Stop signs that were already in place, and the blue dots are the new additions. The Council had previously discussed creating a sidewalk space on the north edge of Woodland, but instead opted for more signs and a designated walk area, at least to the Plainview Public Library.

Rasmussen places third in essay contest

The Plainview American Legion Auxiliary recently sponsored an Americanism essay contest. The group had 124 entries from Plainview High School's seventh to 12th-grade classes. The first-place winners in each division were then sent to the district and then judged at a state-level competition. Brendan Rasmussen, son of Tim and Patsy Rasmussen, was named the third-place winner from the State Department. The topic for the essay was "How does learning about government and our America help you become a future guardian of the liberties of our country?" Rasmussen received a letter of appreciation and a cash award from the state.

The Plainview American Legion Post #148 will be disposing of American flags in a ceremony on Monday, Sept. 11. Flags can be deposited in the old mail box on the south side of the Legion Club. The ceremony will be held in the south lot of the Legion Club, and will begin at 7 p.m.

City council to discuss electrical grid, zoning

The city council held their regular meeting on August 8th at 7 p.m. to hear a short presentation related to the future of Plainview's electrical grid, a number of public hearings for zoning, among other business. City Administrator Mike Holton had contacted North Central Public Power District (NCPPD) at the request of council members to enlist their help in doing a rate design study for the city of Plainview. Keith Harvey of NCPPD was present to report to the council that NCPPD could hire a company on Plainview's behalf to conduct the study. Harvey said the company he would suggest, Utility Financial Solutions, was familiar with Nebraska and smaller communities and that NCPPD had found them to be "competent and expedient." Harvey said the company was familiar with Plainview's particular software and data sets, and didn't see any initial issues in performing the analysis. When council members asked about how long the study would take, Harvey informed them it could take six months or longer to gather data for the city's electrical rates and cost of service. Harvey said hiring the company through NCPPD would be cheaper as well, at a price of around $11,000.00. This cost would be paid for by NCPPD if Plainview entered into an agreement with them in the future. After the council's questions, they approved a motion to move forward with the rate study through NCPPD. The study is the beginning of discussions that have circulated about Plainview potentially leasing the control and maintenance of the city's electrical system to NCPPD.. Administrator Holton commented that a future decision to lease the grid to NCPPD would be one of the biggest the city has seen in many years. The agreement would make NCPPD responsible for maintaining and upgrading Plainview's grid, while also giving NCPPD control of the city's electrical rates. The city would still have the ability to receive funds from electrical customers, but would be an additional cost added on top of rates that would be set by NCPPD. Harvey has spoken at previous council meetings about how a partnership between NCPPD and Plainview could work. Discussion between Plainview and NCPPD has sparked over growing concerns of the aging infrastructure of Plainview's current electrical grid due to lack of proper maintenance and upgrades. While both council members and city administrator have commented on the issues of Plainview's electrical utility, the rate study marks the first official action that has been taken to address the issue. Council members have voiced concerns about the cost of renovating the system alone, as well as the ability to pay for and for upgrading the system. Holton reported that Plainview currently receives about $300,000.00 in profit from the grid. How the city would address the reduction of $300,000.00 in revenue has not been addressed, other than the possible suggestion of adding a rate on top of NCPPD's charges. While leasing the grid to NCPPD will be a future decision for council members, there was no discussion over potential consequences or how it would affect the community and daily operations of the city. Potential options or plans for the City to keep control of the grid were not discussed.

Public Hearings
The city held three separate public hearings for vacating lots and a lot split for Plainview residents and business owners. The first was to vacate a section of Short Street, a section west of the Plainview's Jazzercise building and directly behind Renter Storage. The second hearing was to vacate 5th Street north of Ohio Avenue. The lots on each side of the street are owned by Nathan and Lyn Stec, who plan to use the vacated area to build in the future. The final hearing was for a lot split requested by Zion Lutheran Church to increase the size of an adjoining residential property. Community members were able to ask questions and voice concerns during the open hearing, although no objections were made during any of the hearings. Motions made for each individual request were approved by the council.

