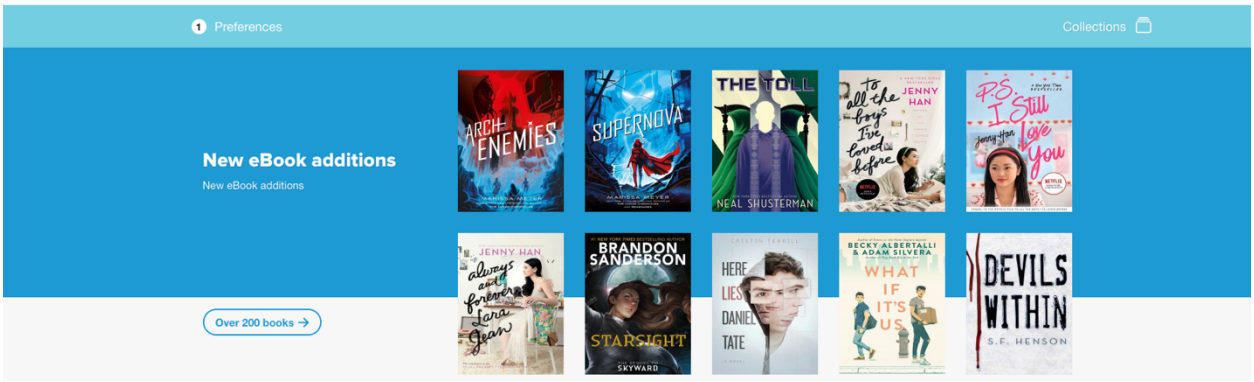
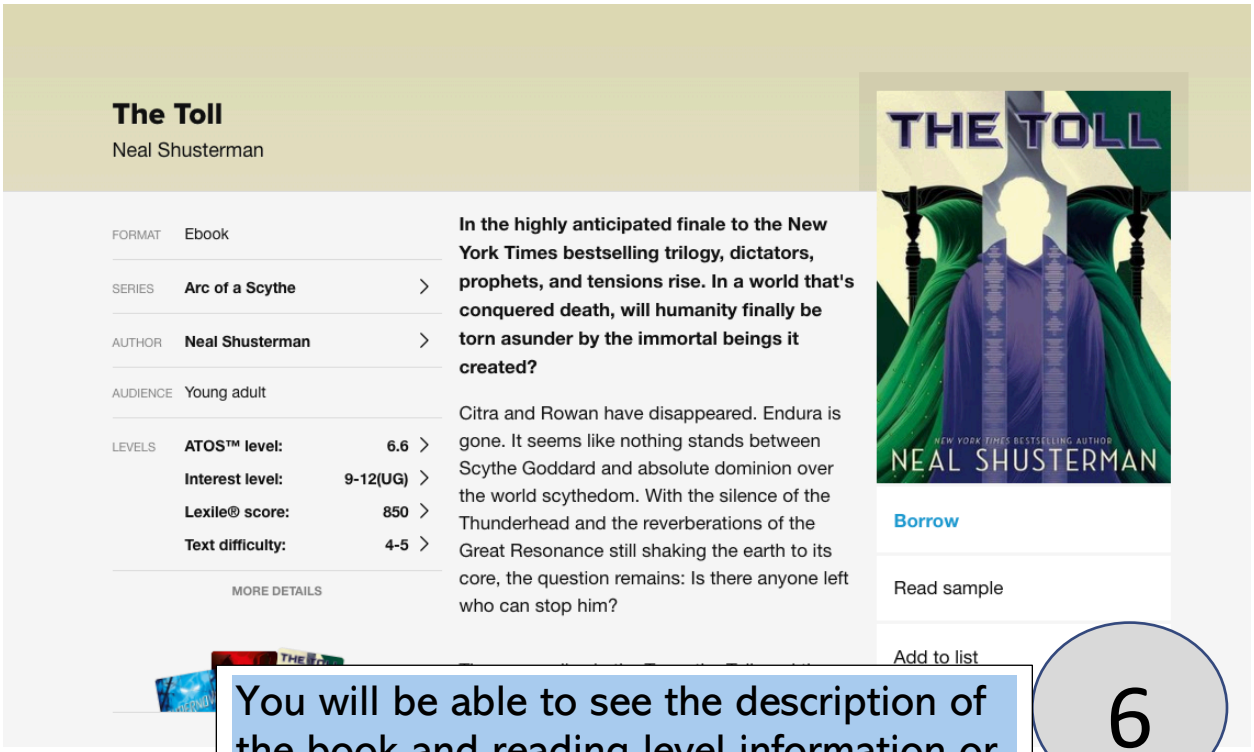
Overall the system has a similar look and feel to the previous overdrive system. You may search books by title, author, or various categories

