

Madera 21 CSLA Grant

Superintendent, Superintendent/ Principal & Principal Leadership Series for Small School Districts

DESIRED OUTCOMES

Upon successful completion of the course, administrators will learn:

1. Key social and political issues in American education, including diversity and inequality
2. The implications of distance learning in a culturally diverse population affects student equity
3. How to make leadership in small school district a career choice not a stop on your journey
4. How to continue refining your leadership throughout your career.

OVERVIEW

This online academy will explore the intersections between leadership and equity in an era of distance and hybrid learning. It introduces attendees to key leadership philosophical, sociological, and political questions in education, such as:

- What are the purposes of schooling in a diverse and ever-changing technological nation?
- What have we learned about distance learning and the resistance to change?
- How do issues of gender, race, ethnicity, class, and inequality impact your leadership and the adjustments you need to make to improve your leadership as an equity champion?
- What role should school leaders and teachers play in fostering justice and equity?

We will explore these questions and other issues through three central lenses:

- 21 Irrefutable Laws of Leadership Book and Workbook
- Case Studies of Small School Districts and Best Practices for Distance Learning and achieving Equity
- Collaborative between CSLA attendees and SSDA Leadership