9th Street Paving Error
JEO Engineering and consulting of Norfolk reported that an error had been made during the recent paving of 9th Street north of Highway 20. The contractor, Aschoff Construction, did not pour the concrete to the required depth on the edges of the road as specified by the contract. JEO Engineering said that they could reduce the city's total bill by $2,700.00 for the mistake.

City Attorney Bruce Curtiss asked if an official report had been sent by engineers. City Administrator Holton said no report had been sent by JEO, and was unsure of how much of the street was affected by the error. Several council members voiced the opinion that $2,700.00

"Permanent Value"

I was at a meeting a few weeks ago, and happened upon a thought that I believe all small towns should work to consider - creating "permanent value."

I play a lot of video games. Some strategy games, some card games that require quite a bit of thought and planning - not unlike a chess game or so, I suppose, but a bit of thinking that goes above and beyond most games in today's world.

There are really two options in the game I play the most - one can direct attacks toward the opponent to decrease the opponent's resources, or one can make trades with the opponents cards in the hopes of making an advantage.

In either case, the best line of offense or defense is to "create value" - in other words, make a trade or expense in resources better than your opponent to give yourself an advantage in the long run. The "pros" that play the game, strategize a few turns ahead to make sure they're getting the best "value" for their trades or deciding the time is right to value reducing the opponent directly.

That's the concept that I'm dealing with when I say "permanent value" - making moves in a direction that directly increase the value of whatever it is you're doing.

Sometimes, this concept runs counter to capitalism, it's a strange one. In capitalism one hopes that creating competition by way of another, duplicate business coming in will drive prices down, which is good for the customer.

In rural economic development, it's my understanding that this isn't always the case, necessarily.

A second anything, if your community cannot sustain, or barely can sustain one will almost inevitably bankrupt the first before the community can either attract new residents to help support two, or bring other new people to the community to do the same thing.

It's a careful balance - and it works similarly when you're talking about a service or manufacturing based business as well. While there might be enough product to be easily supported, the question might come in with labor costs or workforce all together that makes such an addition not one that creates value.

Permanent value, however, comes with adding such value that it makes a permanent stake in the community - in essence, creating something that can be supported, but also doesn't weaken, reduce or directly compete with another business - which would lessen the overall value of your community.

We've been faced by this concept more than one time in just the last few years, and I'm always a bit amazed at the general opinion about how to handle such a problem.

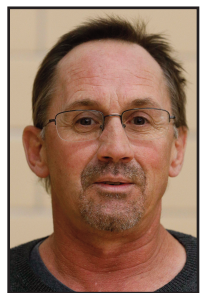

Typically, the answer is to simply give up, rather than forge, create or adapt to maintain value of everything we have, without losing anything additional.

Amazingly enough, money has never really been the problem in this community - it's always been a question of wanting to do the work, and committing to working together to get it completed. Trust me, this will make sense in another month or so, just watch.

"Should have been a cowboy"

By MIKE RENNING
mikesportshome@yahoo.com

Some 20 years ago...all right 30 years ago...well in 1983, I was living in Kadoka, South Dakota, working in a bank and living with a guy who would become one of my best friends.

This is back when living with a guy meant nothing more than having the same residence and that was the situation back then.

My roommate was a rancher by day and had a country band by night and I always wanted to be a cowboy and a country singer.

Let me tell you from the onset, I was a lot better singer than a cowboy but regardless of which of the two I was trying to accomplish - it was always entertaining.

I could sing about any George Strait song, Waylon Jennings, a little Garth but a pair of boots and all of that didn't make me a cowboy.

I decided to take this cowboy thing to a branding.

I had lived in Valentine and been to a branding, but this time I wanted to be a cowboy.

We rounded up the cows and calves and I basically, held the gate or tried to "shoo" either the cow or calf into the specific corral after separating them.

Not once was I on a horse. I was crestfallen - which is writer's lingo for ticked-off.

After the cows were separated from the calves, it was time for breakfast - this was my first step towards getting on a horse that day.

The guy ramrodding (cowboy lingo) the outfit was as cowboy as they come. He got off his horse and still stood well over six-feet tall.

He had a well-formed cowboy hat, Wranglers, huge hands, chaps and his name was Bernard.

Well, Bernard came over to where I was sitting and he had a jug of something you drink which doesn't normally accompany breakfast - and it wasn't iced tea.

