Veteran Skydiver Makes History By Jumping 25,000 Feet Without A Parachute!

By: Easton C.

His name was Luke Aikins is a veteran skydiver that makes history by jumping 25,000 feet without a parachute. Everything went planned, he was cheered on by friends and family. It was a expensive skydiving experience. But don't worry even though he don't have a parachute he has veteran Skydivers with him while he's going down.

Then I interviewed Sophia B. I asked her if she would skydive without a parachute and why? She said, "Yes, because it would be a cool experience and fun."

Vision correcting eye drops that could replace glasses

By: Sophia B

Over a third of the world needs glasses or contact lenses However, if a team of Israeli ophthalmologists from Jerusalem's Shaare Zedek Medical Center has their way. The crisis may be averted with special nanodrops created to correct refractive errors responsible for nearsightedness or farsightedness or blurred vision. Brooklyn said, "I would try them because sometimes contacts hurt."

Biodegradable Cardboard Drones Designed to Crash and Die After Single Use
By: Logan H.

They are making drones that can deliver emergency supplies and don't need a landing platform. They'll be made entirely of cardboard and packing tape and will be a meter in size. They'll be dropped from a height of 35000 feet or higher. To make one will only take 30 minutes. So in the end this will be a good alternative for normal drones.

When I asked Layla what she thought about cardboard drones she said "They would be a good alternative for drones because they would be able to get supplies to people who need them."

Philadelphia Zoo Gorilla Walking Upright

By Evan G

A 16 year old male gorilla walks upright to keep his hands clean. All Gorillas have the potential walk upright but they usually take a few steps before walking back on all fours. When caught out in a rainstorm the gorilla will seek cover and when he steps in a mud puddle he will find a leaf or paper bag and wipe his foot until is is clean.

I asked Mikey about the story and he said, "The gorilla is cool."

Self Flying Cars By: Brooklyn H.

The plan on flying cars is giant drones used as taxis that propel themselves and a single passenger up to 31 miles at 99 miles per hour. I interviewed Sophia B. and I asked her, "What do you think of self flying taxis?" her reply was, "They're pretty cool and they're a good thing for modern technology, but I wouldn't ride in one." Also the machine can fly for up to 25 minutes at a time. In the end it's very impressive to see a huge self flying taxis coming to society soon.

Life without laptops?

By: Justin D.

How would humanity be without laptops? We would probably suffer, many businesses rely on laptops for work. I even interviewed Ethan S. about his opinions on laptops, here's how it went:

I asked, "Do you own a laptop?" He said, "Yes, I do!" I asked, "Could you survive without it?" He said, "Yes." I asked, "What's is your thoughts on laptops?" He responded, "They're pretty cool, they're nice for looking up information." I asked finally, "What would you think humanity would be like without laptops?" He responded, "We wouldn't need it, but I could deal with it."

U.K. Gym Has a Sleeping Class
BY Braedin S
 The gym has been offered for a couple months I asked Alex S if the thought that this was a good idea he answered, "Yes because for the people that work late and have to go to work early it will give the extra sleep so they can get more work done." I think that this good because you don't want to be sleepy at the gym. Do you think it is a good idea?

"Doomsday Vault" Will Protect Precious Data In The Event Of A Global Catastrophe.
BY: Alex S.
 Government, corporations and even individuals concerned about losing documents and important info they will have a safe place to keep that in case of a cataclysmic event on Earth. I asked Braedin S. if he thinks this is a good idea to keep info protected for after the human race is gone, his answer was "yes so that way if there is extraterrestrial beings in the universe they will know about us."

Luxury submarine
By Daniel
 Aston Martin was the maker of the luxury submarine. However This underwater craft is not reserved exclusively for bond. Right now it is $4 million dollars. These submarines are about the size of a car and it is for personal use. It goes 3.5 miles per hour and it is 80,000 lbs. Randy said, "I would like to get one because you could see fish and other sea animals."

NASA Inspired Speed Breeding Technique May Help Feed Earth's Burgeoning Population
By:Mikey J.
 NASA has developed a formula for growing food in space that could help feed earth's growing population. The food grown this way will be healthier, grow faster, and taste better.
 My interview was on Randy, I asked him what he thought about my topic, he said, "It would be good for everyone because there would be more food." My second question was about the food and if he would eat the food he told me, "Yes because people need food to survive."

Pizza Hut's Sneakers
By: Trenton Mitchell
 During the 2018 March Madness Tournament, Pizza Hut joined with a custom sneaker designer and made their own sneaker. I asked Easton if he would wear the shoe, he said, "No, I don't like the Pizza Hut sign on them and I don't like the color either." The shoes could connect to a smart tv and pause or play the big game. One of the makers of the shoe doesn't want people to miss a play of a game for march madness.

Muhammad Ali
By:Nik L.

