

NEW

NDSU Community Counseling Services

Are you struggling to navigate the uncertainty of COVID-19? Have you noticed a change in your mood recently? Has it gotten increasingly difficult to manage stress? North Dakota State University Community Counseling Services (NDSU CCS) is currently accepting new clients for telemental health counseling! We would like to invite students, parents/guardians, families, teachers, staff, and administrators, who might need extra support right now, to schedule a telemental health counseling session.

NDSU CCS is a training clinic, where individuals can receive counseling services on a sliding fee scale ($20 or less per session) by graduate-level counseling students in the NDSU Counselor Education program. Please note that no client will be refused services based on inability to pay. All students provide services under the direct supervision of trained supervisors. If you or someone you know is interested in telemental health services, contact our clinic manager at 701.231.9750. For more information about our services and location, visit our website at https://www.ndsu.edu/ceduc/community_counseling_services/

Jessica Danielson, PhD, LPCC-S, NCC
Assistant Professor and Clinic Director
North Dakota State University | School of Education
P: 701.231.8077 | jessica.danielson.1@ndsu.edu | O: SGC C121
1919 N. University Dr. NDSU Dept. 2625 PO Box 6050
Pronouns: she/her

NDSU NORTH DAKOTA
STATE UNIVERSITY