He took the cap off the bottle and gave it a fling into the fire which was ready for the branding irons.

There were seven or eight of us around the fire and we passed the jug from cowboy hat to cowboy hat until it was gone.

Bernard calmly said it was now time for "breakfast."

He presented our little group with another jug and again threw the cap into the fire - but this time he also included a jug of orange juice. I mean it was early morning for crying out loud.

After we completed the second jug my confidence was soaring and I explained to Bernard how I would love to be a cowboy and actually get on a horse.

He explained back to me that no city-slicker could get on a horse until late in the day if he or she was still standing upright and most of the work was done.

Sounded fair enough to me and provided me hope for what was to come later in the day.

I ended up being a wrestler for most of the day and moved up to doing a little branding just before lunch with some close supervision from Walt.

Walt was as much of a cowboy as Bernard but he was the main "cutter" and brander. He even "cut" one of the calves with his teeth, which I'm positive was for my entertainment.

We got most of the critters (cowboy lingo) processed by lunch so my prospects for getting aboard a horse were looking good.

Lunch resembled breakfast except there were three jugs passed around and the orange juice was replaced by 7-UP.

For some reason, Bernard had called me Chisolm all morning so when we finished lunch he looked at me and said, "So you wanna be a cowboy Chisolm?"

I was in the money.

He put me aboard his horse - which you must know was a great horse. Bernard was a cowboy's cowboy. Then Bernard told me to go get the last two cows into the corral.

Those of you who are cowboys probably know the last two cows out of the 128 cow-calves we tended to that day were probably a couple of wild little devils - that's why they hadn't been tended to already.

And those of you who are cowboys probably know Bernard's horse is a cowboy's cowboy's horse and knows exactly what to do in the event one of those wild critters (lingo again) tried to get away.

Unfortunately, a lot of this information was not made available to me at breakfast or lunch.

To make a long story bearable, the horse took off after one of the wild critters and the critter darted left. Bernard's horse darted left and increased his speed to head the wild bast...er critter off.

I lost a stirrup right before the critter sturring back around to the right and when the horse followed - well, I didn't.

I fell right in the middle of what cattle do in the pasture and some Western South Dakota cactus.

My hat rode along with the horse for a bit then fell to the ground and I looked up to see Bernard running out to see if I was alive and his horse getting the critter into the corral.

When my senses returned, Bernard was standing over me - laughing somewhat hysterically, holding my now "broke-in" cowboy hat and extending his huge hand to help me up.

"Now, you're a cowboy," he said.

Stay well.

"Forging ahead"

By: Michael Holton
City Administrator

I am always fascinated by the behavior of people as they adapt to changes.

Some people embrace change and the inevitability of progress whereas there are others who absolutely cannot handle change and will fight anything that is different than what they are used to.

I am actually a moderate that likes to see change for the right reason and to hold on to tradition as it is applicable. Let me give you some examples of what I mean.

Last week it was decided that the Plainview pool would close on the 11th of August. It was a small compromise based upon the number of guards and the efforts of the city to provide a service.

Immediately the trolls came out on media and said some of the strangest things that I have ever heard. There were a couple of people who wanted to know why we were closing the pool so late.

Then there were some others that chimed in and blasted the pool and the high prices of admission and that it wasn't worth the price. They remembered a time when the pool was open after Labor Day.

I have only been here 16 years and during the past 16 years (with the old pool as well) the pool has closed every year the second weekend of August except for one year when we were able to keep it open an extra week.

In the 10 years that I have been city administrator, the price of a pool pass has never changed. It really should go up but the consensus of several pool board members that I have worked with simply did not want to raise the prices on the people. Fair enough.

Now the city has its sights set on cleaning up the community by taking care of some nuisance houses. Once again several citizens agree that the community needs to be cleaned up as long it is not their house nor one of their friends. It's alright to do it to everyone else.

Unfortunately, it doesn't work that way.

As a city administrator, it is not necessarily my position to seek out nuisance homes but inevitably the phone calls come back to my office.

The next item on the docket was to make the area around the school safer. New stop signs were established to complete four-way stops as well as a pedestrian walkway. No parking in certain areas will help with this as well.

