Governor's Press Conference Today (APSRC Report)

Governor was asked about virtual school for the first two weeks of the school year.

"We're having the opposite approach, let's start school with in-classroom instruction. Let's do everything we can to be successful, and if we have to adjust down the road in individual school districts, we will do that. It's a difference of approach. I think the approach that we are taking as a state is good for the students. We're trying to put in all the measures necessary to give teachers confidence, and I fully understand from the letters I get, the communications I have with teachers, the concern that they have, but I know that the schools are doing everything they can to make it a safe environment. That's the direction we need to continue to go," Governor Hutchinson said.

1. Please watch for school announcements about virtual open house events for each school and virtual school orientation.
2. Videos have been posted on the JNP social media outlets and www.jnpsd.org that illustrate safety protocols and other information. Please review for the latest information.

We appreciate your support of our scholars and families as we approach the start of the new school year.

Respectfully,
