

FoodShare can help you stretch your budget!

$16 buys more food than you may think.

What is FoodShare?

FoodShare, also known as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), is a federal program that helps households buy nutritious food. FoodShare benefits are deposited on a QUEST card (similar to a debit card) once a month to help buy groceries.

Applying is fast, easy and confidential.

Speaking of FoodShare...

- For most people applying there is no asset limit! (An asset limit does apply to elderly, blind, or disabled persons whose gross income is greater than the limits listed below).
- You can use benefits at many retailers. A full list of approved retailers can be found here: <https://www.fns.usda.gov/snap/retailerlocator>.
- Using the QUEST card is easy and discrete. Just swipe it and select the “EBT” option at check out.
- Benefits can carry over from month-to-month.