If you listen to social media, you would have thought the city was destroying itself. Stop signs are not put in anywhere in Plainview without great thought. People complained about the new stop signs on West Street when they were put in but they have been effective tools in slowing traffic down as they enter into Plainview.

The point of much of this article is that as a city we know that we cannot make everyone happy 24 hours a day. How do you forge ahead when you constantly have a struggle with people who all seem to think they know better than anyone else how the city should be run? Do you know any of these types?

In community development we call these people CAVE dwellers (Citizens against virtually everything). I fear these people as they can bring others down if they try hard enough. I have to admit that they wear on me as well.

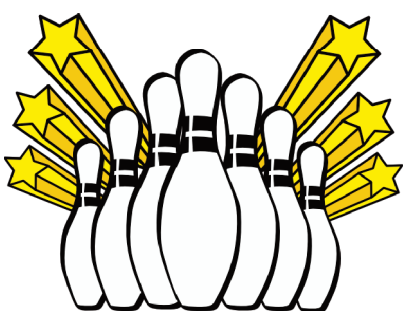

Now we have a new dog ordinance in place that needs to be enforced and carried out. We have a little over 40 dogs registered in the city. My guess is that we have 10 times that many in the city. Starting immediately it would be in your best interest that if you own dogs within the city limits to get them down to the city office and register them.

As a great author once stated, "These are interesting times we live in." Believe it.

Volunteers remove thick brush from around stones in the Plainview City Cemetery.

Cemetery clean up continues...

With the help of a "big boy toy" - a backhoe - five more stones were released from the bushes and overgrowth at the City Cemetery near St. Paul's Catholic Church last Monday afternoon by volunteers continuing the clean-up project. Families uncovered were Fossick, Cassey, Bernard, Webb and Ellis.

A large tree trunk was also removed, and the second half of the trunk surrounding the Ellis family stone will be removed next Monday. Roots were removed around stones and each family's stone was restored.

Seven pickup loads of brush were taken to the C&D Site. "Thank you to the new members, and returning members. Your help was appreciated," said organizer Judy Arlt. Work begins every Monday at 5 p.m., and all are welcome.

Plainview FCA hosts Fall Opener

The Plainview High School Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) held its Fall Opener at the Public Library Sunday evening with nearly 50 people present.

Elizabeth Kment welcomed the group. Austin Choat opened in prayer. Burger King burgers along with sides and desserts brought by those attending were shared.

Choat shared that the organization hopes to establish a special event each quarter of the school year. Kment and Tait Ziems spoke about the "5 W's that make up a Huddle"; welcome, warm-up, worship, workout, and wrap-up.

Kali Pavlik, an archer from Crofton, shared her path of working toward being a member of the UAS Junior Dream Team but gave that up to work toward the Indoor World Cup. This allowed her become a world traveler. She shared how an injury has kept her from continuing that goal.

Pavlik spoke freely how she is thankful to God for this injury. She will be a freshman at the University of Nebraska - Lincoln this fall and will be working with the Nebraska Game and Parks teaching archery to young children.

Eileen Bramer shared how the organization received a sizable memorial gift in honor of Jason Gutz to be used to help students go to camps. Weekend of Champions, the first weekend in November, is one of those camps the local Huddle hopes to get students to attend.

The first FCA Huddle will be held Aug. 24 at 7:30 a.m. in Mr. Yilk's room. All senior high students are welcome. The organization has a sports platform, but all students are welcome.

Tait Ziems closed the evening in prayer.

The Fall Opener is an annual event for the FCA students and their families to share time together.

Learn more about pollination at field day seminar in Tekamah

Those interested in learning about pollinators are encouraged to attend Nebraska Extension's pollinator field day Aug. 18 at the First Northeast Bank of Nebraska in Tekamah.

More than 75 percent of all flowering plants and crops rely on animals to carry pollen from one flower to another. Most of these pollinators are insects. Honeybees are common pollinators, along with butterflies, moths, beetles and flies. Attendees at this field day will learn more about different kinds of pollinators, their importance and steps that can be taken to help pollinators.

Morgan Sapp with the USDA Farm Service Agency will discuss options for pollinator habitats in conservation reserve program plantings, and Farm Bill Wildlife Biologist Scott Schmidt will talk about programs to support developing pollinator friendly habitats around an acreage, farm or home.

