

BLUE IS BIG BUSINESS

The Networks Professional Development Program

Indiana State
University

TO BE THE BEST,
YOU MUST LEARN
FROM THE BEST.

Leaders aren't born.

They are developed through the Networks Professional Development Program in Indiana State's Scott College of Business.

Give us four years, and we'll develop you into a leader ready to launch in the financial services and business industries. State's comprehensive education not only provides a rigorous series of leadership seminars and workshops beginning freshman year, but it also gives students hands-on experiences such as industry visits and a mentorship program.

Be a team leader organizing the Ethics Conference, which is attended by professionals and students throughout the region. As a conference organizer, you'll recruit high-profile speakers, manage logistics, promote the event, and secure financial sponsors.

"Work ethic, intellectual ability: Our students have those qualities before they come here," said Rebecca Wray, director of the Networks Program. "What they don't have is a professional role model. Our scholars graduate with the skills that set them apart from other job candidates. I know we succeed in our mission to make the most of our students, because I hear from employers who hire our scholars and they come back asking for more candidates."

WHAT IS NETWORKS?

- Four-year career and professional development leadership program
- Founded in 2003 with a $20 million grant from the Lilly Endowment, Inc.
- Focused on developing leaders in the financial and business industries
- Students are selected through an application and interview process