5

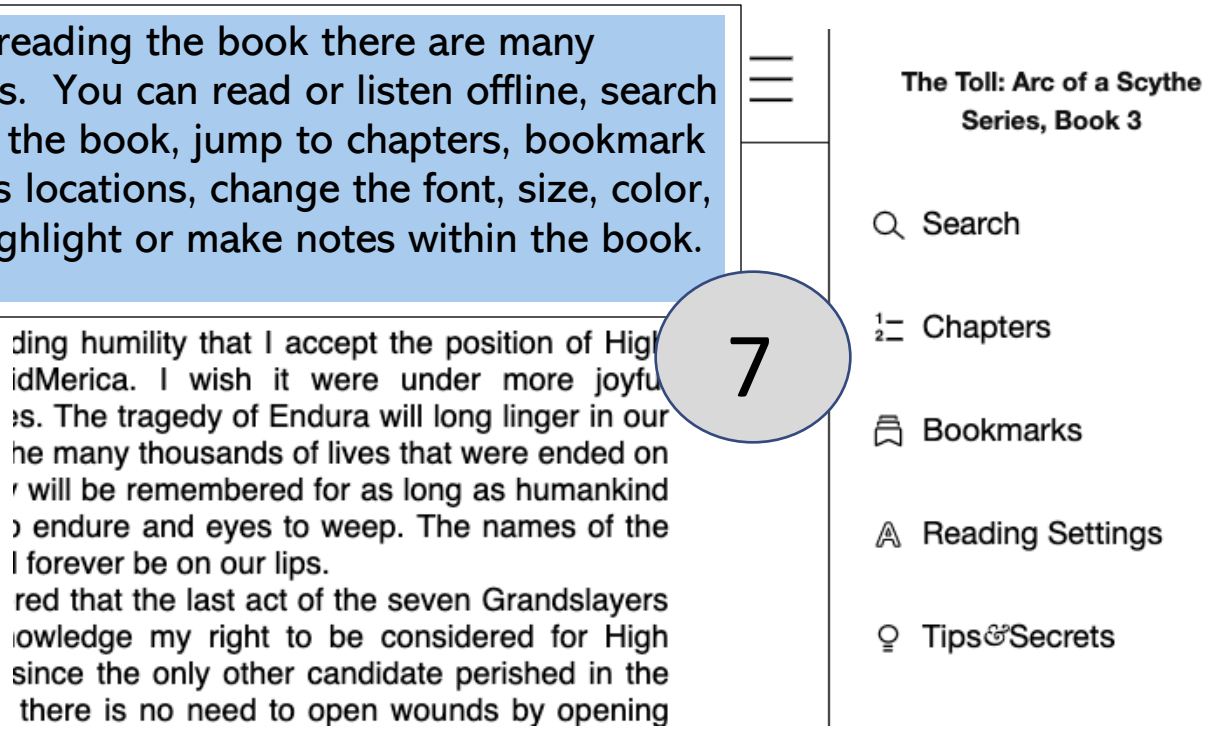




You will be able to see the description of the book and reading level information or read a sample prior to check out.

6

When reading the book there are many options. You can read or listen offline, search text in the book, jump to chapters, bookmark various locations, change the font, size, color, and highlight or make notes within the book.



7

8

Other options that you may find helpful with Sora.

1) You add a second library that also uses Sora so you may search both libraries simultaneously. Such as the Harrisburg Community Library.
2) Dyslexic font is one of the font options.
3) You can speed up or slow down audio books
4) If you highlight a word (click and hold) one of the options is to define the word.
5) If you create notes and highlights for class or book talks you can export those notes. You will keep access to those notes even after you return the book.