Following the classroom portion of the day, at 10:30 a.m., participants will travel eight miles out of town to Extension Educator John Wilson's home to view the pollinator friendly landscaping and pollinator plantings in CRP as well as the University of Nebraska - Lincoln's bee research that is being conducted at his home.

Extension Educator Judy Wu-Smart will provide visitors the opportunity to put on bee suits and get up close with the hives. Wu-Smart and her students will be opening several monitored hives for participants. She will also demonstrate the hive weight bars that measure the weight of the hive to determine the amount of honey produced inside.

To RSVP for pollinator day, email John Wilson at jwilson3@unl.edu or call 402-374-2929.

Notification must be in a verifiable form, most commonly via a registered letter. If tenant does not receive proper notification, the lease may carry over to the 2018 growing season, therefore binding the owner and/or purchaser to such lease and may also affect the property's marketability. Funeral Services

Elmer A. Krause, 103

Funeral services for Elmer A. Krause, 103, of Plainview, will be held on Friday, Aug. 18 at 2 p.m. at the Zion Lutheran Church in Plainview. Rev. C. Brian Bucklew will officiate the service, and interment will be at the Pleasant View Cemetery near Plainview. Visitation will precede the funeral services at the church from noon until the service time.

Darlene Stelling will serve as organist for congregational hymns of "I Know My Redeemer Lives," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." Special music of "How Great Thou Art" will be provided by Laura and Kyle Lienemann. Pall bearers will be Nathan Jacoby, Ethan Jacoby, Aaron Jacoby, Matthew Depue, Kyle Lienemann and Spencer Lienemann. Honorary bearers will be the great-granddaughters and great-grandsons.

Elmer Albert Krause, the first of three sons, was born in a sod house on June 19, 1914 to John and Lillie (Wortman) Krause on the family homestead near Flagler, Colo., and entered into his eternal rest peacefully with his daughter by his side on August 10, 2017 at Community Pride Care Center in Battle Creek.

He was the first baby baptized in the Flagler Lutheran Church. In 1915 his family moved to his grandparents, August and Henrietta Krause's farm north of Plainview. The family then moved to Tekamah in 1920, returning to Plainview permanently in 1925 after purchasing the Krause farm.

Krause attended country school through sixth grade walking one and one-quarter miles each way. He then rode a horse to Zion Lutheran School for his seventh and eighth grade education, and was confirmed at Zion Lutheran Church in 1928.

After graduating from Plainview High School in 1932, he farmed with his father during the depression years.

In 1936, unable to find jobs locally, Krause and several friends headed west working as farm laborers in Utah, Idaho, and Washington. He worked for a short time as a railroad section crewman, earning enough money to buy his first car, a 1928 Model A Ford.

He returned home to Plainview in 1938 to help his dad farm, and on June 1, 1941 he married Gertrude Louise Weber at the Zion Lutheran parsonage.

The couple first farmed northeast of Breslau where their lives were blessed by the birth of a daughter, Ellen Louise. In March 1943 they purchased and moved to their own farm two miles north of Plainview.

The next year they were again blessed when a son, Vernon Eugene was born.

They continued operating their farm and eventually purchased his parent's farm, as well as additional quarters.

Owning his own farm was Krause's life's dream. He once stated that "My concern has always been preserving the fertility of the soil and preventing erosion." He was a true steward of the land and loved caring for all types of livestock, planting and harvesting crops.

In addition to farming, he enjoyed going to farm sales and cattle auctions.

In 2001, the couple were proud recipients of the 100-year Nebraska Pioneer Farm Award for his parent's farm.

After moving from their farm into Plainview, the Krauses traveled and enjoyed keeping up on the lives and activities of their family. They were able to attend many of the baptisms, school activities, graduations and weddings of their grandchildren and great grandchildren.

Krause was a faithful servant of the Lord and an active member of Zion Lutheran Church throughout his life serving in many capacities through the years.

In 2006, the couple celebrated their 66th Anniversary. She passed away suddenly in 2008, and he continued to live independently in their Plainview home helping out on the farm and caring for his wife's rose garden.

Shortly before his 101th birthday, Krause fell and suffered a severe hip fracture and became a resident at Community Pride Care Center under the expert care of Dr. Brad Lockee.