Muhammad Ali was a legendary boxer (debatably greatest of all time). I asked Julia W. what she thought about Muhammad Ali, she said "He was really good." Muhammad died June 3rd 2016. He died in Scottsdale Arizona. He died because of septic shock. Septic shock is the result of an infection, and causes drastic changes in the body. It can be very dangerous and potentially life-threatening.

Interview of Justin
By: Ethan S.

Would you want to try out the Black Panther suit if they made one ? No because the expenses of the suit would be to much. Would you want wakanda technology and see crispy images of holograms of people? "Yes so you could prank people spy on people". How would you use the invisibility technology? "To go and play the Xbox one without anyone knowing."

Muriwai Monster was Finally Uncovered

By: Caleb M.

The Muriwai monster was finally found out, as it turns out it's a piece of driftwood with a bunch of barnacles attached to it. As gross as that sounds it's also very weird that a log with a ton of barnacles just washed up on a beach and people thought it was an alien or a monster. Brooklyn H. said, "we jumped to conclusions too quickly".

Talking orca whales.
By Adam Paul.

A 14 year old orca whale has a vocabulary of 4-5 words. They think the whale learned how to make words and what they mean by hearing them in her surroundings from all the time. The whale is able to say "Ah-ah" "hello" "one-two-three" and the name of her trainer, Amy. The whale has also learned how to blow raspberries Of course the whale doesn't know what she's saying but it's cool to see the whale saying words. They do hope to teach the whale to know what the words actually mean.

Interview with Sophia Bobbio.

Question:What do you think about this whale.She said the whale is Cool.
2ed Question: Why do you think the whale can do this.She thinks it was trained to talk.

International Day of Happiness
By: Violet J.

March,20 also known as International Day of Happiness is a Day to feel Happy. First celebrated in 2013, this fun holiday was established by the United Nations (UN) to remind us that "The pursuit of happiness is a fundamental human goal." International Happiness day was first suggested by residents of the tiny South Asian country of Bhutan.

Interviewing Julia and Hailey :

Do you think International Happiness day could be a world wide day : Both said "Yes."

Do you think International Happiness day could make everyone happy : "Yes cause its an international happy day."

Would you ever participate in this national day: Both said "Yes."

Two Black Men Arrested in Starbucks
By:Layla BD

On Thursday, two black men were arrested in a starbucks in Philadelphia because they had not bought anything, and refused to leave, and they wanted to use the bathroom. The men, then sat down at a table and went on their phones while waiting for a friend. They refused to leave, and so they were arrested. There have been many protests against starbucks racism lately and that is the reason why. I asked Logan H. if he thought racism was a problem at Starbucks and he said, "Yes they are probably losing customers."

Elephant Artists
By: Julia W.

One of the worlds largest and most powerful animal have an ability to draw and often doodle on the floor with a stick or pebble. It all began about 20 years ago when two Russian painters Vitaly Komar and Alex Melamid heard about the domesticated elephants and their owners in Southeast Asia. Komar and Melamid decided to see if they could teach elephants to paint. After perfecting their painting teaching techniques with Renee, an elephant who resided at the Toledo Zoo in Ohio, they made their way to Southeast Asia. In 2000, they founded the Asian Elephant Art and Conservation Project, a charitable organization, whose website sells the work of these amazing artists. I interviewed Violet and Hailey about the elephants. The first question I asked was would you buy an elephant drawn picture. They both replied, "Yes." I asked why and they said, "They are cute." The second question I asked was do you think elephant paintings could become popular. Again they both said, "Yes."

Tokyo Zoo Celebrates Birth Of A Baby Tapir

Randy H

The Malayan tapir, a distant cousin of the horse and rhinoceros, is one of the largest primitive mammals in the world. This nocturnal animal is vegetarian and travels long distances in search of food. Tapirs are excellent climbers and love to wade in the water. They are usually found in lowland areas during the dry season moving to the mountains during the rainy season. They are a very solitary animal and often live and move around on their own not in herds.

I asked Mikey how many tapir do you think is left on earth. Mikey said, "20" The answer was 3000. I also asked Mikey how much do you think a adult weight up to how many pounds, Mikey said, "400 pounds" the answer is 550-670 pounds.

Puppy Bowl

By.Hailey

On Sunday, February 4, millions of people will tune in for the year's biggest game. No, we are not talking about the Super Bowl 52 matchup between the Patriots and Eagles, but Animal Planet's adorable Puppy Bowl. While Puppy Bowl 14 will feature a total of 92 dogs representing Team Ruff and Team Fluff, only 10-12 will be on the field at any given time. The "Athletes," all between 12 and 21 weeks old, will tackle, bite, and wrestle for toys, treats, and bones. A touchdown will be declared each time a puppy drags his/her toy into the end zone. I interviewed Violet and Julia on Puppy Bowl, the first question I asked was do you like puppies and they both answered, "I love puppies." The next question I asked is would you go to the puppy bowl they both said yes so in my opinion I believe that the puppy bowl will become very popular and a big hit on TV.
