November Family Literacy Fun

by Principal Jennifer Cassarino

This month we are looking forward to having author Alyssa Satin Capucilli visit The ELC for a Zoom author event. Ms. Capucilli will present over Zoom on November 12th from 2:45 - 3:30. Ms. Capucilli has written the bestselling Biscuit books and will share with us all about being an author. This is a fabulous opportunity to share with our students the joy of writing stories and to get them excited about reading. Literacy learning is an important aspect of early education and by offering rich and diverse reading experiences for our children, we help nurture the enjoyment that comes with reading a good book.

We will be passing out 2 of Ms. Capucilli's Biscuit books for students to keep at our next Materials Deployment on November 5th. Stay tuned for the Zoom link and more information about Ms. Capucilli's Zoom event. The link will be sent out in an email from your child's teacher closer to the date.

Materials Deployment Day: November 5th

November 5th from 2:30 - 3:30 is our next deployment day where we will be handing out educational materials for families to pick up at the ELC. Much like our first "Beep and Greet," you'll have a quick opportunity to say hello to teachers and staff and receive free books and materials to go along with your child's educational lesson links for the month of November.

In an effort to ease the stress and trauma that we are all experiencing, our district is proud to offer a series of family engagement opportunities around social-emotional health and student academic engagement for the family. The Parent Bootcamp Series features conversations about AVID, the impacts of stress and trauma, and how to help your student with making good choices around drugs and alcohol.