Krause remained physically active in farming well into his late 90s. Through his son, Vernon, and loyal renter, Marty Grant, he continued until his final days to be involved with the decision making and business end of farming.

In 2015, he was blessed with two great-great grandchildren, identical twin boys born to his first great-grandchild, Amber (Jacoby), and her husband, Tyler Martin of Lancaster, Penn.

Krause not only got to meet them, but hold them and tell them of his love for them as he had done with each of his grandchildren and great grandchildren when they were babies. While at Community Pride, he was able to actively participate in the celebration of his 101st, 102nd and 103rd birthdays personally welcoming and thanking all in attendance.

He was preceded in death by his spouse, parents, two brothers, numerous other relatives and friends.

Elmer A. Krause is survived by his daughter Ellen (Bill) Kurzenberger of Bassett; their four children: Kim (Paul) Jacoby of Lancaster, Penn., Kami (Gary) Depue of Fremont, Karen (Randy) Lienemann of Omaha, and BJ (Alicia) Kurzenberger of Omaha; his son, Vernon (Tama) Krause of Norfolk and their two children Deanna (Edward) Kramer of Woodbury, Minn. and Angela Krause of Norfolk as well as 19 great-grandchildren and two great-great grandchildren. He is also survived by three very special friends Joe Grosserode of Oakdale and Lee Alexander and Ken Stelling of Plainview, whose visits along with those of Pastors Leckband and Bucklew meant so much to him while at Community Pride.

Memorials will be designated by the family.

Tee Talk

A man sneaks off from his weekly assignment and wouldn't you know, it's the busiest week plus a few days the Club has had all year.

Seems like every kind of tourney and event the Board and Kathi could think up took place in those days. Apologies to Mike and Rollie (two faithful readers) for missing an issue.

Before catching up on all the happenings and misspelling names, will advise on what's coming up, besides the usual Ladies Nites and Stags.

Friday, August 18 at 5 p.m. the Course will be closed for a private outing. Senior Open will be on Saturday the 19th at 9:30 a.m. and Texas golf will be next Wednesday the 23rd with Alex and Mitch, the Napr's and the Swedish Danes, or maybe Irish-Germans, doing the heavy lifting.

July 31st was the Two-Woman Scramble, which was open to members and non-members alike. Twenty-seven teams filled the tourney, and Kathi got enough requests to almost run two tournaments. The non-members keep coming back, either to play a good golf course, or for the tasty filets Mr. Acklie personally prepares for the group.

The non-members will be designated as OOTs in the prize winners.

What is good to announce is first and second in the Championship flight: sisters-in-law, Ellie and Krista Masat had low score of 32, and the mother-daughter team of Kathi and Cassy Wright took second with even par 36. Third was OOT.

First flight had gobs of 42s as low scores, so winners were decided by handicap holes with Darnall and Pfeil in first, Meuret and Christiansen in second and Norris and Scranton in third.

Second flight had Rutledge-L. Kounovsky in first, A. Schilousky-C. Kounovsky in second and OOT in third.

August 3 Stag had 39 out for New York Strips and the beginning of the Men's Club Tourney. Janovec, Stelling and Green did the work.

Glo-Ball Tourney in the dark was played on Friday night, preceded by the backward par three tournament. About 50 nuts were out to have fun and have some pulled pork between rounds. Nobody should care if names aren't listed for being high or low cause it ain't really golf, but it is certainly a fun time, and should be played every summer.

The One Person Scramble on the 6th was a step up from the glo-balls, but still not really golf since mulligans are legal to use on every shot. The Course is played to regulation yardage at least with pin prizes, and the whole shebang giving golfers a chance to shoot their lowest round ever.

So, we will give credit in print. Nicole Darnall had a high score of 53, which she will be happy to see in the paper, and Ellie Masat had a low of 34 (both men and women). Wes Newill won the second flight, and the Ganseboms could celebrate jointly as Anna won the third flight and her husband won the first flight with a 71, the low score of the day.

The Ladies Club tourney was held on Ladies night, the 7th, with Julie Lingefelter shooting 49 to be the Champ. Vickie Ashburn won the first flight with a 55, and Amber Schilousky won the second flight with a 65.

