

Superintendent Update: October 11, 2019

Quote for the week: “Hold fast to dreams, for if dreams die, life is a broken-winged bird that cannot fly.”—Langston Hughes

I have a dream and I believe you also have a dream. I believe you have a dream to be all you want to be in life. A dream to live the greatness within you. A dream to become who you want to become. But then this dream is taking so much time to come to reality. Are you becoming frustrated in the pursuit of your dream? Do you feel like quitting? My advice for you today is to hold on to your dream.

I have learned that dreaming is important if I want to be successful in life. As result I have never stop dreaming. However in the process of striving to attain my dream, I have also learned that pursuing one’s dream is full of ups and downs. It’s full of challenges, setbacks, disappointments and more

Most importantly, I have discovered that if I keep my eye firmly focused on the dream, believing in myself and the dream, invest in myself in the process, and finally believe in the gift of life from God, I will live my dream to the fullest.

This update is to encourage and motivate you to hold on to your dreams. It is little inspiration to urge you to pursue all your dreams no matter the difficulties. It is little push for you to know that it is possible. Yes! YOUR DREAM IS POSSIBLE. The truth is that it has never been easy, and it will never be easy. The challenges will come, but then you have to face them and learn from them. If you fall ten times, rise up eleven times.

According to Jim Rohn, don’t wish for less challenges but wish for more skills. This is because your challenges will not succumb to your fears but rather they will succumb to your skills, your determination, your will power, and your desire to stay the course.

The day you give up, is the day you fail. Meaning failure is not measured by efforts we made and did not succeed but rather the efforts we refuse to make, the risks we refuse to take and dreams we refuse to pursue.

In as much as it has never been easy and will never be, it has always been possible. It is the fact that it is possible that you should keep pressing on. It is the fact that it is possible that you should keep trying. It is the fact that it is possible that you should hold on to your dream.

There will be pain, I mean lots of pains, but after pain comes success. The good news is that the pain will not last but the success or victory is forever. In effect, you have got to stretch and stretch and stretch.

Just to learn to believe in yourself, believe in your abilities, believe in your greatness, believe in your dreams, and believe in the gift of life is a great accomplishment.

It is your believe that keeps and feeds your faith, your faith then fuels your action, and your actions keeps you pressing on through the tough times. Know that, tough times will not last and they never do. But tough people do last.

I want you to know that you are an eagle. You have the ability to soar over all forms of challenges like an eagle rising above the storm. You have the ability to live your dream. Be a dreamer!

You have greatness in you, but you have to activate that greatness. Your dreams will unleash your greatness.

News for the week:

I sure hope to see everyone at the Fall Festival this evening. We will have a great time and I know the kids will enjoy as well.

The following photos were taken on Thursday. It was wet and the students at Marvin were utilizing the nice asphalt walking track for physical education. The grant Mrs. Sebastian wrote for the Joint Use Agreement with our city has paid off!

Mrs. Battles!

White Out!

Stem Activity...Deep in Thought!

Control and left mouse click; Hold on to your Dreams!

<https://youtu.be/A7ChoM2Rh60>