Anyone in education knows that if you have ample documentation that an employee is not fulfilling their duties, they can be fired without a payoff. The Board spent over $150,000 to do this. It is NOT your money. Obviously, the Board did not have proper documentation and was compromised. Why pay her off if firing her was justified? Additionally, why bring in Loistine DeFreece? She was forced to resign because she betrayed the trust of the people by remaining on the Board when she was no longer eligible and drawing pay for months. Why make someone who is not worthy of trust the superintendent of the school system? It sure looks like another payoff and hush money. Also, why bring in the Parker agency to "help fix things?" The Board was getting help for free from the state. You acted like you cared until the lights were not shining on you any longer so now it is back to business as usual. The public deserves answers. Does anyone on the Board have the courage to answer these questions?