The August Senior Two Man Scramble was held on the 8th with a good turnout of 19 teams. Plainview had a bad day with the sticks as Dale Kuhlman and Craig Dohmen were the only members to cash in by shooting 73, and placing second in the second flight.

OOTs won the other eight places that paid off. Should probably mention some OOT team named Nelson and Urwiler had the low score of 62.

Texas Golf on last Wednesday had a good turnout of 48 who played and the committee of Stecs, Lingenfelters and Dummars, who were really proud of their Mexican food display. In fact, they were so wrapped up in the meal, they didn't care about the 48 who played golf to keep any stats, so no results were had to report.

Skipping ahead to Saturday, the 12th, when the fifth North Four-Tee Tourney was held - with the Plainview team winning for the fifth time.

It wasn't any pushover as the Ewing dozen was fairly close, ending up only four points behind out of the possible 110 points. Atkinson and Stanton are the other two Courses in the competition, and they should be given credit for returning each year without coming close to Plainview.

The large inscribed trophy cup is in the Plainview Club House for another year.

The Home Team did figure out different uses for the Cup besides sitting a trophy case. One of those uses is just as a container....one that can hold in excess of 144

We can finally wrap up this report with the annual Kopp Steak-Sweet Corn-Tomatoes-Onion Rings-Garlic Toast feed that fed about 160 on August 10.

That just about says it all, except giving credit to the volunteers who put in a bunch of hours in preparing the feast so they can cook and barbecue for three hours while the hungry take advantage of their toils and eat their fill.

Could add a side note of Santa Claus attending this year when a fundraising split the pot winner was drawn, only to be our own Jolly Greens Keeper, who shared his winnings with the guests. In plain talk, that means he bought a round for the house.

wasn't an adequate reduction in the price for such a mistake. They said 9th Street is traveled by farmers and heavy machinery which could shorten the life expectancy of the street, especially if it wasn't poured properly.

Holton reported that no payment for the project had been issued yet. No action was taken, but general agreement among the council was that the project should be completed as specified in the contract.

Other City Business

The city passed a motion to declare the street between the school and new library on Woodland Avenue a no parking zone, and established a six foot zone on the south side of the street as pedestrian only traffic.

The third and final reading of the Dangerous Dog ordinance was passed and now is in effect at the time of this printing.

Council members heard a nuisance property appeal from Roger Stelling concerning a letter he received about his property. He said that he regularly had vehicles in his lot for which he used spare parts for repairs and had a salvage license to do so. The council agreed to table the issue for 60 days and revisit to see if anything further needed to be done.

There was a short discussion concerning the adoption of a policy for connection customers to the grid who generated renewable energy. The policy would be proactive measure for such such customers, although Holton said there was no situation where such a policy was immediately needed. The council tabled to revisit the issue in six months time.

The Ballbackers organization told the council that they had about 150 kids out for summer baseball, and that around 40 had already signed up for youth football. They also reported that the fence surrounding some of the fields had deteriorated to a point where it was starting to become a safety concern. The fence had been patched up and repaired and needed to finally be replaced. A quote from No Swett Fencing & Decks from Columbus for the Ballbackers was $12,306.38 to replace the fence.

Mayor Darren Seip appointed Kim Wolken to the Manor Board and Jason Smith to the city's Tree Board.

Chief Yosten presented the police report and questions were raised on the types of activity that occurred during the month. A request has been submitted to the NDOR to verify if the speed signs previously purchased can be used on Highway 20.

An update was given on the recent nuisance property letters that were sent and the procedure for following through with the clean-up and process of determining nuisance letters was addressed. Several properties that were addressed last year have not been completed and it was discussed that the Municipal Board of Health needs to bring all issues to the council. A meeting of the Board of Health will be held prior to the September council meeting to move forward on remaining nuisance properties.

City Superintendent Cederburg told the council that current transfer station employee Terry Baller plans to retire from his full-time position effective the end of November. Baller would still work 3-4 hours per day to monitor the transfer station during open hours. Cederburg asked for the council's permission to advertise for a utility worker to replace Baller. Naprstek moved to advertise for the open position. Schlote seconded the motion. Motion carried 4-0.

