

Course: Business Management

Curriculum for the upcoming course and information of which students should be aware:

This is an upper level course (11th – 12th grade) designed to expose students to the specific area of managing a business. Students, based on the state standards, will work primarily throughout the semester on setting up their own business plan for a business they want to create.

Areas that might be challenging for students:

Areas that students may find the most challenging in this class is the different sections and information required to develop a business plan. Students must put in research and effort to understand how to own and operate their own small business and what all details go into it each day.

Suggestions on how students can prepare for the upcoming course:

Students need to look at the development of management throughout history. This will help students develop ideas for their management style as well as providing insight into the class set up. It will also help to have students look at some example business plans to understand the different areas and information that go into it.

Suggested activities or resources (if applicable):

Quizlet has some excellent study material that can help students get use to the terminology. Kahoot has some management quizzes that will expose students to the knowledge as well. www.sba.gov will allow students to see example business plans and how to set it up for their own business.
