Sleep is one of the most important functions of the human body. During sleep, our body removes toxins from our brain that build up while we are awake. This is also a time where our neurons improve how they communicate with each other. The CDC recommends a child, between 6-12 years of age, receives 9-12 hours of sleep a night. Naturally, we have noticed that students who receive a good night's sleep perform better emotionally, behaviorally and academically. Is your child getting enough sleep? For more information and tips to help your child get the sleep they need, please visit:

Please make sure your student comes to school with labeled water bottle and mask. This will help in keeping us all safe, thank you.