City Administrator Holton presented a brief summary of his monthly report. Holton, Cederburg and school Superintendent Arlt had met with JEO Engineering to discuss paving the roads by the ballfields. The total cost was estimated at $200,000, with the city and school splitting this cost. Arlt also discussed the need for paving all roads around the school if feasible. Holton also stated that an invoice was received for the 9th Street paving project, however the credit given for the paving errors was not sufficient and council expressed interest to have a representative from JEO present at the September meeting for discussion and clarification of the project approval.

Economic Development director Susan Norris told the council of the projects she has been involved in since she was hired in July. She stated that she was getting acquainted to the several grant programs available for municipalities and also looking at various ways to bring the community together to work for the betterment of the town.

An appeal on a nuisance property was then brought before the council by Roger Stelling. After a brief discussion, Stelling agreed to have the items in question taken care of by the October council meeting. Naprstek moved to revisit the discussion for 60 days. Schlote seconded the motion.

Motion carried 4-0.

Mayor Seip then made 2 appointments to city boards. Kim Wolken was reappointed to the Manor Board and Jason Smith was appointed to the Tree Board to replace the position vacated by Donna Christiansen. Naprstek moved to approve both appointments. Schlote seconded the motion. Motion carried 4-0.

Council member Naprstek introduced the following resolution and moved for its adoption:

Collecting

by Larry Cox

Hull Pottery

Q: I have inherited a piece of Hull pottery in the Coronet pattern. It is a 9-inch vase. What can you tell me about it? — Susan, Pueblo West, Colorado

A: The Coronet line of Hull pottery was made to be sold in chain stores. Most of the ones I have seen are marked "Coronet," not Hull. I found your vase referenced in "Warman's Hull Pottery" by David Doyle. Doyle lists your vase in the $15 to $25 range.

Q: I love to pick up odd kitchen utensils. Since I live in Iowa, I attend as many farm auctions as I can, and this is where I have found some of the truly unique items in my collection. As you can imagine, I sometimes discover an older piece that I can't identify. I am enclosing a picture of just such an item. What is it? — Mark, Iowa

A: I found your item in 300 Years of Kitchen Collectibles by Linda Campbell Franklin (Krause, $29.95). It is a candy-curling machine, which was used for making candies known as "opera curls." According to this guide, it is worth about $150. Incidentally, you should purchase a copy of this book. It will make your hobby even more fun and will quickly become one of your favorite references.

Q: I have an old lawn mower that has been owned by my family since the 1930s. Is it valuable, or should I toss it? — Steve, New Mexico

A: I'll cut to the chase. Most older lawn mowers manufactured in the United States have very little value. In my 40 years of writing this column, I have yet to find a club for collectors. I suggest you post it on eBay, and if a feeding frenzy develops, you'll have your answer.

* "If you are going on vacation, leave a plastic baggie filled with ice cubes in your freezer. When you return, if the baggie is filled with a single chunk of ice, you'll know your power was interrupted long enough to spoil your food while you were away." — G.L. in Missouri

* Here's another moving tip: Bundle clothing on hangers with a rubber band. Slip the whole lot into a trash bag. The items will be ready to hang in the new closet with hardly any fuss.

* Ants in your pet's food bowl? Set cat or dog food bowls in a pie plate or other shallow dish filled with water. Ants and bugs can't cross the water to get to the food, so it's safe from pests.

* "Use charcoal in the bathroom to prevent humidity from turning into mildew. Put a few charcoal bricks into a small open container, like a bowl. Then just tuck it behind the toilet. It traps excess moisture. Use only plain charcoal, not the kind that has lighter fluid in it!" — W.K. in Ohio

* "If you have a magnetic closure on a kitchen cabinet that is too strong (you have to really pull the door to get it open), try this simple fix: Put a small piece of clear tape over the magnet. It reduces the magnet's pull just enough that it doesn't take as much effort. We did this at my grandma's house when she got new kitchen cabinets, and she's much happier now!" — Y.L.S. in Alabama

* Have a terrific-smelling candle that's burned down to bits? Scrape them out, and place in a small mason jar. Poke holes in the lid, and cap the jar. Then keep the jar in your car's cup holder. When the car warms in the sun, it'll smell wonderful, and there's no need for a flame.
